Recent action by the legislature raised the annual Motor Vehicle Permit from $10 to $15 and authorized the NRC to raise the daily fee to $3 for residents, $4 for nonresidents at Warren Dunes State Park and $15 daily for commercial motor coaches or vans with a capacity of more than 12 passengers. The last increase was in 1981.

State park campers and day-users will see changes in the Rent-A-Tent Program, where fees will increase from $12 a night to $15; large cabin rentals (20 or more capacity), which will increase from $32 to $35; and small cabins (19 or fewer capacity), which will increase from $24 to $25.

Also increased by $1 are fees at the following: $5 per night at rustic campsites; $7 per night at semi-modern campsites; $9 per night at modern campsites; $10 per night at modern campsites in the following parks and recreation areas: Grand Haven, Hayes, Hoffmaster, Holland, Ludington, Mears, Mitchell, N. Higgins Lake, Proud Lake, Silver Lake, S. Higgins Lake, Traverse City, Warren Dunes and Wilderness.

Rayders defeat Hurons in homecoming game

Following a 35-16 homecoming victory over Rogers City, the Rayder football team will travel to Petoskey this Friday evening with hopes of beating the Northmen and qualifying for postseason playoffs.

But beating Petoskey will by no means be an easy endeavour. Like Charlevoix, Petoskey has a 7-1 season record with the only defeat coming at the hands of Michigan Huron Shores League leading Cheboygan. The Rayders lost to Cheboygan two weeks ago by a 22-12 score. Cheboygan beat Petoskey 15-14 last Friday night on a two-point conversion late in the game.

Although Charlevoix's offense fared well against Rogers City, totalling 347 yards, the defense was sloppy at times with Huron backs breaking tackles. The Rayder defense gave up 255 yards and 203 of those yards were from the Huron rushing attack.

Charlevoix jumped off to a 14-0 lead against the Hurons, scoring on their first two possessions: Jason Corwin scored on a three-yard run to finish the first drive. Brian Livingston scored on a three-yard run to complete the second drive.

But the Rayders then allowed Rogers City to march 78 yards and score a touchdown and two-point conversion, cutting the Charlevoix lead to 14-8.

In the second quarter, Charlevoix drove 64 yards with James Corwin scoring from 12 yards out.

Late in the second quarter the teams exchanged interceptions, but there was no further scoring and the half ended with the Rayders up 21-8.

In the second half Charlevoix scored once in the third quarter on an eight-yard run by Dan Terryberry and once in the fourth quarter on a 34-yard pass from Greg Lewis to Livingston.

Jason Corwin led the Rayder offense with 115 yards on 11 carries. Livingston had 101 yards on 10 carries.

Defensively, homecoming king Pat Elliott had 13 solo tackles, three assists and an interception. Tony Warehol had seven solo tackles.

Brian Coolman (35) stands up a Rogers City runner and prepares to tackle him during Friday evening's game. Other Rayders moving in on the play are Bob Scholey (63) and Tracey Simpson (56).

James Corwin (21) leaps as he intercepts a pass during the second quarter of Charlevoix's 35-16 win over Rogers City. In the background are Brian Livingston (20) and Jason Corwin (22).

Golfers compete at state finals meet

Competing in cold, misty weather better suited to duck hunting than golfing Charlevoix's golf team shot a 377 and finished 18th among 20 teams at the Class C state finals Saturday. The meet was hosted by the Oak Lake Golf Course in Webberville.

Luke LaBlance led the Rayders with a score of 87. LaBlance shot a 40 on the first nine holes. He also eagled the eleventh hole, using a pitching wedge to hit a shot from 100 yards out.

Following LaBlance were Josh Hastings with an 88, Randy Wurst with a 96, Jordan Spencer with a 106 and Doug Sineway with a 107.

Grandview Calvin Christian placed first in the Class C meet with a team score of 317.

This year was the first time in several years that Charlevoix has qualified for the state meet. Hastings and Wurst are the team's only seniors.

Cross country team still winning

Charlevoix's boys cross country team is ranked number 1 in Class C, but competed against Class A and B schools Saturday in winning the Elk Rapids Invitational.

Charlevoix finished three points ahead of Class A Traverse City while Petoskey finished third.

When you're up front, there's nobody to follow. Charlevoix's Scott Miller won the race despite taking a slight detour and having to retrace his steps at one point on the course. Miller finished with a time of 16:09. Teammate Bill Crook finished right behind him at 16:12.

Other Rayder varsity runners and their places and times were: Paul Wakulat, fourth at 16:24; Matt Smith, 15th at 17:03; Tim Henne, 16th at 17:07; Gehry Wiesner, 17th at 17:12; Chris Meier, 18th at 17:18.

Sophomore Mike Sevenski, one of the Rayders' top runners did not race due to an injury. Meier ran, but was bothered by a head cold.

In the girls race, Charlevoix's top finisher was Julie Bush who finished sixth with a time of 20:38. Other Rayder runners and their times were: Tracee Smith, 22:04; Kendra Olinger, 24:21; and Melissa Eaton, 24:27.

Basketball team loses

The Charlevoix girls basketball team suffered their fourteenth loss of the season last Thursday evening as they were beaten 51-39 by Boyne City.

As has been the pattern this year, the Rayders were doomed by a dismal third quarter. The Rayders mustered but three points in the third quarter.

Charlevoix trailed throughout the game. At the end of the first quarter they were down 16-11 and at the half were behind 33-24.

While Charlevoix didn't score much in the third quarter, neither did Boyne City. Charlevoix scored only three points, but allowed just seven points in the quarter.

Charlevoix outscored the Ramblers 12-11 in the fourth quarter, but it was too little too late.

Sandy Fershee led the Rayders in scoring with 11 points. She was followed by Melissa Boss with 10 points. Charlevoix won the junior varsity game 39-31.

Charlevoix travels to Grayling Thursday evening.

Special football pep rally planned

A pep rally to inspire the varsity football team will take place at approximately 8:30 p.m. Thursday evening on the yard to the west of the high school.

Charlevoix's varsity football team is 7-1 and has an opportunity to qualify for postseason playoffs for the first time since playoffs began in the mid 1970s.

But to have a chance to qualify for the playoffs, the Rayders must defeat Petoskey Friday evening. The Northmen are also 7-1 on the year. Cheboygan is the only team to beat Charlevoix and Petoskey this year.

The pep rally will feature a bonfire, cheerleading and an introduction of the varsity players. The community is invited to attend and show their support for the team.

Flu shots offered

Fall is the transition season between summer and winter. It is also a time to immunize against the upcoming flu season. Influenza (or flu) is a viral infection of the nose, throat, bronchial tubes, and lungs that can make people of any age ill. Usually the flu occurs from November to April with January, February, and March the worse months.

If you get the flu, you usually have an abrupt onset of fever, sore throat, chills, cough, and soreness and aching on your back, arms, and legs. Although most people recover in three to seven days, some individuals become seriously ill and require hospitalization. Thousands of people die each year in the U.S. from the flu or related complications such as pneumonia.

There is a vaccine and a medication (Amantadine) which can prevent and control influenza. Amantadine is not a substitute for vaccination and is recommended for use under specific circumstances such as unimmunized high risk persons. The medication must be obtained by prescription from your family physician. The vaccine is recommended for use in the elderly and people with other health problems who may become seriously ill or die from flu or its complications.

High risk groups include:

-Adults and children with long term heart or lung problems which cause them to see a doctor regularly.

-Residents of nursing homes and other institutions housing persons of any age with serious long term health problems.

-Healthy people age 65 years or older.

-People of any age who during the past year have regularly seen a doctor for treatment of kidney disease, cystic fibrosis, diabetes, anemia ("low blood"), or severe asthma.

-People who have a type of cancer or immunological disorder (or use certain types of medicines) that lowers the body's normal resistance to infections.

-Children on long term treatment with aspirin who, if they catch the flu, may be at risk of getting Reyes Syndrome.

-Medical staff and individuals (family) who provide care to high risk persons at home or in health care facilities.

The influenza vaccine for adults is a single flu injection that provides protection against three strains of flu virus. Children less that 12 years of age may need two injections. The vaccine will not protect against other illnesses that resemble the flu and does not begin to provide protection until 1-2 weeks after the injection.

Flu immunizations will not protect all persons against the flu. A common side effect is soreness for a day or two at the injection site. Occasionally fever or achiness for one or two days may occur. Allergic or more serious reactions could occur following the immunization but are infrequent. Most people have no side effects from recent influenza vaccines. Individuals with a history of allergic reactions to influenza vaccine, chicken egg, or gentamicin (or other aminolgycosides), should not receive the vaccine.

The influenza vaccine will be available through Commissions on Aging in the District Health Department No. 3 area during October and November. After the special COA clinics have been completed in each county, the vaccine will be made available at regular health department clinics by making an appointment. Cost and scheduling information for the flu vaccine may be obtained by calling the following District Health Department No. 3 offices: Emmet County 616-347-6014; Charlevoix County 616-547-6523; Antrim County 616-533-8607; Otsego County 517-732-1794 or the local Commission on Aging.

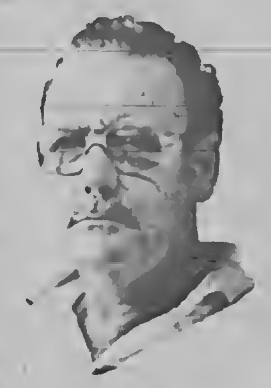
Cheri Hoffman

Norm Probert

Patricia Gaskin



Earl Muma

Butch Russell

Voters to decide three council seats Tuesday, Nov. 7

While there is but one candidate in the second ward, there are decisions to be made among council candidates in Charlevoix's first and third wards.

In the first ward, two-term incumbent Norm Probert is being challenged by Cheri Hoffman. In the third ward, 12-year incumbent Earl Muma is being challenged by Patricia Gaskin. One-term incumbent Butch Russell does not face opposition for reelection in the second ward.

Voting will take place from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m., Tuesday, Nov. 7 at city hall.

Several absentee ballots have already been turned in and could play an important role in election results, particularly in the first ward. As of Monday, 132 absentee ballots had been turned in from the first ward, 64 from the second ward and 72 from the third ward.

Voters may pick up absentee ballots from the clerk's office through the end of the week and between 8 a.m. and 2 p.m., Saturday, Nov. 4. Voters who are unable to make it to the polls Nov. 7 may stop by the clerk's office and vote on an absentee ballot prior to 4 p.m., Nov. 6.

Each of Charlevoix's three wards has approximately 775 registered voters. In 1987, the last year when there were only city and not state or federal candidates on the ballot, 140 voters cast ballots in the first ward, 248 in the second ward and 51 in the third ward.

This year those numbers may be somewhat higher due to two state sales tax increase proposals (see accompanying story) which will also be on the ballot.

Probert, 52, is married and has two grown children. One of them, his son Gary, is Charlevoix's mayor. Probert has been a physical education teacher in the Charlevoix school system for approximately 20 years. Currently, he teaches at the middle school.

Probert formerly was high school wrestling coach and has served as an officer in the Michigan Wrestling Coaches Association. He has also served as an officer with the Charlevoix Education Association.

Community groups Probert has been involved with include: Charlevoix Little League, the Charlevoix Rod and Gun Club, an associate member of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce and the Lake Charlevoix Association.

While on council, Probert has been meticulous in going over city bills and has frequently opposed shoreline development. In recent weeks, he has voiced concerns about problems with city sewer service on Charlevoix's north side.

Hoffman, 41, has two children in the Charlevoix school system. She is employed as a salaried secretary and co-owns the Town Car Wash. Prior to moving to Charlevoix several years ago, she taught for three years in the Detroit Public School system.

Community organizations Hoffman has been involved with include: Beta Sigma Phi; St. Mary's Parish, the Charlevoix Cooperative Nursery; Charlevoix Little League; the school Odyssey of the Mind program; the March of Dimes and the county fluoride program.

In explaining her reason for running for office, she said that when a person sees something they don't feel is operating properly they should attempt to become involved and correct the problem rather than just being critical.

Three words Hoffman is stressing in her campaign are accountability, backbone and cooperation. She maintains that council members should be accountable and willing to cite reasons for the way they vote. She says council members should have the backbone to oppose proposals which will harm many people while benefitting only a few, but council members should also be willing to cooperate with people who propose projects which will benefit the majority of the community. community.

Muma, 56, is married and has three grown children. He is retired from the Air Force and has lived in Charlevoix on a steady basis since 1967. Muma currently is the county emergency services director and is also employed as a court officer and transport officer for the sheriff's department.

Muma's civic involvements include the Lions Club, Northern Lakes Economic Alliance and Charlevoix Industrial Development Corporation.

Muma first joined the council in the mid 1970s. He ran for mayor in 1981, but was defeated. He was reelected to the council in 1983.

As a councilman, Muma has

The last warm days of autumn

Warm weather provides a "catch 22" for Larry Holecheck (front) and Randy Wurst of Bellinger Marine Service. It's more pleasant to put boats away when the weather's warm, but when the weather's warm, boat owners are reluctant to part their boats.

There are just so many, so many, things to get done before winter. And so little time before the snow flies. It's enough to drive a squirrel nuts.

Neil Jones and other area farmers have been busy getting the crops in.

Rick Taylor was finishing up cement work downtown last week.

THE MC SAUBA TRAILS WERE WELL USED LAST WEEK. WITH THE WARM WEATHER BECKONING MANY OUTSIDE- SQUIRRELS SCAMPERED UNDERFOOT AND OVER-HEAD, AND RABBITS TUNNELED AMONG THE DRY LEAVES- ONE NEARLY BECAME DINNER FOR A RED FOX. BUT, THE FOX SPOTTED OUR BEAGLE, AND NOT KNOWING SHE WAS ON A LEASH, GAVE ONE QUICK OVER-THE-SHOULDER LOOK AND BOUNDED OUT OF SIGHT. BOTH FOX AND BEAGLE WERE FRUSTRATED, THE RABBIT WAS HAPPY AND I ENJOYED SEEING NATURE IN ACTION.

REASONABLE TO ME

L. SCOTT SWANSON

A stand-off at the crossroads

I'm avoiding the State and Antrim Street intersection for the time-being. I've deemed it unsafe.

With the Bridge Street construction work, State Street's seeing more traffic. To expedite the additional traffic, the State Street stop signs have been covered up and temporary stop signs have been placed in the middle of Antrim Street.

I assume the philosophy behind changing the signs is that with Antrim Street traffic stopped, State Street traffic will flow smoothly through the intersection and not get backed up.

That's an interesting philosophy with but a single flaw. It doesn't work. Tradition has thwarted it.

For decades the stop signs at the State-Antrim intersection have been on State Street and people have driven accordingly.

Now, the signs have been changed. Instead of State being stop and Antrim being go, it's supposed to be the other way around for a while.

But when faced with this change, do people go with the signs of the times or do they stop in deference to tradition? That depends on who the driver is at the intersection.

The first time I pulled up to the State-Antrim intersection under the new sign system, I found that everybody was stopping.

Another driver and myself were heading opposite directions on Antrim. We stopped because there were big signs telling us to stop. Two other drivers were facing each other on State Street. They stopped because they've always stopped on State before crossing Antrim.

So there we all were. It was a stand-off. Each of us was waiting for one of the others to make the first move, yet none of us dared make a move for fear one, or all, of the other three drivers would make a move at the same time.

We started trying to communicate in sign language, waving back and forth at each other. The sign language left something to be desired. An average driver has only two eyes, so sign language is pretty much restricted to a two-party exchange. On a four-party scale, sign language between drivers gets confusing.

Driver sign language basically consists of waving your hand and gesturing for another driver to drive through the intersection. The gesture says, "You go ahead. I won't crash into you. I'll wait."

When you're one of only two drivers in an intersection stand-off, gesturing for the other driver to go ahead while you wait is a polite and decent thing to do.

But in a driver sign language exchange you can only speak for yourself. Therefore, a gesture to another driver in a four-driver stand-off carries a different meaning. It says, "Go ahead. I'll wait and not crash into you. And with any luck neither will either of these other two drivers."

In a four-driver stand-off, gesturing for someone else to go first isn't so polite and decent. It's kind of like nominating a guinea pig for an experiment. If the driver you wave into the intersection makes it through with his fenders intact, maybe you'll try going through yourself.

Construction work on Bridge Street appears to be moving along well enough. It should soon be completed for the year. Then the signs at Antrim and State will probably be changed back to their original status. And drivers who have adapted to the change will have to unadapt.

Personally, I'm trying to avoid all of the adapting and unadapting. Upright, Hurlbut, Mason, Clinton and Park are all good streets as far as I'm concerned. I'll just use them until things get squared away again.

Hell! We had him eight years,
And he cost us zillions!

Council candidate supported

Editor,

Vote for Charlevoix. Vote for Patricia Gaskin – city council. She will listen to citizens expressing their values, beliefs, and concerns. She will respect what she hears and THEN make decisions. Mrs. Gaskin will NOT come to council meetings with her mind already made up, ignoring reason from concerned parties.

Patricia Gaskin has a background of listening to people. That is what is needed on our city council.

Elect Patricia Gaskin to Charlevoix's city council on Tuesday, November 7.

From loonies to elections

Welcome to the Land of the Loonies.

Canada, that is.

I made my first trip to Canada in more than a year over the weekend and was surprised to learn that the Canadian dollar, as I remembered it, is almost a thing of the past.

Our good neighbors to the north, east and south have abandoned the paper dollar for a large copper-toned coin bearing the image of a loon.

The government should have known before the first coin was minted that Canadians, who like playing with words, would soon be calling them loonies.

And they do. It is the popular term for the one-dollar coin.

"I'm fresh out of loonies," said the clerk in the checkout lane of a supermarketat the Station Mall at Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario. "Wait just a minute until I get another roll."

"That'll be a loony and a half," said the clerk at another store as I paid for a purchase.

The loony is far more popular than the Susan B. Anthony dollar is in the United States and it's easy to see why. It is a large, multi-sided coin that is unlike any other coin in the Canadian till. The Anthony dollar is so close in size to the quarter that mistakes are inevitable.

Furthermore, the Canadian government reportedly is phasing out the paper dollar. I only saw one of them on Saturday, and it was pretty tattered. However, Canadian twos, fives, tens and twenties are still in use.

I suppose that in the long run the loony will save money for the Canadian treasury. Although they probably cost more to make initially than paper dollars, the coin appears sturdy enough to survive centuries of hard labor in the marketplace.

The Canadian government hasn't always been so penny-wise. When I was a kid, Canada had all kinds of paper money, including 25-and 50-cent notes. They were smaller than regular paper bills and were called "shinplasters."

Generally, Canadian currency is far inferior in quality to American currency, which always has a crisp, official look — like blue-chip stock certificates.

Canadian bills are brightly colored, but the paper is pretty flimsy. After a few years, bills become torn, tattered and dog-eared.

But not the loony. With a little luck, those in use today will appear freshly minted long after you and I are gone.

CHARLEVOIX movie magnate Bill Supernaw never hesitates to let his opinion be known in messages affixed to the marquee of the Charlevoix Cinema on Bridge Street.

This week's message is a classic: Dear council, take some time off. We deserve it."

I don't know which particular council action Supernaw had in mind, but the past couple of sessions have been devoted to browbeating City Manager Mike Wiesner, one of council's regular pastimes.

Oh, I suppose Wiesner has made a few boo-boos along the way, although I can't recall any serious gaffe off-hand. But I do know he's a hard worker who has accomplished more than any of his predecessors. The city would be hard pressed to replace him with anyone half so competent.

What we really need is new blood on the council — courteous folks who appreciate hard work and accomplishment.

Keep this in mind when you go to the polls Tuesday, Nov. 7.

And don't let anything keep you from casting your vote. You owe it to Mike.

THE NICEST Indian summer in eons is about to end. Snow is in the cards for the remainder of the week and with the arrival of bleak November anything can happen.

I keeping thinking of the blizzard of Nov. 1-2, 1966, when the city had a foot of snow, zero temperatures and 80-knot winds.

And not one city snowplow was ready to roll.

Editorial

Vote no on proposals A and B

Charlevoix voters should vote "No" on both state sales tax increase proposals (Proposal A and Proposal B) Nov. 7.

Shortly after they took up the issue of educational tax reform more than a year ago, it became clear that Lansing legislators spell reform, i-n-c-r-e-a-s-e.

In devising Proposal A and Proposal B, Lansing legislators skirted the responsibility of working hard for meaningful educational reform. They demonstrated no political courage and cowered to special interest groups in choosing to seek a $400 million (Proposal A) or $274 million (Proposal B) tax increase.

Using the banner of education in seeking more money is nothing new to state legislators. The lottery is a classic example. Michigan voters adopted the lottery after being assured all lottery revenues would be used for education. What happened is that as lottery money went into the state educational fund, other educational money was shifted to other programs. The end result was the same as if lottery money had been sent directly to the other programs.

In a series of misleading advertisements, backers of Proposal A are claiming the lottery syndrome won't be repeated. However, legislators have not passed the legislation which is supposed to assure that.

The same misleading Proposal A advertisements imply that Lansing politicians oppose Proposal A because they won't be able to get their hands on the money. But weigh that claim against reality. In reality, two-thirds of the Lansing legislators had to vote for Proposal A just to put the thing on the Nov. 7 ballot.

When looking at the whole picture, one can make a strong argument that backers of Proposal A are attempting to pull the wool over the eyes of Michigan voters.

While Proposal A backers run misleading advertisements, backers of Proposal B have taken another approach. They've formulated a proposal with drawbacks hidden in the fine print.

The most important and undesirable drawback is that Proposal B establishes permanent property taxes which would never again be subject to voter approval, renewal or review.

Proposal B also exempts certain property taxes from Headlee Amendment tax limitations. The Headlee Amendment was put in place by voters to keep taxing entities from raising taxes above the rate of inflation by increasing state equalized property values (SEV). The amendment has been a blessing to property tax payers. To have the amendment weakened by Proposal B would be a a curse to property tax payers.

Proposal A is a straight-up $400 million tax increase; created through raising the sales tax from four cents to four and one-half cents. In Proposal B's behalf, it at least takes a stab at property taxes. It proposes to raise the sales tax 50 percent, from four to six cents, while reducing property taxes an average of 18 percent statewide.

The words "an average of 18 percent statewide" are important to Charlevoix taxpayers.

Proposal B attempts to reduce property taxes by cutting millage, not by cutting state equalized evaluations (SEV).

The Charlevoix School District is high in SEV per pupil and low in millage levied.

To picture what's happening, think of the equation 2 plus 8 equals 10. Think of the 2 as millage. Think of the 8 as SEV. The total, 10, is the amount of property taxes you pay.

Proposal B would decrease the 2, but not touch the 8. It also offers no assurance that the 8 won't be 9, 10 or 11 next year. In fact, by weakening the Headlee Amendment, Proposal B makes it easier for the 8 to become 9, 10, or 11 next year.

When voting on proposed increases in sales taxes, Charlevoix voters should keep two things in mind. Sales tax dollars go to Lansing. Property tax dollars stay in Charlevoix.

Given that Lansing has declared Charlevoix an "out-of-formula" school district, most sales tax dollars from Charlevoix make only a one-way trip to Lansing.

Charlevoix taxpayers would be ill advised to send more sales tax dollars on that one-way trip. Vote "No" on both Proposal A and Proposal B.

Faith in people restored

Editor:

At a time when rewards are being offered for the return of stolen or missing wallets, I feel prompted to report a similar incident with a happy ending.

While working at the Rainbow Shoppe recently, my jacket containing keys and change purse disappeared. A search of the premises and my mind proved fruitless. Then come a call from a customer who had discovered a jacket among her purchases which did not belong to her. She made a trip back, returned everything intact and refused a reward thereby restoring my faith in people. My grateful thanks to "Debbie".

Star of Charlevoix pulls up anchor, business closed

The Star Line Corporation has pulled up anchor and is cruising out of Charlevoix.

Last week, the corporation announced that the Star of Charlevoix cruise ship and operation has been closed down effective Oct. 23 and is for sale. The corporation, which was founded in Charlevoix in 1980 with the Bay Queen, also has cruise ships operating out of Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit, Louisville, Milwaukee and Toledo.

Ann Henricksen, speaking from the corporation's public relations department in Livonia, said the decision to end the corporation's involvement with the Charlevoix cruise operation was strictly a business matter. She said the corporation had enjoyed the Charlevoix area and working with the citizens of the community.

Henricksen said the corporation is trying to sell the Charlevoix operation including the ship.

"We're hoping very seriously that someone will buy it and continue to operate it," she explained.

When the cruise ship operation began in 1980, the Bay Queen was docked on the north shore of Round Lake in the area currently occupied by the Edgewater Inn. The Bay Queen's successor was a larger Star of Charlevoix.

There was no cruise ship operating out of Charlevoix in 1987. However, several local business people felt the ship was attracting tourists and tourist dollars to the community and persuaded the corporation to bring a ship back to Charlevoix in 1988 and 1989. Local investors were going to raise 50 percent of the funds necessary for the operation, but that funding did not materialize.

When the most recent Star of Charlevoix, a paddlewheel boat, began service in 1988 it was docked on the western shore of Round Lake, near the U.S. Coast Guard cutter Mesquite.

Preparing the new dock required a transaction of approximately $90,000 involving the city and the Star Line Corporation. The transaction took place through an escrow account and was not finalized until late in the fall of 1988.

The Star of Charlevoix has pulled up anchor and gone out of business. Company officials said the boat and the Charlevoix operation are for sale.

FAMILY

Griffen — Mielke

Mr. and Mrs. James E. Griffen of Beverly, Mass. have announced the engagement of their daughter, Sarah E. Grifin, to Stephen J. Mielke. Mielke is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Mielke of Charlevoix.

The bride-elect is employed as a clinical social worker at McLean Hospital in Belmont, Mass. She has a bachelor's degree from the University of Southern Maine and a masters' degree from Boston University.

Her fiance is an architect with Jeremiah Eck architects in Boston, Mass. He is a 1979 graduate of Charlevoix High School and has a bachelor's degree from the University of Michigan and a masters degree from Harvard Graduate School of Design.

The couple will be wed Dec. 9 in Beverly, Mass.

Joint damage to be explained

Old and young alike often fall victim to bone joint damage and disease. In today's medical world there is help for all who suffer from these painful conditions. Drs. Loyal Jodar and Mark McMurray, orthopedic surgeons on the staff at Charlevoix Area Hospital, will discuss total joint replacement and arthroscopy methods used in joint repair on Thursday, November 9, at 7 p.m. in the Charlevoix Area Hospital classrooms.

Total joint replacement is now a common procedure for people with arthritis which affects knees, hips, fingers and shoulders. Arthroscopy allows the surgeon to repair damaged joints such as the knee using a microscope which is inserted into the joint and requires only a small incision.

There is no charge for the lecture which is open to the public.

Angela Kirkum has done many great deeds in Michigan. That's why we sent her to Hawaii.

Congratulations to Angela Kirkum of Grayling, winner of the 1988 Concerned Citizen of the Year Award and a free trip-for-two to Hawaii.

In 1988, Angela devoted literally hundreds of hours of her time performing volunteer work at an elementary school, at her church, at an extended health care center, and at her local senior center.

We are now accepting nominations for the 2nd Annual Concerned Citizen of The Year Awards. If you know a senior citizen who has made a significant contribution to helping others in your community, tell us about them. Call your nearest Citizens agent or any senior citizens organization for details.

Voters will also cast ballots on state sales tax proposals

Along with filling three city council seats, Charlevoix voters will also vote on two state school finance proposals at the Nov. 7 election.

The two proposals are:

Proposal A - A proposal to increase the state sales tax from four to four and one-half cents per dollar. According to estimates, Proposal A would be a net state tax increase of approximately $400 million in fiscal year 1990-91.

Proposal B - A proposal to increase the state sales tax from four to six cents per dollar. In conjunction with increasing the sales tax, Proposal B would also decrease property taxes. However, on a statewide basis, the increase in sales taxes from Proposal B would be more than the decrease in property taxes. State taxes would increase by an estimated $274 million if Proposal B passes.

Voters may vote no on one or both proposals or voters may vote yes on one or both proposals. If both proposals pass, the one which receives the most votes will be implemented.

Proponents of Proposal A argue that it will guarantee additional money for Michigan schools, be safe from political tampering and improve educational areas including computer education, math and science instruction and drug prevention.

Opponents of Proposal A contend that legislation prohibiting political tampering with Proposal A funds hasn't been adopted.

Proposal A opponents have criticized TV ads promoting the proposal as being misleading. The ads imply that state politicians won't be able to touch additional tax revenue from Proposal A and that politicians therefore object to the proposal. Proposal A opponents note that not only has the legislation precluding political tampering not been adopted, but that in order for Proposal A to be put on the ballot, two-thirds of the Lansing politicians had to vote for it.

Money the state will receive if Proposal A passes will go into the state School Aid Fund which is distributed according to the state school aid formula. The Charlevoix Public School District, like many school districts in Northwestern Lower Michigan, is classified by the state as "out-of-formula" and consequently receives virtually no funding from the state School Aid Fund.

Backers of Proposal B maintain that it will close the gap in spending between Michigan's 525 K-12 school districts while significantly reducing property taxes.

Opponents of Proposal B argue that it is a permanent 50 percent increase in sales taxes in exchange for a temporary 18 percent average decrease in property.

Opponents note that there are two variables responsible for increasing taxes: state equalized valuation (SEV a.ka. assessed property value) and millage levied on that SEV. They argue that while Proposal B addresses millage, it is increases in SEV, rather than millage, which is primarily responsible for driving up property taxes.

Proposal B opponents also claim there are several drawbacks hidden in the "fine print" of Proposal B.

Among the drawbacks they cite:

Proposal B will establish a state property tax, sending tax dollars to Lansing for distribution instead of keeping them with local units of government.

Proposal B establishes separate tax levels for business and non-business property, thereby violating an established principal of uniform taxation.

Proposal B establishes a permanent foundation millage which voters would not have the right to approve, renew or review.

Proposal B would still allow "optional" property tax increases on top of the foundation taxes.

Proposal B would effectively gut Headlee Amendment limitations which prohibit tax increases due to increased SEVs from rising more than the Consumer Price Index (i.e. rate of inflation).

been in the forefront of city industrial development efforts. Muma also has worked to promote Charlevoix at state municipal league meetings. Muma also was the councilman who requested a recent contract and performance review of city manager Mike Wiesner.

Gaskin, 52, is married and has a professional background which includes experience in administration, marketing and counseling.

Community civic groups Gaskin has been involved with include the Charlevoix Historical Society and the American Cancer Society.

In her candidacy, Gaskin has emphasized the need for good communications in council matters and thoughtful analysis in making decisions affecting the city.

Gaskin has emphasized the need for a positive and less antagonistic atmosphere in council discussions.

Russell, 45, is married and has two children. He is employed as an auto reconditioner.

Russell was elected to the council for the first time in 1987. In his first term as a councilman, Russell has been among the council's most fiscally conservative members, voting against several spending proposals and pushing for lower millage levies.

Rev. Levi C. McClellan

Rev. Levi C. McClellan, 41, of Bay Shore, died Oct. 26, 1989, at Munson Medical Center, Traverse City.

Funeral was 2 p.m. Monday, Oct. 30, at the Stone Funeral Home, Petoskey. Pastor T. Sam McClellan Jr. officiated and burial was in Undine Cemetery, Charlevoix County.

Mr. McClellan was born Sept. 8, 1948, in Petoskey, the son of Thurlow and Susan (Tepakeyah) McClellan. He had resided at Bay Shore and attended Charlevoix public schools, graduating from Charlevoix High School in 1967.

He attended Mt. Vernon Bible College where he received a degree in theology.

Mr. McClellan returned to the Petoskey area and was pastor at the Foursquare Indian Church in Petoskey for six years. He has been an evangelist during his career as a clergyman.

Mr. McClellan was active in sports throughout his life and was a member of the four-square oganization. He was a member of the Full Gospel Businessmens's organization; the Grand Traverse Band of Ottawa and Chippewa Indians; a member of the Big Brothers and Big Sisters organization.

Survivors include; four sons, Levi of Petoskey, Christopher of Charlevoix, and John and Domonic, both of Alanson; one daughter, Angeline of Alanson; one granddaughter, Keshia McClellan of Bay Shore; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thurlow McClellan Sr. of Charlevoix; three brothers, Thurlow Jr. of Alba, George of Charlevoix and Steve of Traverse City; seven sisters, Mrs. Michael (Suzanne) Meier of Charlevoix, Arlene Antoine of Suttons Bay, Betty Kewagshken of Alba, Evelyn Didrickson of Alaska, Elizabeth Crockett of Mount Pleasant, Mrs. Henry (Gene) Field of Charlevoix and Mrs. Gary (Carol) Field of Charlevoix; and several nieces and nephews.

Those wishing to honor the memory of Mr. McClellan may do so by contributing to the family. Envelopes for memorials are available at the Stone Funeral Home where the family received friends from 10 a.m. until the time of the service Monday.

BEACONS OF BLESSINGS

If you are a fan of the cartoonist Charles Schultz, then you know that this is probably the single biggest week of the year for one of his creations. I'm referring to his blanket toting prophet-philosopher Linus.

In the world according to Peanuts, this is the week that The Great Pumpkin is supposed to arise out of the pumpkin patch and deliver presents to all the good little boys and girls in the world. And if you are a faithful fan of Peanuts, you know that year after year poor linus goes to what he hopes is the most sincere pumpkin patch each Halloween night to faithfully keep watch.

He has always been disappointed. He blames it on all kinds of things. The pumpkins weren't sincere enough. The friends he roped into keeping watch with him really didn't believe. All kinds of things could have caused The Great Pumpkin to pass him by. But every November 1, in the face of the teasing and kidding from all his peers, he proclaims it loud and long, "wait 'til next year, Charlie Brown!"

When you are so thoroughly convinced of your beliefs, you ought to standup for them regardless of what the world around you might think. As a Christian you have a lot to stand up for. God has made you a brand new creation. The old ways of doing business in your life have been washed away. They have been replaced with a whole new outlook on life. You see everything from a different light.

As a child of God, He has promised you His Holy Spirit to help you adjust to being in a world filled with temptations and trials without giving in or being discouraged by them.

As one who has faith in God, you are on the winning side. You have more than the hopes that fuel Linus' dreams about The Great Pumpkin. You have God's personal assurance that he will see you through.

If you're uncertain about your faith in God, you don't have to wait until next year. You can find out for yourself right now. In Revelations 3:20, Jesus says, "Here I am! I stand at the door and knock. If anyone hears my voice and opens the door, I will come in and eat with him and he with Me." The Great Pumpkin may have disappointed Linus but Jesus Christ will never fail you.

Opal W. Ingalls

Opal W. Ingalls, 81, of Charlevoix, died Oct. 28, 1989, at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Funeral was 1:30 p.m. Tuesday, Oct 31, at the Winchester Funeral Home, Charlevoix. The Rev. Benton Heisler of the Charlevoix United Methodist Church officiated and burial was in Brookside Cemetery, Charlevoix.

Mrs. Ingalls was born Oct. 12, 1908, in Eveline Township, the daughter of Eugene C. and Sylvia A. (Brock) Lewis. She attended the Ironton School and graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1928.

On Sept. 18, 1932, she married Glenn H. Ingalls in Charlevoix. He preceded her in death on Sept. 27, 1968.

Mrs. Ingalls was a life member and past matron of the Charlevoix Order of Eastern Star Chapter No. 72. She was also a member of the United Methodist Church and a member of the Thoburn Nagler Circle of the Church. She was a member of the Charlevoix Area Hospital Auxiliary.

Survivors include: three nephews, Russell Lewis of Charlevoix, James Lewis of South Haven and Donald Heise of Garland, Texas; five nieces, Mrs. Eugene (Maxine) Bergmann of Charlevoix, Lorna Lewis of Azusa, Calif., Mrs. Anthony (Beth) Mulack of Central Lake, Mrs. William (Leone) Mick of Bellaire and Mrs. Walter (Lois) Wiedbrauk of Lansing.

The family suggests memorials to the Charlevoix United Methodist Church. Envelopes for memorials are available at the Winchester Funeral Home.

Oh Boix!

A compilation of praises won by Charlevoix people for good deeds, good work and hard work.

Sgt. Troy Swegles of the U.S. Air Force and his wife, the former Dawn Benoit were in Charlevoix on leave recently to visit family and friends. Sgt. Swegles is stationed at Clark Air Force Base in the Philippine Islands.

He is the son of Mrs. Paula Swegles. Dawn is the daughter of Barry and Sandy Loper, all of Charlevoix.

Johathan G. Terry, a graduate of Charlevoix High School, received a $500 Calvin Alumni Scholarship for the 1989-90 school year from Calvin College in Grand Rapids. Terry is a freshman at Calvin.

Alumni Scholarship recipients are students who have done well in high school, but have not been selected to receive another scholarship awarded by the college. Selections are made on the basis of a student's academic record, potential for success at Calvin, participation in extracurriclar activities in high school, and financial need.

William E. Cruickshank

William E. Cruickshank Jr., 32, died Oct. 25, 1989, at his home on Beaver Island.

Funeral was 2 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 28, on Beaver Island. Deacon Michael McGinnity officiated and burial was in Beaver Island Cemetery, St. James Township.

Mr. Cruickshank was born Aug. 8, 1957, in Royal Oak, the son of William E. and Barbara Jean (Miller) Cruickshank.

He attended and graduated from Clawson High School in 1975 and lived on Beaver Island for the past five years.

He is survived by: his parents, Bud and Barbara Cruickshank of Beaver Island; three brothers, Scott and Dan, both of Lake Orion and Brian of Royal Oak. He was preceded in death by a brother, Grant, in 1977.

Visitation was Friday at the Cruickshank home on Beaver Island.

Consumer tipsheets are available

The Michigan Consumers Council has published two new tipsheets that are designed to save consumers money.

The new tipsheets discuss product rebates and what consumers should know about contests and scams.

Kent S. Wilcox, director of the Consumers Council, commenting on the tipsheets, stated, "These publications reflect the Council's desire to inform consumers about the problems and pitfalls in today's marketplace and how to avoid them."

"Product Rebates" looks at what consumers should consider when buying a product that offers a mail-in rebate. Among the tips suggested are making sure all the necessary items required for obtaining the rebate have been gathered before throwing away the product's packaging and giving serious thought to whether rebates of under $1 are worth the consumer's attention.

The tipsheet does not cover auto rebate programs.

The second tipsheet, "Contests and Scams," discusses how to spot some of the warning signs of scams and how to avoid becoming a victim.

Wilcox noted, "Many of the more common scams today involve a postcard or telephone call informing a consumer that he or she is the 'winner' of a specially selected 'prize.' Consumers should always think twice about becoming involved with any so-called contest that requires them to pay money in order to collect their award."

"These scams usually result in the unauthorized use of the consumer's credit card numbers with the consumer paying the bill," he added.

Among the more common "prizes" used by con artists to lure unsuspecting consumers are a new automobile, luxury trips to tropical beaches, fabulous gemstones, fur coats and major appliances such as televisions, microwaves and stereo equipment. Unfortunately, the consumer rarely receives the prize or collects an award that is far less than what he or she expected.

Free copies of "Product Rebates" and "Contests and Scams" are available from the Michigan Consumers Council, 414 Hollister Building, 106 W. Allegan Street, Lansing MI 48933; telephone (517) 373-0947 or (517) 373-0701 (TDD for the hearing impaired ONLY).

The Michigan Consumers Council is a state legislative agency which provides consumer information, referral, and counseling services, and acts as an advocate on consumer issues before the Michigan Legislature.

Hospital shop hosts pre-Christmas sale

The leaves are down and so are the temperatures and the days aren't the only thing that won't be long. It also won't be long until Christmas. With that in mind, the Charlevoix Area Hospital Guild will have baked goods and early Christmas bargains available at their annual pre-Christmas sale Nov. 3 and 4 in the hospital lobby.

The hospital shop has been adding to its selection of items for the annual showing. Gift items will include jewelry, toys, stuffed animals and decorative holiday pieces. Hospital guild volunteers will have baked goods and candies available.

It's not necessary to be a patient or visiting a patient to attend the pre-Christmas sale. The general public is welcome to attend. Money raised through the pre-Christmas sale will go toward nursing scholarships and help with the purchase of new hospital equipment.

Hours for the sale will be from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Friday, Nov. 3 and from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 4.

Hospital volunteer Patty Moore prepares items for the hospital gift shop's annual pre-Christmas sale which will take placo Friday and Saturday.

Pool Steering Committee to study fundraising

At the Pool Steering Committee (PSC) meeting Oct. 26, co-chair David Strawbridge announced that PSC has received an anonymous grant to fund a feasibility study by Morris Everett, Jr. & Associates. This study will measure the level of commitment in the Charlevoix area for support of a community indoor pool located at the Charlevoix Elementary School. A series of interviews will be conducted in November and December this year of a cross section of citizens of Charlevoix and the broader philanthropic community of Northern Michigan.

According to Morris Everett, president of Morris Everett, Jr. & Assoc., "the purpose of the study will be to determine respondent's feelings toward the pool project and the likelihood of success of a fundraising campaign."

During the search for a fund-raising consultant, 10 firms were contacted. Each firm emphasized the importance of conducting this feasibility study.

"We learned a lot about fund raising during the interviews of these fundraising consultants," said Strawbridge. "We are grateful to Kiwanis for suggesting this effort which was similar to the process utilized in the selection of a pool architect,–when we learned a lot about pools."

Richard Rathke, president of Kiwanis, said "I think the PSC did its homework in the recommendation of Morris Everett. He has an excellent track record and is well acquainted with Charlevoix as he's a member of the Chicago Club and owns a home on Lake Charlevoix. Also, he conducted a successful fund raising workshop at Edgewater Inn last year."

Ken Weller, co-chair of PSC and assistant treasurer of the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club, reported that $20,000 was raised at the Labor Day auction. "When added to funds on hand in the Kiwanis Youth Foundation plus pledges, we have about $40,000 designated for the Friends of the Pool campaign."

Berne Cannan, PSC secretary, has prepared a display of the proposed pool featuring a model and rendering which will be on display at First State Bank and other places in the area.

The next PSC meeting will be Thursday, Nov. 30 at Charlevoix City Hall.

Checks should be made payable to Kiwanis Youth Foundation, Friends of the Pool, P.O. Box 275, Charlevoix 49720. Persons with comments or suggestions should contact co-chairs Weller or Strawbridge.

City council considers increasing permit fees

The city council will continue consideration of significant increases in planning, zoning and land use permit fees at a Nov. 6 public hearing. (See accompanying chart for comparison of current and proposed fees.)

Councilmen considered the proposed fees at their Oct. 9 works session.

Earlier this year, the council advised the planning department to come up with a revised fee schedule. At that time, councilmen said they didn't feel fees charged cover city costs incurred in dealing with the requests. Some of those costs include staff time reviewing requests, setting up public hearings, publishing notices and sending notices to property owners and residents in the neighborhood affected by a zoning variance request.

Councilmen said they believe the person requesting a variance should absorb the cost of the processing the request.

The revised fee schedule also contains special provisions to cover costs for particularly complicated permit applications.

Those provisions read, "When the City's cost for processing any matter which requires a fee as listed above (see chart) exceeds the standard fee by twenty percent or more, then an additional fee shall be charged.

"No permit shall be issued nor shall any approval become effective until the additional fee has been paid.

"The additional fee shall be equal to the City's cost in processing the matter less the standard fee if the standard fee has already been paid. The City's cost shall mean the total value of staff time spent on processing the matter plus expenses. The value of staff time shall be the hourly compensation of all City employees or independent contractors whose involvement is reasonably required by the review process, including but not limited to the Planner, Zoning Administrator and clerical staff, multiplied by the number of hours each individual has spent processing the matter in question. Expenses mean photocopying and postage charges."

State begins studying ozone

Michigan is taking the lead in a study aimed at analyzing ozone formation and transport in and around Lake Michigan.

Under a memorandum of agreement signed by Michigan, Illinois, Wisconsin, and Indiana, the project calls for intensive gathering and assembly of data, including detailed emission inventories, ambient air quality and meteorological information including wind direction and temperature. Additionally, the project will result in developing a model to be used to develop solutions to this serious air pollution problem.

The study is particularly important in Michigan because the state has experienced unacceptably high levels of ozone in the western part of the state, specifically in the Muskegon and Grand Rapids areas. These high levels are generally agreed to be caused by emissions in Indiana and Illinois.

The study will cost $12 million and will cover more than 60 counties in an area starting from Green Bay, Wisconsin around the southern end of Lake Michigan and up to Traverse City.

Students interested in trip to Russia

Eleven high school students indicated their interest in applying for a June, 1990 trip to Soviet Russia as student ambassadors in the People to People International program at a meeting of the Charlevoix International Club Saturday at Charlevoix High School.

The club is a chapter of People to People International founded in 1956 by President Dwight Eisenhower to foster good relations between peoples around the world.

About 40 parents and youth attended the meeting at which Dan Bourcier, Student Activities chairman, explained that approximately 1800 students from the U.S. would tour 20 cities in the USSR during a 21 day trip., Cost of the trip would by $3300 per person with the money coming both from the students themselves and various fund raising efforts.

Students would undergo a screening process to determine their qualifications and the number for whom funds would be available. A two-day orientation in Washington, D.C. is scheduled prior to travel. A Bowl-a-thon was one of the fund raising activities mentioned at the meeting.

This is the first major project of the group organized in September by former Charlevoix Mayor, Ralph McRae who is its first president. McRae was instrumental in bringing four Soviet visitors to the area early in October.

Ione Veys, state organizer of the Friendship Caravan going to the USSR in 1990, explained to the group various steps involved in arranging such trips.

Davis reps to visit

Two district representatives from the office of Congressman Bob Davis will be in the area to listen to constituent concerns in coming weeks.

Bill Huber will be at the East Jordan Senior Citizen Center from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. Friday, Nov. 3.

Betty Mankowski will be at the Charlevoix County Building from 1:30 p.m. to 2:30 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 14.

Anyone wishing to discuss specific problems they are having with the state or federal government may meet with either of the representatives. No appointment is necessary.

Tell them to look for you in the PagesPlus®, and we'll pay you back.

Fire safety urged

Autumn nights have homeowners lighting up furnaces and fireplaces, AAA Michigan reports.

But many are overdue for cleaning or repairs, causing potential dangers as winter approaches, safety experts say. These hazards, together with others such as faulty electrical wiring and cigarettes falling from the fingers of drowsy smokers, combined to take 176 lives and cost more than $170 million in residential property damage across Michigan last year.

Nearly 65 percent of those deaths occurred in three counties: Wayne, 83; Oakland, 16; and Genesee, 14.

AAA Michigan urges homeowners to review fire prevention measures and practice life-saving evacuation procedures with their families.

Fires occur more frequently in single-family and multiple-unit dwellings than in any other type of building, with a greater loss of life, said Robert V. Cullen, AAA Michigan Community Safety Services Manager.

"Most of these fires start in the kitchen, bedrooms or living room," he said, observing that 17 percent of Michigan's casualties occurred while victims were sleeping.

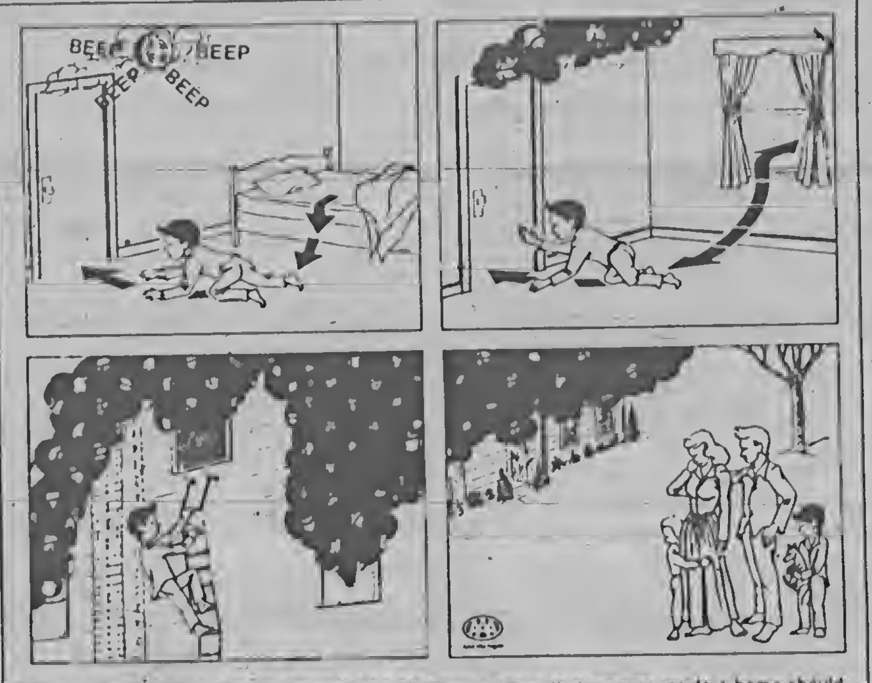
"House fires usually occur between midnight and daylight, so it is essential that each occupant–especially children–knows how to escape in a hurry," Cullen stressed.

"Many deaths and injuries could have been prevented if every home had smoke detectors in good working order," Cullen added. An estimated 80 percent of residences are equipped with detectors, but two-thirds of these devices fail to work because homeowners forget to test the detector or replace defective batteries.

"Smoke detectors should be checked monthly and batteries changed at least once a year," he emphasized.

Cullen said one-fifth of the casualties happen when someone tries to extinguish a fire and is overcome by smoke, instead of fleeing the house immediately.

HOW TO ESCAPE A BURNING HOME



Upon hearing a smoke alarm "beep," AAA Michigan advises that persons inside a home should drop to the floor and crawl low toward nearest escape route. If in bed, drop to the floor, crawl low and check the door with the back of your hand. If the door is hot, escape out a window or other secondary exit. Once outside, meet other household occupants at a designated point away from building. Smoke alarms should be used in every home and emergency fire drills should be held regularly with all family members

Social Security recipients offered advice

The following information was submitted to the Courier by the Social Security Administration.)

People who receive Social Security or supplemental security income (SSI) payments very often forget to notify Social Security when they move or change their address, particularly if they have direct deposit. Failure to notify Social Security of a change of address is one of the most frequent causes of failure to receive the monthly payment.

One reason for this is that a number of people assume it is enough to notify the post office when they change their address. However, the post office only forwards the mail to the new address for 1 year. Then it automatically sends back any mail that is not properly addressed.

Many people have their checks sent directly to their accounts in a bank or other financial institution. Direct deposit makes it unnecessary to wait in line to cash their check and may avoid the risk of theft or loss, and is very convenient.

However, Social Security also sends out important information to beneficiaries that may affect their benefits. If Social Security does not have a current address, the beneficiary may not receive important information that could result in their payment being reduced or stopped without first receiving prior notice.

SSI recipients may have additional problems if they do not report their new address. Their living arrangements are part of the basis on which their payment amounts are granted. Failure to report a change in living arrangements could result in an overpayment--receiving benefits to which they are not eligible or even an extra payment. The law requires overpayments to be repaid.

A change of address may be reported by telephone, mail, or by visiting any Social Security office. A national toll-free number is 1 800 2345 SSA.

If you receive supplemental security income (SSI) checks, you should tell Social Security whenever there's a change in your resources, income, or living arrangements. That way, we can be sure you receive the right amount in your check every month, and you can avoid the hardship caused by paying back overpayments.

Too often, SSI recipients fail to inform us about a change that should be reported and end up being overpaid. Since the law requires the Social Security Administration to recover the overpayment, the money is usually withheld from future checks, resulting in a hardship for many recipients.

Charlevoix County Cropwalk continues to be a success

The Church World Service-CROP Walk took place Saturday, Sept. 16th with more than 105 walkers participating from Charlevoix, East Jordan and Boyne City. Walkers met at the Ironton Congregational Church where they enjoyed hot dogs, pop, and apples.

The following churches in Charlevoix were represented in the Walk: First Congregational, St. Mary's Catholic, Assembly of God, United Methodist, Barnard-Norwood United Methodist, Bethany Lutheran and Community Church of God. Walkers represented a diversity of people, including a four and one-half month old baby who rode in his mom's backpack, a 6 month old baby who was pushed in his stroller, a group of energetic middle school students, plus a mom who carried a seven-year old a short distance to rest some weary legs.

All over this part of the state weekend marches have been part of the fall scenery. Seven Northwest Michigan communities now hold CROP Walks, joining more than 3 million volunteers in more than 1500 towns across the nation.

Michigan alone has more than 107 Walks with over 25,000 participants. Last year $1.5 million was raised. Michigan, for the third successive year, has led the nation in income. Twenty-five percent of the money raised will be used in the local food program. Charlevoix collected over $2,500 and anticipated income for the three towns will be over $6,000.

Johanna Balzer, assistant director of the Church World Service Regional office to organize CROP community hunger programs, reports that relief supplies have been sent to South Carolina and air-freight of material things and cash have been sent to the Virgin Islands.

Cross country team wins regional, will defend state title

Other teams would have eaten the dust of the Charlevoix boys cross country team...if only they could have stayed close enough.

Charlevoix runners ran an excellent race this past Saturday dominating the Class C regional cross country meet in Whittemore. Charlevoix took a fourth straight team title. The Rayders 36 point team total was 65 points better than second place Kingsley and 74 points better than third place Benzie Central.

The Rayders boys took six of the top 14 places in the meet.

Scott Miller led the Rayders, finishing second in the race with a time of 16:09. It was the first time Miller, the defending Class C individual state champion, had not finished first in a race since the 1988 Petoskey Invitational.

Following the regional victory, Charlevoix's boys team will travel to Fenton seeking a third straight Class C state championship.

Julie Bush from Charlevoix's girls team will compete as an individual in the state finals meet. Bush qualified for the state race by finishing fifth in the regionals with a time of 20:49. Bush qualified for the state finals last year. This year she has been battling injuries, but ran her best race of the year at the regional meet.

Top racers in the boys regional race finished in a cluster. Miller finished second in 16:09. Charlevoix's next finisher, Paul Wakulat placed sixth, but was only six seconds behind Miller with a time of 16:15. Bill Crook placed seventh with a time of 16:54. Chris Meier finished tenth in 17:14. Freshman Matt Smith placed thirteenth in 17:24. Mike Sevenski, coming back from an injury, placed fourteenth in 17:25.

Charlevoix's final varsity runner, Tim Henne, placed 54th in 18:55.

Along with Bush, the other girls who ran for Charlevoix and their places and times were: Michelle Jacobs 40th, 23:13; Tracee Smith, 44th, 23:36; Melissa Eaton, 63rd, 24:36; Kendra Olinger, 85th, 25:52.

Charlevoix's junior varsity football team closed out their season with a 58-14 win over Petoskey.

Football team loses finale, misses playoffs

A 27-12 loss to Petoskey which left the Charlevoix Rayders out of the postseason playoff picture provided a downbeat end to what otherwise was a highly successful season.

The Rayders began the season as a question mark in the Michigan Huron Shores League. The Rayders were seen as a team with some speed and some size, but not a lot of depth.

But the Rayders turned heads and gained recognition as they ran off six straight victories. In compiling a 7-2 record, the 1989 Charlevoix team was the most successful Rayder team in the decade of the 80s. They were arguably the best Rayder team since the 1987 squad which finished the year 9-0.

Charlevoix's only two losses were to Northern Michigan Class B powers Cheboygan and Petoskey.

Against Petoskey last Friday evening the Rayders opened strong. At halftime Charlevoix led 12-7.

Jason Corwin led the Rayder rushing attack with 68 yards in 15 carries. He finished the season with 867 yards. Terryberry completed eight passes for 89 yards.

Defensively, Pat Elliott had a dozen tackles, Scott Campbell nine, Tony Warchol eight and Jason Parrish seven. Those players along with Tracy Simpson and Mike Stoneham also applied strong pressure on the Petoskey quarterback.

Informational meeting to discuss tax proposals

The area branch of the American Associaton of University Women (AAUW) will host an informational meeting concerning ballot proposals A and B beginning at 7:30 p.m., Monday, Nov. 6 in the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District office.

A panel of area superintendents will present their perceptions of the effects the reforms would have on Northern Michigan schools. Panelists will be: Graydon Blank, Alanson-LittleField; Robert Hansen, East Jordan; Dr. Frank Ronan, Petoskey; and James Shepard, Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate.

The public is invited to attend the meeting.

E.J. Clinic offers senior health screening

The East Jordan Family Health Center, in cooperation with Northwest Senior Resources, Inc., is offering senior health screening to all residents of Antrim and Charlevoix Counties over the age of 60. This screening includes the taking of a health history, vital signs (height, weight, blood pressure, respiration). It also includes laboratory testing (hemoglobin, stool occult blood, urine, and cholesterol tests), an influenza immunization (in season), a general review of physical condition and health maintenance, instruction of women in breast self-examination, health care advice and appropriate referral, if medically indicated and agreed upon.

Should you be age 60 or older and a resident of Antrim or Charlevoix County, call the East Jordan Family Health Center at 536-2206 and make an appointment.

A donation of $5 is requested, but it is not required. Any donations will be used to provide additional health screenings. We hope that you take advantage of this health screening program.

To the Qualified Electors:
NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that a General Election will be held in the Township/City of County of Charlevoix, State of Michigan within said Township/City on TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 7, 1989

AT THE PLACE OR PLACES OF HOLDING THE ELECTION IN SAID TOWNSHIP/CITY AS INDICATED BELOW, VIZ:

FOR THE PURPOSE OF VOTING ON THE FOLLOWING STATE PROPOSALS:

PROPOSAL A

A PROPOSAL TO INCREASE THE SALES/USE TAX FROM $.04 TO $.04½ PER DOLLAR AND CONSTITUTIONALLY DEDICATE FUNDS FOR LOCAL SCHOOLS

The proposed constitutional amendment would:

1) Constitutionally dedicate to schools:
   a. ½ cent increase in sales/use tax;
   b. Current statutory revenue sources, including lottery profits and some cigarette/liquor taxes;
   c. Increased share of existing sales/use tax (51 to 68 percent) to substantially replace annual school appropriation.
2) Distribute dedicated funds to school districts as provided by law.
3) Activate increased statutory penalty to deny 100 percent of state funds to schools not adopting core curriculum and improvement plans.

Should this proposal be adopted?

YES _____
NO _____

PROPOSAL B

A PROPOSAL TO INCREASE THE SALES/USE TAX FROM 4 CENTS TO 6 CENTS PER DOLLAR, REDUCE SCHOOL PROPERTY TAXES, SET PERMANENT SCHOOL OPERATING MILLAGES NOT SUBJECT TO VOTER RENEWAL, AND CONSTITUTIONALLY DEDICATE FUNDS FOR LOCAL SCHOOLS.

The proposed constitutional amendment would:

1) Constitutionally dedicate to schools;
   a. 2 cents increase in sales/use tax;
   b. Current statutory revenue sources, including lottery profits some cigarette/liquor taxes;
   c. Increased share of existing sales/use tax (51 to 75 percent) to substantially replace annual school appropriation.
2) Reduce property taxes in most school districts. Replace school taxes with permanent statewide millage (9-mills on residential/farm; 14-mills on businesses) plus non-voted local millage not subject to voter rollback. Limit voter-approved increases to 4-mills.
3) Set per-pupil funding guarantees subject to change by law requiring 2/3 vote.

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 8, 1989 ☐ VOL. 105, NO. 47 ☐ CHARLEVOIX, MICH. ☐ 20 PAGES ☐ 50 CENTS ☐ PLUS ONE SUPPLEMENT

Charlevoix cross country coach Pete Spieles found himself hoisted into the air by his 1989 Class C state champion cross country team during an impromptu celebration in the high school parking lot Saturday evening.

Rayders defend state title

In Class C cross country in the state of Michigan there is Charlevoix...and then there are other schools.

Charlevoix's boys cross country team became state champions for the third straight year Saturday.

Dynasty is none too strong a word. In the past eight years, Charlevoix has won five state championships. Twice they finished second. The remaining year of the eight, Charlevoix finished third in state. That was Charlevoix's version of a down year.

At this year's state finals race in Fenton, Scott Miller placed first in the team race for the second straight year as he led the Rayders to a 27 point win over their closest competition, Edwardsburg.

Charlevoix finished with a team total of 70 points. Edwardsburg placed second with 97. Wyoming Godwin Heights placed third with 132 points. Sandusky, which was rated in Class C according to some early season polls, finished fourth with 171 points.

"I pretty much felt Edwardsburg would be the team to beat," Rayder coach Pete Spieles replied when asked how he felt going into the race.

Miller was pushed hard by Jared Glover of Kingsley throughout the cold and windy 5 kilometer (3.1 mile) course. Miller and Glover have dueled often in the past with Miller getting the best of Glover in cross country and Glover returning the favor in the spring during the shorter track races.

Saturday, Miller again came out on top in cross country finishing the race in 16:02, two seconds ahead of Glover.

Bill Crook was the second Rayder to cross the line, finishing eleventh overall with a time of 17:01. Crook, a senior, made the Class C all-state team along with Miller.

Spieles praised Crook's performance in the state meet, but also noted that Crook has been solid and run consistently well throughout the year.

The next four Charlevoix finishers were underclassmen. They'll all be back next year.

Mike Sevenski, a sophomore, finished 15th with a time of 17:10. Sevenski barely missed making the all state team.

There are two races run at the state finals meet; a team race and an individual race. Runners run in one or the other, depending on whether or not their whole team qualifies for state finals.

The 20-man all state team is made up of runners with the 20 best times from the two races. Sevenski's time was the 27th best time in the two races, approximately four seconds slower than the 20th best time.

But that's not the whole story. Runners are given numbered

Hunters must trim deer herd

The Michigan firearm deer season opens Nov. 15 and local conservation officer Roger Bush is hoping Charlevoix County hunters take a lot of deer.

"We need it drastically. A good thinning of the herd," Bush said.

Bush said there are more deer in Charlevoix, County than natural food will support through the winter.

"Come this spring, it's not going to be pretty," Bush replied when asked what would happen if the county gets even average snowfall this winter. He noted that this past spring some deer were lost to starvation in the eastern section of the county.

Bush is encouraging hunters to talk to farmers and get permission to hunt on private land. He said deer have caused heavy damage to crops such as corn, carrots and fruit trees. Some of the hardest hit areas have been south of town near Barnard Road and north of town near Bay Shore and Maple Grove Road.

The Department of Natural Resources (DNR) has issued more than 120 permits to area farmers allowing them to take antlerless deer in order to reduce the deer herd and consequent crop damage.

Bush said he would like to see sportsmen take part in managing the deer herd and correcting the farmers' problems with crop damage caused by deer.

Bush has a list of farmers who have requested deer damage control permits. The DNR district wildlife biologist in Gaylord ((517) 732-3541) also has information about where deer are damaging crops.

Bowhunting season opened Oct. 1 and Bush reports that bowhunters have been doing well. He is encouraging bowhunters to go ahead and take a doe with their first license and trophy hunt for a buck with their second license.

Bush said that during rifle season, he hopes hunters with bonus permits will take does instead of button or spike-horn bucks. He says that will help with the overpopulation problem and will allow the little buck to grow to trophy size.

Letters to the Editor:

Park merits attention

Editor:

The Norwood Township Planning Commission was charged by the Township Board in January of this year to work on development goals for the Fisherman's Island State Park. A committee from the Planning Commission has been working on this since February. The committee did some brainstorming to come up with a few agreed upon preliminary goals. These goals were then discussed and revised with input and clarifying information from DNR administrative officials. The main point that these DNR officials made was that in order to put a DNR officer in this park full-time we would have to agree to a 100 unit modern campground. A modern campground is one that has electrical hookups at each site and there is a modern facility for showers and toilets. The committee has felt that township officials from both Charlevoix and Norwood Township should reach agreement concerning these developmental goals before a public hearing is held on this issue. The work session to each this agreement will take place on November 8, 1989 at 7:00 p.m. at the Norwood Township Hall.

One of the main concerns that the committee has had is damage to both lakeshore areas and wooded areas in Fisherman's Island State Park by ORV's or other 4 wheel drive vehicles. Two guided tours were set up to allow any interested members to view first hand the extensive damage to the park which has already occurred. The committee would like to protect this resource from misuse, abuse and overuse at the present time and at the point in time that it will become a developed state park.

Longtime Department of Natural Resources regional state Parks chief Dave Dilts, Roscommon, says off-road vehicles (ORV's) are tearing up fragile dunes, wetlands and woodlands. Littering and vandalism are also problems, he adds. Rowdy youths have also required attention from law enforcement officers and tormented other park visitors. Dilts says parks officials are having similar problems at other undeveloped parks where there are no full-time personnel to maintain control and enforce rules.

Under Gov. James Blanchard's administraiton, there is no tax money available for operation of parks like Fisherman's Island, Dilts explains. Parks must earn money from users to pay for hiring personnel, Dilts says. Experience, he says, has shown that to earn enough money to staff a park a 100-campsite modern campground must be installed.

Until 1975, Fisherman's Island was State Forest land, which included the present forty unit Bell's Bay rustic campground. In what was one of the region's first successful efforts to preserve shorelands from development, conservationists held off a downstate developer who planned intensive residential development in the 450-acre Fisherman's Island tract, between the state-owned Bell's Bay and Norwood tracts, until funding was approved by the legislature to buy the lands slated for development. Thereby saving this precious lakeshore resource from development.

REASONABLE TO ME

"Just wait," they said

"Just wait until you have kids of your own," people said with an ominous air.

I waited. (You have to wait. Babies are not instant. You order babies nine months in advance and then wait. Sometimes they even get backordered a week or so.)

Now I have a kid of my own. Her name is Katrina Pearl Swanson. She arrived at 11:38 a.m., Friday, Nov. 3 at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

"Then you'll see," said the same people who told me to just wait.

What will I see? I'm watching.

Right now, I'm watching closely because I feel like I'm a step behind both my wife Kathy and my baby Katrina.

For Kathy, the baby became real and tangible a long time ago. During pregnancy, she knew at every instant just how she and the baby were doing. Me, I asked a lot of questions and tried to keep up with developments as best I could. But no matter how many updates I received, I still felt a step removed from the process.

My baby became real to me after she was born and I could hold her. She weighed eight pounds, eight ounces. I guess that's large enough as babies go, but she still seemed small to me when I cradled her in my arms and she rested against my chest.

Katrina is off to a fine start with her father. When I picked her up and held her, she did not cry. Granted, she burped on my shoulder, but she gave fair warning and the burp was nothing of substance.

I watched her face as she gurgled and chewed on the sleeve of a little shirt the nurses put on her.

I constantly analyze things. That's just the way I am. I watch people and things and try to figure them out.

This puts me on common ground with the baby, because at this stage of the game she's doing the same thing; watching things and trying to figure them out.

My baby makes faces. I'm told that's just something babies do. She makes faces when she's awake. She makes faces when she's sleeping.

I watched my baby make faces while she was sleeping. I wondered if babies have dreams or nightmares. But what could babies have dreams or nightmares about? What could they have learned to dream of or to fear? They haven't been around long enough to develop a frame of reference.—

Maybe babies see the birth process as a nightmare.

Our baby was born through a C-section.

Her nightmare. "There I was, floating around warm and comfortable. Suddenly the water rushed out and cold air rushed in. The next thing I knew there were bright lights and people everywhere."

A nightmare for a baby born without requiring a C-section would be different.

"I had a place of my own. It was a little cramped, but I liked it well enough. I had a nine-month lease. Then, one day the lease ran out and you wouldn't believe what happened. The walls caved in and I was evicted. Shot me right out the door."

Kathy seems to think the baby is just experimenting with different facial expressions to see how they work.

That may be true. Perhaps the only significance in the expressions is the significance I attach to them. To a baby, is there any difference in the emotions that produce a frown and the emotions that produce a smile.

From Katrina's standpoint, it's possible the only difference between a smile and a frown is the response it elicits from me. If she smiles, I smile back. If she frowns, I think there must be something wrong and start checking to see what changes need to be made.

If that's the case, then I come to a question that really throws me. Who's conditioning who here? Am I conditioning my baby to smile when she wants me to smile and frown or cry when she wants me to correct a problem...or is she conditioning me to smile when she smiles and correct a problem when she frowns or cries.

This baby's less than a week old and she's already got me wondering if I'm quite as shrewd about some things as I once thought I was.

I've waited, I have a kid of my own now. I'm looking. I'm learning. I'll see.

Out of the Blue

I implore you when you speak
To refrain, if you don't mind,
From calling something "most unique"—
You can't mean "most one-of-a-kind!"

Nuclear nonsense

Does Michigan really need a low-level radioactive waste dump?

Apparently not, if you listen to James Cleary, chairman of the group named to come up with a site for such a facility.

It's high time for Michigan's congressional delegation, including Rep. Robert W. Davis who represents Ontonagon County, to look into Cleary's claims and revise the nation's waste-dump mandate if changes are warranted.

Cleary, who spoke at a mass gathering of N-dump protesters at Ewen High School Saturday, says that from a practical standpoint such a dump is unnecessary. Ewen is located in Ontonagon County in the western Upper Peninsula, one of three Michigan sites selected for the dump.

Cleary said the amount of radioactive waste generated in the country has been reduced by 50 percent since the federal government, in 1980, ordered states to join hands and come up with a solution to the problem of radioactive waste disposal.

He said the 15 dumps mandated by the federal government are now unnecessary, but predicts it will be "an uphill battle" to get the powers that be in Washington to change their minds.

Why? If our lawmakers are so set in their ways that they are incapable of using common sense, then we should throw the rascals out. After all, nothing Congress does is cast in bronze.

Cleary believes that building 15 dumps will be a waste of tax dollars, "not to mention all the social trauma associated with these projects."

Remember, this is coming from a guy who is charged with finding a site for a low-level nuclear waste dump in Michigan.

Cleary obviously is aware that the federal government is a ponderous battleship and changes course only with the greatest difficulty.

But if Cleary knows his stuff, Congress simply must re-examine its earlier order for a nationwide network of nuclear waste dumps.

And it is going to have to take steps to protect watery areas like Michigan from radioactive contamination.

For Pete's sake, doesn't anyone in Washington know enough about geography to realize that a radioactive leak in Ontonagon County could contaminate the entire Great Lakes Basin, the Mississippi River and the St. Lawrence Seaway?

What in the world are these people thinking of? Obviously, it is not the health, safety and peace of mind of people living in the American heartland.

The two other Michigan sites are no better:

A St. Clair County site is located directly above the aqueduct carrying drinking water from Lake Huron to Detroit and virtually all of teeming southeast Michigan.

The third site is in Lenawee County, a flood plain for the River Raisin, which empties into Lake Erie. True, a radioactive leak in Lenawee County probably would not affect Northern Michigan, or lakes Superior, Michigan or Huron, but it could be disastrous for lakes Erie, Ontario and the St. Lawrence River.

No one in his right mind would ever consider locating a dump for radioactive waste in Michigan — particularly one that would have to accomodate the nuclear garbage from six other states for 20 years. Other members of the Midwest Compact are Ohio, Indiana, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa and Missouri — any one of which would be better suited for such a dump than Michigan.

This is the Nuclear Age. I understand that. And we do have to find a safe place to store our nuclear waste.

Unfortunately, Congress has elected to solve the problem on a regional rather than on a national basis. This means that some dumps will have to be located in areas eminently unsuited for them.

The dumps or dump (perhaps only one of them would do) must be located in a relatively arid region on geologically stable land. It must be above ground — not below ground — in a structure so large and imposing that mankind never forgets where it buried its dirty little secrets.

I sort of like the idea of a gigantic pyramid rising in the American West.

It could be quite a tourist attraction.

... Fisherman's Island park debated

The legislature would not spend the million dollars for state forest land. The new state land and former state forest land were then dedicated as Fisherman's Island State Park. The 3,000 acre park has about six miles of Lake Michigan shoreline and is divided into two sections by Clipperview subdivision.

A management plan was approved for the park in the mid 70's, after a series of public hearings. The plan was endorsed by the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners. This plan called for closing all shorelands to vehicles, minimal development, preservation of the park's wilderness and a modern campground off the lakeshore. The Bell's Bay and Norwood roads along the lake were to be closed to public use. The campground and park headquarters, with housing for residential staff, were to be located near the intersection of Witmere and Clipperview roads.

Due to lack of funds, the DNR has been unable to implement this plan, Dilts points out. This, he says, has left the park unprotected. The result has been indiscriminate operation of ORV's littering and partying, Dilts says.

The state, he points out, has spent $1,464,660.00 buying 1,100 acres in the park. It developed the rustic campground at the paved turnaround where residential development had been planned. The DNR provides part-time, seasonal staffing in the park during the summer when use is high.

Charlevoix officials have indicated they endorse closing the road from Bell's Bay to inwood Creek, as called for in the DNR proposal. Norwood Township officials and residents appear to favor the DNR's proposal to dedicate the tract from the south end of Clipperview to the Norwood Township Park as a protected natural area. Some Clipperview residents fear locating the campground and Park headquarters near the entrance to the subdivision will increase traffic by their homes and cottages and intensify usage of the Park.

At the Norwood Planning Commission meeting on October 11th, there were several people both in the audience and on the commission who expressed a great deal of interest and concern about the Park's future. Since that meeting it appears to me that there really are not two sides to this issue. We aren't on opposite sides or even on two sides, rather we are both fighting for the same thing, i.e., protection of that precious resource. That is the Number 1 priority for each of us. It is just that each of us are coming from different perspectives based on our individual knowledge, but we are all fighting the same war.

One of the suggestions made at the meeting was to leave the Park as it is, to drop all the work on the development plans that would be presented to the DNR. But, is this reasonable when based upon the following:

The DNR has spent over one million dollars in acquiring properties for this Park.

There are no additional monies from the general fund to operate the department because of the many new programs with higher priorities. Yet there are many urgent needs and many new responsibilities that the DNR have today that they did not have ten years ago.

There is no longer a DNR officer at the head of the department. He is now a politically appointed director, appointed by the Governor. The commission is also politically appointed.

The older, Aldo Leopold type of DNR management officials are all getting close to retirement or have already retired. These people are being replaced with agressive younger types who may or may not be concerned more about the protection of the environment than the reality in today's financial tightrope of the need to balance the books.

We are located in the third or fourth fastest growing areas in the United States. The developmental pressures in the area from Traverse City to Petoskey is very great. We have been fortunate in that we in Norwood Township have had a reprieve. How much longer can that last?

The demand for camping facilities in this area is very high. The demands on the DNR being made within the legislature is intense. How long can they continue to put it off?

If we continue to tell the DNR NO to any further development; the money situation does not change or gets worse; the protection of the environment and saving the land comes in as a number 2 priority in this case rather than number 1; the new DNR management understands the worth of this property in real cash and the extreme financial needs in their many other parks within the state and the good that could come from this money; and the politically appointed director of this department gets pressure from the Governor - then what?

If the residents of this area tell the DNR that we do not want any further development of this park, how valuable is it to the DNR as it is? Without the money generated by the modern campsite area the DNR cannot financially assign a full-time officer to it. Without the full-time officer how long can it withstand the misuse and abuse? Any of you who understand anything about Lansing know that the numbers and the clout are all in the southern end of this state, not the northern end. Are any of us willing to take that chance? Perhaps this wouldn't happen in the next few years, perhaps not in the next twenty, but impossible? I think not. Yes, there would be an outcry from the residents, but would it be enough? Would you even know about it, until it would be too late?

Emotionally charged issues rarely have outcomes that are thought through or produce well-planned solutions. If all of us are aware of the above factors, I think that we can work together to reach some kind of compromise.

By working together as townships and residents why not set limits on the number of visitors to the Park for day use? Why not set limits on the number of campsites allowed within the park? These are ways to protect this resource, from overuse, misuse and developers. We can also enter into a contract with the DNR that if there are any revisions to the initial plan, we would have to agree to them in writing.

Stopping growth is not possible legally in the United States as yet, but we can work together through planning to manage growth and to maintain our quality of life here.

Charlevoix and Norwood Township officials will be meeting on November 8th for a work session to review tentative development plans for the park, under the guidelines approved at public meetings 15 years ago. The planners wil also be discussing options for preserving the park's naturalness.

FAMILY

AL AND SHARON ZAMJOHN FROST

Zamjohn-Frost

Sharon Zamjohn and Al Frost exchanged "vows of partnership" Saturday, October 14, in an outside ceremony at the couple's Lake Charlevoix home.

The bride's parents are Irene Zamjohn of Minneapolis, and Martin and Mary Zamjohn of Rochester, Minnesota. The bridegroom's parents are Wanda Frost of Dayton and Albert Frost of Augusta, Maine.

Bonnie and Bob Kirchman of North Dakota officiated at the ceremony. Members of the wedding party were Patricia Zamjohn Wimmer of Minneapolis, sister of the bride; Cathie Pedersen of West Germany; James Frost of Hawaii, brother of the bridegroom; and Bob Hooper of Charlevoix.

Greg Wimmer of Charlevoix read a statement on love and friendship, and Bob Hooper read a poem by the bridegroom's great uncle, Robert Frost.

A reception and dance at the American Legion Hall followed the ceremony. Kim, Mark, and Heath Patrie played folk music selections and Clay Patrie was the disk jockey. Pilot Don Ziegler of East Jordan provided an aerobatic show in his red, self-built Pitts-Special. James Zamjohn of Minneapolis, brother of the bride, and Joseph Staudenbauer of Chicago photographed the event.

The bride is a Registered Occupational Therapist employed by District Health Department No. 3. The bridegroom owns Charlevoix Foreign Car Répair and also builds log homes. The newlyweds will spend the winter in Naples, Florida.

Caldwell-Way

Jill Elaine Caldwell and Ron Way were united in marriage Saturday, October 14, at the East Upright Church of God.

The bride is the daughter of Thomas Caldwell of Charlevoix and the late Marlene Caldwell. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Way, also of Charlevoix.

Pastor Floyd Henderson officiated at the double ring rites, in which the bride was given in marriage by her father. Approximately 150 guests assembled in the church, which was decorated with candles and potted chrysanthemum plants.

The bride's gown was fashioned with a lace bodice with a jewel neckline and fitted sleeves narrowing to points over the wrists. The dropped waistline of satin was attached in an apron style in back with scalloped lace and a candy box bow with streamers. Her headpiece was a Juliet style band of covered satin leaves and pearls with a pouf of nylon netting in the back. She carried a bouquet of long-stemmed fall flowers accented with a large bow.

Rene Stoia assisted the bride as maid of honor, and Charlene Martin, sister of the bridegroom, and Lisa Winchester were bridesmaids. They wore plum-colored gowns of iridescent taffeta with bodices of rich velvet and shirred dropped waists. Each carried a single candle with an arrangement of fall flowers.

Jeff Trimper served as best man, with Mark Detmeyer and Craig Klooster assisting as groomsmen. Gary Way, brother of the bridegroom, and Robert Russell were ushers.

Virginia and Gail Rubingh furnished organ and vocal music for the ceremony.

The bride's father hosted the reception at the Edgewater Inn. The bridegroom's parents hosted the rehersal dinner at the Weathervane Inn.

Following a wedding trip through the Upper Peninsula and Drummond Island, the newlyweds are at home in Charlevoix. The bride has been employed by Cotton Harbor, and the bridegroom does residential design work and is also employed by the Dick Way Construction Co.

CHURCH

Donald B. Hazel

Donald B. Hazel Sr., 77, of Charlevoix, died Nov. 5, 1989, at McLaren General Hospital in Flint.

Funeral was Wednesday, Nov. 8, at Brown Funeral Home, 1616 Davison Rd., Flint. The Rev. Gerald Ploof officiated.

Mr. Hazel was born Feb. 18, 1912, and lived in the Flint area until 1972 when he moved to Charlevoix. He had served in the National Guard.

Mr. Hazel was employed at Buick Motor Division, retiring in 1972 after 40 years of service to the company.

He is survived by his wife of 54 years, the former Helen Kennedy; three daughters and sons-in-law, Patricia Donnelly and her husband Frank of Houghton; Mary Ann Schwartz and her husband Paul of Toronto, Ontario; Kathryn Sheffield and her husband Phillip of Flushing; two sons and daughters-in-law, Donald Hazel Jr. and wife Kathy of Flint and Michael Hazel and wife Lois of Lawrenceville, Ga.; 14 grandchildren; six great-grandchildren; one brother-in-law, John Kennedy and his wife Marie of Swartz Creek; several nieces and nephews.

Maria V. Arden

Maria V. Arden, 72, of Charlevoix, died Nov. 1, 1989, at Munson Medical Center, Traverse City.

Private services were held at the family home.

The former Marie V. Syverson was born July 26, 1917, in Detroit, the daughter of Lars and Anna (Deesing) Syverson. She grew up in Detroit and married Julian A. Arden. The couple moved from Livonia to Redwood Valley, Calif. in 1979 and for the past three years have resided in Charlevoix.

Mrs. Arden is survived by: her husband; one son, Christopher Arden of South Lyon and one daughter, Valerie Brownrigg of Ukiah, Calif,; three grandsons; three brothers, Frank Syverson of Petoskey, Lawrence Syverson of Topeka, Kansas and Lars Syverson of Lansing; one sister, Frances Syverson of Troy.

Arrangements were handled by the Winchester Funeral Home, Charlevoix.

Sylvia D. Lockyer

Long time Lake Charlevoix summer resident Sylvia D. Lockyer, 99, died October 22 at the M. J. Clark Memorial Home in Grand Rapids, where she had lived for six years.

She was born in Wall, Cornwall, England, one of seven children of the Rev. Richard and Annabelle Rossall. She was trained as a nurse and used her nursing skills to help others throughout her life. In 1921, she married John E. Lockyer, a native of England who had traveled to the United States and become a Methodist minister in Michigan. She returned with him to Michigan, where they served 10 Methodist churches before retiring from Lawton. The Charlevoix United Methodist Church was one which they served during their many years as summer residents.

The deceased is survived by a sister, Kathlelen Stephenson, of England; a daughter, Mercia Stewart of Pacheo, California; sons Ewart of Dennis, Massachusetts, and Gordon of East Jordan; nine grandchildren; and eight great grandchildren.

Memorial services are planned for November 26 in Pacheo and late next spring in Charlevoix.

BEACONS OF BLESSINGS

By Rev.Robert H. Piller
Bethany Luthern Church

What really is happiness? If we were to judge by the smiling faces, the exuberance, and the bubbling zest for life of those who appear in television commercials, we would have to conclude that happiness is primarily a matter of getting and having things.

If, on the other hand, we were to judge by the daily news that fills those same television screens, we might be inclined to believe that there is no such thing as happiness. Almost all is tragedy.

God's Word tells us that there is such a thing as true happiness, but it is not a product to be sought or bought. It is rather a by-product of a gift that God has already given us. He has given us his love, his mercy and his pardon - all through Jesus Christ, our Savior. Along with these precious gifts he gives happiness: genuine, deepdown happiness which abides forever.

Happiness, Paul tells us in Romans, chapter five, consists ultimately in "standing in God's grace." That means living everyday in the constant awareness of God's forgiving love - knowing, beyond all doubt, that we are his and he is ours and that nothing can ever separate us.

Even in moments of deepest sorrow the Christian knows a joy that can never be erased. It is the joy he has found in Jesus Christ his wonderful Redeemer. Living in this grace led a man to write these words that appear in many hymnals:

"Joy, O joy, beyond all gladness,
Christ has done away with sadness!
Hensc, all sorrow and repining,
For the Sun of Grace is shining!"

Happy is the person who is living in that "Sun" - the Sun of God's unchanging grace and mercy. Storms may come and clouds may gather; earthly treasures may fly away, but nothing can rob the believer of his joy. He knows that for him the Sun of Grace is shining! And in that Sun there is joy forever!

Seniors boogie

The Charlevoix Senior Citizens Center will sponsor a dinner dance Tuesday evening, November 14, at the American Legion Hall.

The pot luck supper will begin at six o'clock, followed by an evening of dancing and fellowship. Music will be provided by the Singin', Swingin' Senior Saints, who invite anyone who plays an instrument to sit in.

Taxpayers forking over more money throughout the county

by PEG OHLE

The property bills that Charlevoix County property owners receive just before the Christmas holidays will total $24,889,615, an increase of $7,029,231 over last year.

And property owners in the City of Charlevoix will contribute $4,256,787, of this amount, or $592,036 more than last year.

This is the largest tax bill of any of the three cities, 15 townships, and one village in Charlevoix County.

Residents of other political units will pay the following amounts of tax: Boyne City, $3,587,261; Eveline Township, $2,633,631; Hayes Township, $2,019,004; Charlevoix Township, $1,587,015; East Jordan, $1,557,105; Melrose Township, $1,408.377; Bay Township, $1,242,673; South Arm Township, $1,131,742; Boyne Valley Township, $1,101,164; Evangeline Township, $883,211; Wilson Township, $706,603; Marion Township, $646,410; Peaine Township, $499,457; Hudson Township, $496,242; Norwood Township, $443,638; St. James Township, $391,729; Chandler Township, $263,011; and Boyne Falls, $34,551.

These figures were prepared by the County Equalization Department based on assessments provided by each individual unit of government, with new structures, land improvements, re-assessments, and inflation acccounting for varied amounts of increased valuation in each unit, as well as allotted and voted millage for operting schools, cities, townships, and the county.

Local and intermediate school districts will receive a total of $18,110,198, or 72.75 percent of taxes collected; townships, cities and villages (including district libraries) will receive $3,695,141, or 15.27 percent; and Charlevoix County (including the Transit System and Grandvue Medical Care Facility) will receive $2,980,945, or 11.98 percent.

City of Charlevoix residents will pay $2,332,298 toward operating Charlevoix schools and the Intermediate School District; $1,242,362 toward operating the city, $398,043 toward general county government, $63,710 toward operating Grandvue, and $21,240 toward operating the County Transit System.

On the bottom line, this means that a Charlevoix resident owning property with a market value of $70,000 and assessed value of $35,000 will pay 54.9 mills, or $1,921.50, in taxes next year.

While all the figures given above pertain only to monies collected from real and personal properties in Charlevoix County, most taxing units also receive federal and state funds in varying degrees to carry on their assigned duties.

Some examples of extra monies received for county operations are state subsidies to judges, subsidies and grants for most programs of the Health Department, subsidies and grants to the Department of Social Services, both state and federal subsidies for the Transit System, and many grants for specific projects for most departments.

Alano Club plans fundraiser

The Charlevoix Alano Club is planning a fundraising dinner from 6 p.m. to 10 p.m., Nov. 12 at the Argonne Supper Club. Entertainment will be provided by Larry Wojcik's Seventeen Piece Big Band. Tickets for the event cost $15.

Founded approximately four years ago, the Alano Club offers a place for people to stop in and be with other people in an alcohol-free environment.

The atmosphere at the club is casual. There's pop in the refrigerator and there's always a pot of coffee brewing. The club, which is located at 104 Mason Street is open from 9:30 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. The club is working toward establishing a 24-hour hotline.

People come and go throughout the day. It is not necessary to be a member of the Alano Club to stop in.

The Alano Club is not affiliated with Alcoholics Anonymous (A.A.) or any other organization. However, A.A. and other recovery groups utilize Alano Club meeting space.

Approximately two years ago, an old three-car garage behind the main Alano building was refurbished and turned into a meeting room. Currently, there are 16 meetings a week which take place at the Alano Club.

The Alano Club is not just for recovering alcoholics. It is for anyone recovering from a problem. The Alano Club has served as a meeting location and place of support for groups such as Narcotics Anonymous and Overeaters Anonymous.

Alano Club is a nonprofit organization. It is supported by contributions, memberships and fundraising events such as the upcoming dinner.

Ed Heise, who serves as manager of the club, notes that people who stop in aren't necessarily people who are recovering from some problem, but are often people who simply support what the club is doing.

Along with serving as a place for people to stop in and be with other people, the Alano Club also serves as a clearing house for information concerning problems people may be dealing with. There is a library of books and pamphlets explaining different organizations and methods which help people cope with problems.

Sr. citizens to host bazaar

The Charlevoix Senior Citizens Center will hold its annual Bazaar and Salad Luncheon Saturday, November 18, at the V. F. W. Hall.

Bazaar items will be on sale from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., and lunch will be served from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m.

The lunch menu will include a variety of salads, desserts, and rolls prepared by Senior Citizens. The price for "all you can eat" will be $3.50.

Vendors are invited to set up a table to sell their wares. Table space will be available for $5. Interested persons should call the Senior Center at 547-5361 during the day, or 547-2790 evenings.

City adopts new rates

The city council adopted a schedule of increased fees for various development permits Monday evening, but not before local businessmen Pete Phillips voiced some objections.

Councilmen said their purpose in adopting the increases was to make those people requesting the changes pay for the costs involved. Councilmen said that current charges don't cover staff time, mailings, publication of notices and other costs incurred by the city in dealing with the requests. Since those costs aren't covered by the fee charged to the applicant, the burden ends up falling on the city taxpayers.

Phillips said he feels the fee increase is a hidden, or duplicate, tax. He said a taxpayer pays millage to cover city costs and then also pays permit fees to cover city costs.

Dave Novotny, who was on the planning commission when the proposal to raise the fees was initiated, said the changes being made primarily affect large commercial projects rather than residential projects. He said that is the intention of the changes because dealing with commercial projects was costing the city much more than the filing fees.

Phillips questioned why the city should be greatly concerned with the cost of reviewing large projects when the projects generally will bring the city far more tax revenue in one year than the city's cost to review the project plans.

Councilmen Norm Probert noted that rather than granting frequent zoning variances, it would make more sense to change the zoning rules which frequently are waived through variances. However, Probert also said he doesn't believe taxpayers should pay the costs for individuals who make variance requests.

Phillips said that the aggravation a person has to go through when they decide they want to do something with their property is bad enough even if there were no fees.

Councilman Ken Whitley expressed sympathy for some of the points Phillips raised, but still said he feels the user (i.e. the person requesting a permit or variance) should be the one to pay for it. Other councilmen concurred and the new permit prices were adopted.

School board hears concerns about school health program

by WENDI WRIGHT

At its regular meeting Monday night, the Charlevoix Board of Education responded to questions raised at an earlier meeting about the Michigan Model health education program. Charlevoix has not officially adopted the program, yet some teachers have had inservice training and are testing the program in their classrooms.

At the request of the board and Vane Smith, elementary school principal, Susan Roelofs-Haughn, of the Traverse Bay Area Intermediate School District, who trains the teachers using the program, gave a brief description of the Michigan Model. She outlined some of the key points involved in the program, including training of teachers' and the health areas covered in the program.

According to Roelofs-Haughn, the Michigan Model was developed to teach "wellness" to children; to help them develop good health habits now, to prevent illness later. The program is funded by both the federal and state governments, and is currently being used in 76 percent of Michigan school districts, involving approximately 800,000 children, grades K-8. The state provides training and all the materials needed to use the program at no cost to the schools.

Roelofs-Haughn told the board the program is comprehensive, and deals with 10 topic areas, including safety and first aid; nutrition; substance use and abuse; emotional and mental health; and disease prevention and control. The program attempts to involve parents as much as possible in the program, she said, by providing a "parent manual," which each student takes home. She said that the program has received a 99 percent approval rate, according to parent survey results.

Roelofs-Haughn said that the program is "updated constantly" by a panel of experts, teachers and a state steering committee responsible for monitoring the program.

Following her presentation to the board, Roelofs-Haughn answered questions from the audience, including those raised by Faye Rostar, who had quizzed the board about the Michigan Model at the board's meeting Oct. 16. At that meeting, Rostar told the board she was representing a group of concerned families in the area.

Rostar raised several questions, as did others in the audience, including:

-Who trains the teachers for the mental health portion of the program, and what are his or her qualifications?

Roelofs-Haughn said she was responsible for training the teachers, and that she held a Masters degree in social work, had been involved in school social work for eight years, and currently practices as a private psychotherapist. She added that training for other areas of the program is conducted by experts in each field.

-Once a school adopts the program, is it required that the school teach all parts of the Model?

"Because it's a comprehensive program," Roelofs-Haughn said, "it is best done in totality." However, she added that if a teacher or a school district did not feel comfortable teaching a particular portion of the program, that would be left to the school's discretion.

Rostar and others expressed the most concern over the "Problem-Solving People," portion of the Michigan Model. One woman voiced displeasure with what she perceived as an emphasis on "short-term" problem-solving, techniques in the program, and said she felt the program encourages techniques which relied on feelings and peer pressure, rather than "a standard of right and wrong."

Roelofs-Haughn responded to this concern by outlining the problem-solving techniques used in the program. She said the program teaches children to examine a problem, their feelings about the problem, and alternative ways to solve the problem. All alternatives are considered, with the help of the teacher, until the best resolution of the problem is determined. She added that this process is used within the context of the classroom to solve the kind of problems kids deal with daily; for example, what to do when someone pushes while standing in line.

Vince Chew, a sixth grade teacher, and Diane Priess, a kindergarten teacher, both spoke in favor of the Michigan Model, as did Janet Rathke, a board member. Rathke said she felt it was "important to enable and empower kids to make healthy decisions. We do a great disservice if we don't teach them to cope in a changing world."

Chew said he felt the program was more of an adjunct of the science program, as it primarily teaches health and nutrition.

Board president Max Novak concluded the discussion by assuring the members of the audience that the board would continue to review the program.

... team wins state title again

tags which they must wear during the race and have on when they cross the finish line.

During the race, Sevenski came across a number which another runner had lost. Sevenski thought the number may have belonged to his teammate, Chris Meier.

Putting the goals of the team ahead of his own goals as an individual, Sevenski paused and picked up the number, planning on giving it to Meier during the race.

As things turned out, the number did not belong to Meler and the pause may have cost Sevenski a shot at this year's all state team.

Meier, another sophomore, was Charlevolx's fourth finisher, placing 22nd overall with a time of 17:23.

Paul Wakulat, a junior, was Charlevoix's fifth finisher with a time of 17:25.. Wakulat ran despite battling the flu two days before the race.

Matt Smith, a freshman, was Charlevoix's sixth runner, finishing 27th overall with a time of 17:29.

Tim Henne, like Miller and Crook a senior, rounded out the Charlevoix team finishing 109th overall with a time of 19:04. Henne ran despite being bothered by a cold.

When asked about the prospects for next year, Spieles answered with something of an understatement, "We've got a good base coming back for next year."

Spieles said that along with the four underclassmen who competed in the state final meet, there are some other runners returning to the team who should be ready to step in next year.

After coaching his fifth state championship team, Spieles was asked if the thrill diminishes as the championships accumulate.

"I get just as excited (every time)" he answered. "Because it's a totally different team. There are different personalities."

Dealing with those different personalities and keeping the various runners motivated is a year-round thing.

For the past three years, there's been one Saturday in late autumn when the cross country team returns victorious as state champions. Fire trucks lead the team through town sirens wailing and lights flashing. The town celebrates the team's triumph in a very visible way.

But what isn't so visible is all of the training leading to the state championships.

Spieles said that the kids who are dedicated and running throughout the year will put in a total of more than 1,000 miles of training. During the summer, junior and senior runners will put in about 400 miles and freshmen and sophomores about 200 miles.

Many of the runners will run five or six days a week and average about five miles a day.

Spieles said the objective in the summer is to get the runners to run regularly, not killer runs, but pleasant training runs.

"...go out and enjoy it," Spieles said of the summer training runs.

This past Saturday, those summer training runs led to something else for the runners to enjoy...the Charlevoix cross country team's fifth state championship.

Soccer champs wear green

The Charlevoix County Youth Soccer program recently completed its 1989 season with the Green team winning both the regular season and playoff championships.

Approximately 60 fourth, fifth and sixth grade students participated in this year's soccer program at Shanahan Field.

The Green team went undefeated during regular season play. The Orange team finished second with two losses while the Red and Blue teams tied for third (or fourth, depending upon how you look at it).

All of the teams were closely matched with the majority of the games decided by only one or two goals.

In the postseason tournament, which took place Saturday, Oct. 28 the Orange team beat the Blue team 2-0 and the Green team beat the Red team 1-0 to reach the finals. Josh Miller scored the Green team's only goal in the semi finals.

For the majority of the final game, the Green and Orange team were locked in a scoreless tie. The game's only goal came when the Orange team was unable to clear a ball from the defensive end and the Green team's Steve Carland scored.

Melissa Boss (52) turns to the basket and prepares to receive a pass from Sandy Fershee (20) during a game against Sault Ste. Marie last week.

Girls basketball team continues losing streak

Things started bad and got worse for Charlevoix's girls basketball team as they lost to Sault Ste. Marie 83-21 Thursday, Nov. 2. The loss dropped the Rayders season record to 0-17.

Sault Ste. Marie jumped out to a big lead early and for all intents and purposes the game was over after only three minutes of the first quarter had been played.

Charlevoix had difficulty executing offensively. Sault Ste. Marie applied a full court press and was quicker to the ball than the Rayders, intercepting several Rayder passes.

Defensively, Charlevoix was unable to stop Sault Ste. Marie's inside game.

Charlevoix trailed at the end of the first quarter 30-9. At the half, the Rayders were down 43-14.

The third quarter has not been kind to the Rayder's this season and the Sault Ste. Marie game was no exception. Charlevoix scored but three points in the third quarter and entered the final period trailing 55-17.

Compared to the first, second and third quarters, the fourth quarter was better for the Rayders, in that it was the game's last.

Leading Charlevoix in scoring was Melissa Boss with seven points. Sandy Fershee and Chris Dillon had some success rebounding for the Rayders.

Once upon a Christmas. . . .

. . . The discovery of the perfect gift was the culmination of a delightful journey through bustling shops and corner hideaways.

It's still that way in the Riverland Old Towns of Saginaw County.

Where the joys of the season are reflected in the faces of shoppers and shopkeepers. And the search for the perfect gift is as enjoyable as the discovery.

Frankenmuth, Chesaning and Saginaw . . . where old meets new.

From Fashion Square Mall and Jacobson's to Manufacturers Market Place . . . to Bronner's and the Boulevard Shoppes . . . to distinctive boutiques with one-of-a-kind finds . . . to shops filled with antiques and treasures from days gone by.

The joy is in the giving. And you'll find the perfect gift in Saginaw County's Old Towns . . . where the search is as much fun as the discovery.

SCRAPBOOK

Work forsaken as hunters go to camp

Sure, not a lot of work is going to be accomplished around town this week. But just think of the fun being had.

With the Nov. 15 opening of deer season, many a Charlevoix man will take time off work and head to the wilderness with his hunting cohorts for an annual ritual known as deer camp.

The deer camp experience varies to some degree from camp to camp and from person to person, but overeating, belching loudly, getting maximum wear out of a single change of clothes, card playing and brushing frost from the seat of an outdoor facility on cold mornings are generally a part of most deer camps.

Following are brief descriptions of some of the camps local men attend -

At least four camps in the Upper Peninsula are attended by Charlevoix men. One of these camps carries the Charlevoix name. "Camp Charlevoix" is located near Smith Crick, west of the Upper Peninsula community of Witch Lake in northeastern Iron County.

Camp Charlevoix was founded in 1960. This will be the camp's thirtieth year. There were 12 original members: Bonnie Nickerson, Keith Nickerson, Ralph Shapton, Lou Shapton, Warren Shapton, Ted Ager, Ken Ager, Wayne Bitel, Ken Cellner, Don Meggison, Chum White and Bruce Henley.

Over the years the membership has changed, but there are still five of the original 12 members.

According to Warren Shapton, there will be eight men in camp for the first week of this year's deer season. This year's Camp Charlevoix hunters will be: Warren Shapton, Chum White, Ken Ager, Bruce Henley, Jim Miller, Mark White, Mark White Jr., and Henley's son-in-law.

Some deer camps are cabins and others are large tents. Camp Charlevoix is a cabin, originally built by a Harbor Springs hunting club.

Sleeping quarters at Camp Charlevoix are six double bunks. Heat is provided by an old barrel wood stove. Pancakes are cooked in the morning on an old restaurant griddle. Other meals are prepared on a gas grill.

Shapton said that last year was an off year in terms of hunting success. He said Camp Charlevoix usually gets six to eight deer when they have a large compliment of hunters. In recent years, with fewer hunters, Camp Charlevoix has averaged three or four deer each year.

"We've had a good camp for many years," Shapton noted. "We have a good time."

Within walking distance of Camp Charlevoix is "Crane Lake Camp," another camp filled with Charlevoix hunters. Crane Lake Camp was founded more than 30 years ago.

Hunters in Crane Lake Camp span two generations and within a few years will probably en-

City receives good prices for both insurance and audit

In a 50 minute work session Monday evening, the city council received good financial news on two fronts: the city's municipal insurance; and bids for the city audit.

The city of Charlevoix is insured through the Michigan Municipal League insurance pool. Charlevoix joined the pool in the 1985-86 fiscal year to control insurance costs. Premium figures since that time indicate that joining the pool has succeeded in stabilizing city insurance costs.

In the five years that the city has belonged to the pool, the city's annual insurance premiums have been: $70,153; $68,993; $69,955; $71,985; and (for the 1989-90 fiscal year will be) $71,167.

"The pool is very stable. I think it's a good investment that the city has made," city treasurer Rick Brandi noted at Monday evening's meeting.

What the figures indicate is that the city's annual insurance premium has increased by $1,014 (less than two percent) between 1985 and 1989, however it is decreasing by $818 from 1988 to 1989.

In a memo to the council concerning the city's insurance premiums since joining the Municipal League pool, Brandi wrote, "We (the city) did increase our deductable from $1,000 to $5,000 in 1986-87 to help lower the cost in an era of soaring liability rates. These premiums are very low and remarkable considering that during this time frame we added the Water Treatment Plant, Public Safety Building and liability insurance was difficult to obtain from commercial carriers."

Brandi explained that when all savings and property valuation increases are factored in, the city's true cost for this year's insurance premium is decreasing by seven percent.

Although the council could not take formal action in a work session, councilmen expressed satisfaction with the Municipal League pool and indicated that at next Monday's council meeting, they will take formal action to stay with the pool.

The Municipal League pool currently insures more than 600 municipalities, townships and public agencies.

The city also received favorable bids from auditing firms for the annual city audit. Thirteen auditing firms were asked to bid on Charlevoix's audit for three years. Eight of the firms submitted bids.

The bids were evaluated on a rating system which awarded points based on price (30 percent), experience and expertise (40 percent) and audit approach (30 percent).

The city also took into consideration previous auditing experience with cities comparable to Charlevoix and the auditing firms' quality control program.

The eight prices submitted (for three years of audits) were on a not-to-exceed basis and ranged from $39,000 to $56,800. Last year the city paid $17,400 for a single year.

After using the point system to evaluate the bids, Brandi recommended that council accept the bid of Rehman Robson & Company of Cheboygan. Rehman Robson was the third lowest bidder with a bid of $42,000.

Brandi noted that the two firms which submitted lower bids did not have experience auditing governmental units similar to Charlevoix.

Councilmen indicated that they are pleased with the savings the city will realize through the bid process and that they will approve Brandi's recommendation at next Monday evening's council meeting.

REASONABLE TO ME

L. SCOTT SWANSON

Lost and gone forever

By the time this is read I may be lost and gone forever.

The last time I drove up to deer camp alone, I got a little lost. There are degrees of being lost you know.

But this time things will be different. I'll probably still get lost, but this time I'll have experience.

Some background. Every year some other guys and I go to deer camp in the U.P. (Upper Peculiar). Normally, we all ride up together in a caravan of trucks, but occasionally one or more of us isn't able to leave at the same time as the main party. This is especially prone to happen when deer season opens in the middle of the week. You'd think the people who make calendars would know better than to schedule a Wednesday on the opening day of deer season.

This year the main party left at 4 a.m. Sunday. I had some things to finish up Monday and Tuesday, so I'm leaving a little later.

A couple of years ago, I left later than everyone else and drove up by myself. This was my previous experience in being lost.

Our deer camp is somewhat off the beaten path. Suitable general directions are, "Drive north through the U.P. to nowhere. Hang a left and go about 20 miles."

Roads on the last 20 miles aren't really roads. They're just old logging trails or in some cases just open spaces between trees. Before embarking on my solo trip, I had my father and uncle conspire to draw a map of the last 20 miles to camp.

When I departed for camp, I did so with this map in my possession. My mapmakers had also promised to mark the turns to camp on their way in. Perhaps these ace cartographers had some premonition that in my hands this map might not be failsafe.

It was well past sundown when I left the mainroads and headed into the backcountry.

Shortly, I came upon my first opportunity to go astray and took it. A while later I broke over a hill in the darkness and found myself in the center of a small cluster of houses which had never before been something passed through on the way to deer camp.

I backtracked and tried a different route. I came to a road which looked familiar. I looked for some type of turn marker, but saw none.

Seeing no mark, I didn't turn. I drove along a road which slowly veered to the left. There were some woods on each side of the road. Eventually I broke out of them and found myself in a place recognized. I was in the midst of a small cluster of houses.

I wasn't having any luck finding camp but I was getting so I could find that little group of houses both forwards and backwards.

I went back to the road which had looked promising. I got out of the truck and found that a paper plate had been tied to the signpost, but had slid down to the ground.

I turned and drove up and down this new road for at least half-an-hour looking for the appropriate excuse-for-a-logging-trail where I should make my next turn. No luck.

I flagged down a couple of guys who were touring around in a truck.

"I'm trying find the Crane Lake clear-cuts. Could you point me in the right direction?"

"Sure, we're headed that way. Follow us and we'll show you where to turn."

The fellows in the truck charged off with me in hot pursuit.

A little way down the road we came upon another truck headed in the opposite direction. The driver tried to flag down the truck I was following, but they didn't see him.

Failing to flag down that truck, he made a better effort with me. He jumped out of his truck and into my path so I had no choice but to stop or run over him.

"What's the problem?" I asked.

"I lost," the guy exclaimed with kind of a wild-eyed look. "Can you tell me how to get out of here?"

Obviously this man was unfamiliar with that Biblical admonition about the blind leading the blind.

Ironically, I had no problem explaining to the guy how to get back out to the main road. I might not have known how to get to where I was going, but I had a pretty good grasp of where I'd been.

After straightening out that lost and kindred soul, I hurried to catch up to my own rescuers. They put me on the right road and I pulled into camp about 10:30 p.m.

This year, I'll again be driving up to camp by myself. I'm hoping to take the direct, rather than the scenic, route.

Joke's On America

It is ironic that at the very time eastern European countries are jubilantly throwing off the shackles of state-control, Michigan's two major daily newspapers — The Detroit News and the Detroit Free Press —are celebrating the fact that they are now licensed to operate by — ta-da! — the federal government.

Monday, on a four-to-four vote, the U.S. Supreme Court agreed to let the two papers enter into what is called a "Joint Operating Agreement" — or a JOA for short.

JOA also stands for "Joke's on America" because licensure of the press has been the anathema of personal freedom ever since the Revolution.

As a pratitioner of newspapering all my adult life, I'm ready to spit type slugs.

What are those eunuchs in Detroit thinking about — going hat-in-hand to the feds and begging them to mettle in their business affairs? This is something the press has tried to avoid ever since the days of John Milton.

The emasculation will be accomplished in various ways, both direct and indirect.

Certainly the amalgamated newspapers will have to file regular financial reports with the Justice Department to show they are playing the game above the board. But even more insidious will be a reluctance of any government-sanctioned newspaper "to tell it like it is."

THE BASIC PROBLEM lies with the infamous "Newspaper Preservation Act," which I felt sure the Supreme Court would strike down as unconstitutional. But the court, like all great deliberative bodies, is a victim of tunnel vision and apparently never went beyond the narrow question of whether the Free Press is a failing newspaper.

On the surface, the court agreed to allow the two newspapers to violate anti-trust laws and split their profits 50-50 for 95 years, starting in 1994. During the first five years, the Detroit News will receive a larger share of profits, reflecting the present financial status of the two papers.

Both the Free Press and the News will continue to publish with separate editorial staffs, but their income from advertising, subscriptions and newsstand sales will go into the same muffin tin.

SO WHAT'S THE big deal?

The big deal is that both papers have surrendered their editorial independence. Do you think that any newspaper that remains in business only because of the good offices of the U.S. Justice Department is going to be impartial in its editorial scrutiny of the Justice Department or any other branch of government?

Not on your life. Consolidation of business operations is bound to have a profound effect on the editorial product.

"For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also," saith the Good Book.

Readers of the Detroit Free Press and the Detroit News have been sold a bill of goods, since they will have no way of knowing which editorial opinions are legitimate and which are being raised as straw men to give each newspaper the guise of independence.

Secondary victims could be the publishers of small suburban newspapers in the Detroit area. Some of them claim they will be unable to compete with one big Detroit newspaper publishing company.

However, I feel their fears may be premature. As Detroit's monopoly press begins to raise its advertising and subscription rates (and it will), I see many big advertisers switching to community newspapers which target relatively affluent suburban neighborhoods.

You don't sell a great many mink stoles in the Cass Corridor.

What lies ahead for Detroit's metropolitan press?

No one knows. The JOA might work if advertisers and readers accept the higher rates and if promised operational economies can be effected. But if the JOA falters, one of the papers could well buy the other, effectively dissolving the amoral monopoly.

Editorial

Postelection comments

Two observations deserve to be made regarding results of the recent election. The first concerns results of the local city council election while the second concerns the big thumbs down voters gave the two state sales tax proposals.

In the local city council election, two incumbent councilmen, F. Earl Muma and Norm Probert were defeated. Muma served as a councilman for 12 years and Probert for four. Whether a person agrees or disagrees with the positions these men took while in office, the two of them deserve to be commended for taking the time to serve the community.

If the philosophy of a government for the people and by the people is to endure, one of the first prerequisites is people willing to take the time and make the time to serve in public office.

As to the second matter, the rejection of ballot Proposals A and B was a victory for taxpayers and, if voters continue to stand strong, will in the long run be a victory for education.

An unfortunate, but prevailing philosophy in Michigan politics and education has been - When confronted with a problem, don't rock the boat and correct it. Just raise taxes and throw more money at the problem so we can continue to live with it.

In clobbering Proposals A and B, voters indicated that they want to see a new political and educational philosophy - When confronted with a problem, address it and correct rather than tax and tolerate.

In rejecting Proposals A and B, voters also rejected some other things which deserved to be rejected.

Voters saw through and rejected the misleading advertisements put out by the proponents of Proposal A.

Voters also saw through and rejected the political arm twisting tactics and hogwash of Governor James Blanchard.

With any luck, the defeat of Proposals A and B will be the beginning of the end for the administration of a governor who, when he sees a problem doesn't hesitate, but instead rolls up his sleeves and "a-tax" it.

Traveling through the Northeast

by PEG OHLE

It may seem like heresy to leave northern Michigan in the colorful month of October, but that is what Bill and I did.

We spent three weeks in upper New York state, eastern Pennsylvania, and in and around the District of Columbia sightseeing, visiting, and retracing family migration several generations back.

There are many oak trees in both New York and Pennsylvania, which add a brownish tinge to the red, orange and yellow of the maples and aspen. When the sun hits the trees on the mountainsides, the whole area seems involved in color, a phenomenon not possible in flatter areas.

It was fun to find a deed dated 1814 in the Cortland County, New York Records Room indicating that an ancestor had purchased property there, and with the help of the local assessor and town historian, we were able to locate it. Standing on the property line half way up a hillside, we wondered why he chose this land, which could not be efficiently farmed, while the nearby valley's soil is rich and productive. Then we thought about cutting down the trees for lumber to build the burgeoning cities as so many early settlers in northern Michigan did. And noting the large herds of dairy cattle in the area, we could envision herds on this hillside after the trees were gone.

Not far down the hills from our ancestor's former land is a sign indicating the location of one of the first schools in eastern New York. It was easy to imagine the family's seven children trodding along a two-track road to learn the rudiments of "Readin', writin' and 'rithmatic".

But the only tangible evidence of a family member ever having lived in this area is a weather-worn tombstone in the old Presbyterian Cemetery indicating tha one of these children later died there at the age of 24.

Cortland County is much like Charlevoix County, with drumlin-like hill formations, family dairy farms, and apple orchards. We were there at apple-picking time, and fruit stands and markets were loaded with local Cortland apples, which are round in all directions and pink in color, which makes them look like a cherub's face.

Some 200 miles east, in Saratoga County, we looked for information about an earlier ancestor. We found the record of a person with the right name, right generation, and a son with the right name, only to discover that this was all a coincidence and he was not who we were looking for. The search now goes to New Hampshire Revolutionary War records.

Saratoga Springs, as many know, is a horse-racing center, where one of the triple-crown races is run every summer. It is also a center for mineral baths and spas, and the home of several fine hotels, one of which is run by the State of New York. Skidmore College, once a girl's school, is now co-educational and has a new campus in Saratoga Springs which seems to be overrun with young men. All in all, Saratoga springs is an interesting, lively city, and a great place to visit.

FAMILY

Martin-Noble

KATHLEEN AND DONALD NOBLE

Kathleen V. Martin of Royal Oak and Donald R. Noble, also of Royal Oak, were married Saturday afternoon, September 23, at th Grosse Pointe Academy Chapel in Grosse Pointe Farms.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Vetting of Charlevoix and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Martin of St. Clair Shores.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Noble of Clawson.

Father Albert Hillebrand officiated at the double ring rites before approximately 250 guests. For the occasion, the bride wore a gown of Italian satin trimmed with beads and lace and fashioned in an off-the-shoulder style. Her veil was waist-length and she carried a bouquet of orchids, roses, and stephanotis.

Virginia Eby of Chicago and Charlevoix served as maid of honor, and bridesmaids were Allison Joseph of Charlevoix, Kristin Puffer of Birmingham, Jean Enderson of Knoxville, Tennessee, Diane Tentler of Chicago, and Suzanne Kane of Chicago.

The attendants wore jade green taffeta long sleeved tea-length dresses and carried bouquets of orchids and pink roses.

Meredith Whims of Grosse Pointe Farms served as flower girl, wearing a dress similar to that of the other attendants. Thomas Noble, Jr. of Agovra, California was ringbearer.

Kevin Deighan of Manhattan Beach, California assisted the bridegroom as best man. The groomsmen were Thomas Noble, Sr. of Agovra, California, James Noble of Livonia, Roy Martin, Jr. of Grosse Pointe Farms, Dennis Martin of Grosse Pointe Farms, and James Martin of Charlevoix.

Music for the ceremony was provided by organist Barbara Solms and trumpeter Todd Jones.

The wedding reception was held at the Detroit Golf Club and the rehearsal dinner at The Lido Restaurant on the Lake in St. Clair Shores.

The newlyweds have returned home after a wedding trip to Jamaica. The bride is a Certified Registered Nurse Anesthetist employed by Beaumont Hospital in Troy, and the bridegroom is a sales representative for Niagra Cutler.

... local hunters flee civilization to enjoy deer camp

This year there will be an even dozen hunters in camp. They are: Bob Geer, John Whitley, Mike Whitley, Kevin Swanson, Dave Swanson, Scott Peebles, Rick Davis, Scott Davis, Don Williams, Bernie Ward Jr., Larry Swanson and Scott Swanson.

Crane Lake Camp is housed in a large tent, a tent approximately 12 feet wide and more than 30 feet long. In the early days, the tent was much smaller, but as the number of hunters grew, the tent grew accordingly. The tent has something of a quilted appearance where different sections were added over the years.

Bunks at the back end of the tent provide hunters a place to sleep off meals of turkey, fish, steaks etc.

Heat is provided by an oil stove which with the exception of a few rare moments of breakdown has kept the tent comfortably warm. Like Camp Charlevoix, Crane Lake Camp keeps an old cream can with a spigot resting on top of the stove to provide hot water.

In recent years, the camp has taken a portable generator and used electric lights.

Cooking is done with a bottle gas oven and stove, a restaurant griddle or a gas grill depending upon what's being cooked.

Last year Crane Lake Camp hunters set a camp record for deer killed, taking 14 bucks. Two of them, those shot by Bob Geer and Larry Swanson, were monsters weighing well over 200 pounds.

For many years the camp average was about three bucks a year. In recent years camp success has skyrocketed. Increased success is attributable to mild winters, timber company cuts which increased food available for deer and changes in the law allowing each hunter to take two, rather than one deer.

One of the most interesting structures housing a deer camp this year was built by Dudley Stevens. Dudley, his father Bill and two brothers Greg and Jeff will be camped in a portable cabin.

The cabin consists of four foot by eight foot sections and will be hauled to the Upper Peninsula on pick-up trucks. When fully assembled, the cabin will be about 16 feet square.

Stevens, built the cabin this fall in his father's barn. He figures it will take about an hour and a-half to assemble in the field.

The Stevens family has been going to hunting camp for about six or seven years. They camp near Michigame, only a short drive away from the two aforementioned camps.

Prior to this year, they stayed in travel trailers. The problem with the travel trailers was room, or actually a lack of room. The gentlemen of the Stevens family are by no means small and frail folks. Travel trailers just didn't provide enough room for them to move about comfortably when wearing hunting gear.

In recent years, the Stevens camp has taken an average of a couple of bucks each year.

Back in the wilderness, about 12 miles northeast of the town of Ralph, is another Charlevoix camp. The camp was built about 20 years ago and is owned by Don Voisin, Dr. Bob Anderson, Dr. Bob Tollas, Richard Pajtas, Robert Winchester and John Frey.

The men listed above, with the exception of Frey, are in deer camp this year. Frey uses the camp more as a base for bird hunting.

Accompanying the men listed will be four of their sons: Dane Tollas, Jason Pajtas, Zachary Pajtas and Vincent Voisin. Jason and Vincent have taken deer with bows, but are looking for their first bucks with rifles.

This camp is also housed in a cabin. The cabin is a modular unit and hauling it back into the woods and putting it together was no small endeavor.

The camp is heated by a woodstove and lit by gas and kerosene lamps.

Don Voisin explained that the hunters like to get into camp and stay there. Occasionally they'll take a drive and visit one of the other Charlevoix camps, but they don't make many trips to town.

Voisin said some of the hunters like to hunt hard while others like to stay close to camp and relax.

Last year there were six hunters in camp. Between them, they took five bucks.

"We love the camp," Voisin said. "We've had good luck there already this year bowhunting."

Closer to home is the Whitley Camp. The Whitleys put up their camp and hunt in the Bells Bay area.

The late Ivan Whitley founded the camp about 10 years ago. His sons Pat, Dane, Dennis and Kevin along with his brother Ken and Ken's sons Gregg and Jason have continued the deer camp.

The Whitley Camp is housed in an old U.S. Army tent which was cut in half so that it now measures about 16 feet by 20 feet. It's heated with a wood stove.

A picnic table is placed in the center of the tent for eating.

Correction

A story in last week's Courier concerning increased tax bills incorrectly read that countywide the increase was $7 million over last year. It should have said the increase was $2,461,326. For the city of Charlevoix, the increase here was not almost $600,000 as reported, but was $314,317.

Percentage-wise, this year's tax bills are 10.20 over last year's bills.

THANK YOU
I am sincerely grateful for the vote of confidence that gives me an opportunity to serve on the Charlevoix City Council.

Bertha M. Brostrom

Bertha M. Brostrom, 90, of Charlevoix, died Nov. 7, 1989, at Grandvue Medical Care Facility, East Jordan.

Funeral was Thursday, Nov. 9, at the Winchester Funeral Home, Charlevoix. Pastor James D. Green of the Bible Baptist Church of Charlevoix officiated. Burial will be in Barnard Cemetery, Marion Township.

The former Bertha Larson was born Jan. 21, 1899, in Turboda, Sweden. She moved to the Detroit area at the age of 20 and in 1925 she married Harold Brostrom in Detroit. He died in 1943.

Mrs. Brostrom was a member of the Farmington United Methodist Church and the Dunord Lodge in Detroit. She moved to Charlevoix from Farmington in 1974.

Survivors include: two daughters, Mrs. Frank (Ruth) Boyd of Charlevoix and Mrs. Bill (Jane) Hoehny of Mesa, Ariz.; nine grandchildren; two great-grandchildren.

The family suggests memorials to the Bible Baptist Church of Charlevoix. Envelopes for that purpose are available at the Winchester Funeral Home.

Stephen J. Sarna

Stephen J. Sarna, 73, of Charlevoix, died Nov. 10, 1989, in Prattville, Ala.

Funeral was at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday, Nov. 15, at St. Mary's Church, Charlevoix. The Rev. James K. Gardiner officiated and burial was in St. Mary's Cemetery, Charlevoix.

Mr. Sarna was born July 18, 1916, in Chicago, Ill., the son of Andrew and Mary Ann (Hanacek) Sarna. He attended Charlevoix High School and served with the Marine Corps in the South Pacific Theater during World War II.

He had lived in the Dearborn and Allen Park area for 30 years and was a long-haul truck driver for commercial carriers in Detroit, retiring in 1973. He moved to Charlevoix in 1976.

Mr. Sarna was a member of St. Mary's Church in Charlevoix; the Leslie T. Shapton Post 226, American Legion and VFW Post No. 1153 in Charlevoix; a member of Teamsters Local 299 in Detroit.

Survivors include: one brother, Joseph Sarna of Bay Shore; three half brothers, Edward Gengle of Melvindale, William Gengle of Chicago, Ill. and Anthony Gengle of Petoskey; a half sister, Mary Richardson of Grand Rapids; several nieces and nephews.

The family suggests memorials to St. Mary's Church, Charlevoix. Envelopes for memorials are available at the Winchester Funeral Home.

BEACONS OF BLESSINGS

by Pastor Duane Nelson
Chrlevoix Church of the Nazarene

Well, it's getting to be that time of year again. Have you noticed all the Christmas sales? Yep, that's right! Thanksgiving is almost here! Hey, didn't Christmas promotion traditionally start after the Thanksgiving holiday? well, anyway...

Let me tell you about a Samaritan man who developed some sort of skin disease that granted him a one way ticket to the outskirts of town. After being condemned to the outside for the rest of his life or until the disease went away (which was unlikely), he joined up with nine other men under the same plight. It wasn't long before he found himself doing everything with these men. They travelled together, ate together, talked together - they did everything together.

One day a man who was known throughout the country side for performing great miracles came walking their way. As this group of men realized someone was coming their way, they, under the code of the law, started chanting together, "unclean, unclean!" This was used to warn unsuspecting people that they were approaching diseased men.

But choked with amazement, they recognized this approaching man as Jesus. They all turned to each other, knowing that he would help, and developed a new chant, "Jesus, Master, have pity on us." And he did. He sent them to the priests and as they were going, they were cleansed. However the eternal truth to this historical event is not their cleansing or their faith, but it is found in the Samaritan man and what he did.

It seems quite obvious in my eyes that all of these men thanked Jesus. Nine of them, I am sure, turned, waved frantically, shouted "Thank you, Jesus!" while not missing a step. But only one exhibited thanks-living more that just thanks-giving. Apparently, Jesus recognized the difference also. (You can read his response in Luke 16:11-19). This Samaritan turned and ran back to Jesus. He demonstrated that the thanks Christ wants is in our living more than our verb giving.

He turns; showing us that we need to live out our thankfulness by getting our eyes off self and back on Christ. He shouts; showing us that we need to live out our thankfulness by letting the world know the cleansing power of a forgiving Savior. He throws himself at Jesus' feet; showing us that we need to live out our thankfulness by offering our humbled lives submitting to Christ's authority for His service. Needless to say, this man was eternally different because of his thanks-living.

Let's try something during this Thanksgiving holiday. Instead of just giving thanks to the Lord over a turkey meal, let's live out our thanks to Christ for all He's done by following the Samaritan man's example. Needless to say, I bet your life will be eternally different too!

Agencies may merge

Two major regional government service agencies serving northwest Michigan may be merged into one agency following a year-long study by an appointed committee.

Northwest Senior Resources (NSR), which serves senior citizens in the 10-county area through local Commissions on Aging, and Northwest Michigan Human Services Agency (NMHSA), which administers the Head Start program for young children and also serves adults of all ages, are being studied for the merger proposition.

Troop 11 Boy Scouts John Chase (left) and Dan Crowley hold up bags which Scouts will be collecting food in. The bags were placed on doors of community homes this past Saturday. This Saturday, Scouts will collect bags which are left on doors.

Scouts collecting food

Charlevoix Cub and Boy Scouts will complete a food drive this Saturday, Nov. 18. Food collected in the drive will be given to the Charlevoix Area Food Pantry for distribution.

Local scouts placed empty plastic bags on doors in Charlevoix and surrounding subdivisions last Saturday, Nov. 11.

On the morning of Saturday, Nov. 18, the scouts will come back around and collect bags hanging on doors. Scouts will not be knocking on doors or disturbing people. They will simply be collecting bags of food hung on doors for the food drive.

The Scout food drive is part of a national program. It was recently promoted by Willard Scott on NBC's Today Show.

Charlevoix scouts participated in the drive for the first time last year. Last year's effort was limited and collected about 400 cans of food. This year's effort will be larger and scouts are shooting for 1,000 cans of food.

Information on the bags explains the program and what types of food are needed. People wishing to participate need only to put the food they wish to donate in the bag and have the bag hanging on their front door by 9:30 a.m., Saturday, Nov. 18.

Grangers receive state awards

Cooperative Extension Service continues to be busy

"Ask the Cooperative Extension Service".

Six thousand, six hundred and nine individuals, groups, agencies, and units of government did just that during the 1988-1989 fiscal year.

The questions ranged from agricultural practices to public policies in a wide scope of fields that illustrates the diversity of services the Extension Service provides.

But it wasn't just answering questions that took up Extension Service time. Director Rod Cortright spent 36.4 prcent of his time working on key Extension services being promoted nationwide. 7.3 percent developing programs, 17.3 percent managing programs, 8.2 percent on inservice and 30.9 percent on other education programs:

Among the key services was a program of controlled grazing on a demonstration and research plot established in cooperation with the Charlevoix County Soil and Water Conservation District. Four grazing operations adopted the practice in 1989 and more are expected in 1990.

Seventeen farm operations participated in a forage testing and ration evaluation program. Over 120 forage samples were tested, with an estimated $21,000 savings in feed costs in a six-month period.

Thirty-five farm operations participated in a workshop aimed mainly at dairy operations to improve profitability through improved forage quality.

Seventeen farm operations participated in a comprehensive soil and manure testing program that included 330 soil tests (15 percent of total cropland in Charlevoix County). The program included measuring manure application rates on most of the farms, and making fertilizer recommendations based on crop needs, soil test results, and manure analysis. Results of the program are expected to save $45,000 annually in fertilizer costs.

One hundred and fifty officials from city, township, and county governments attended one or more of the following programs: Property Tax Education and Training for Board of Review members (in cooperation with the Charlevoix County Equalization Department), Ground Water Protection Education, Solid Waste Management Alternatives, and Training for County Commissions.

The County 4-H Youth Director oversaw the activities of 1,284 youths in Charlevoix County, including 936 in 4-H Community Clubs and Special Clubs and 378 in School Enrichment Programs.

Assisting the Youth Director were 120 volunteer leaders, an increase of 31 over the previous year. Seventeen percent of the 4-H participants live on farms and the remaining 83 percent live elsewhere.

Also, the Extension Home Economist conducted three "Take Heart in the Kitchen" programs in which 120 people participated, a Small Business Conference cosponsored by Emmet, Charlevoix, and Otsego Counties, in which 21 people participated, a Family Community Leadership Conference cosponsored by Emmet and Charlevoix Counties, and arranged for 10 local people to attend a Learn and Lead Conference at Michigan State University.

In making his report to the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners, Cortright noted that the Cooperative Extension Service is really a branch of Michigan State University, providing educational background and research to the local general public.

The Charlevoix County Cooperative Extension Service office is located at 319 North Lake Street, Boyne City, phone 582-6232.

Once upon a Christmas . . .

. . . The discovery of the perfect gift was the culmination of a delightful journey through bustling shops and corner hideaways.

It's still that way in the Riverland Old Towns of Saginaw County.

Where the joys of the season are reflected in the faces of shoppers and shopkeepers. And the search for the perfect gift is as enjoyable as the discovery.

Frankenmuth, Chesaning and Saginaw . . . where old meets new.

From Fashion Square Mall and Jacobson's to Manufacturers Market Place . . . to Bronner's and the Boulevard Shoppes . . . to distinctive boutiques with one-of-a-kind finds . . . to shops filled with antiques and treasures from days gone by.

The joy is in the giving. And you'll find the perfect gift in Saginaw County's Old Towns . . . where the search is as much fun as the discovery.

Discover the joys of the season in the spirited Riverland Old Towns of Saginaw County. Call the Saginaw County Convention & Visitors Bureau today for your free guide to holiday shopping: Toll-free, 1-800-444-9979.

... traveling through America's northeastern states

Our drive southward from Saratoga took us within a short drive of New York City but we opted to stay away from the Big Apple and instead amused ourselves with New York City radio talk shows and political commentaries about the upcoming mayoral election.

All the mountains in Pennsylvania run from northeast slightly southwest with few roads across. However, the highways that run between the mountains provide spectacular views of hills and valleys that could be part of the far west instead of one of the most populous areas of the country.

In Harrisburg, Pennsylvania's Capital City, we visited friends from World War II Navy days and marveled at the way the city has grown since our last visit 10 years ago. The State Capitol building, which has an exterior much like ours in Lansing, has been completely refurbished inside, bringing out the bright colors of the century-old murals and gold trim and creating a clean, clear atmosphere. Perhaps some day Michigan will be able to clean up its nice old Capitol building.

College towns have always interested us, so we were glad to see Carlisle, the home of Dickinson College and once the home of the Carlisle Indian School. The latter served as a boarding school for Indian children from a large part of the United States, including Charlevoix County. Jay Oliver once told us that his mother, whose home was near Susan Lake, was one of several area children educated there. According to Oliver, when his mother was eight years old, she was sent by the government to Carlisle, where she spent five years and completed the eighth grade. During that time she did not come home to see any members of her family.

Lancaster, Pennsylvania is located in the midst of Amish country. There are evidences of Amish life all around, including the many shops selling handmade crafts and the old Central Market.

The Market is located next to the town square and houses about 30 different vendors who sell all kinds of produce, meats, and foodstuffs; homemade james and jellies, candies, pastries, and maple syrup products; handmade toys, dolls, and stuffed animals; hand-knitted garments and quilts; small pieces of furniture; just about everything that can be produced on a Pennsylvania farm, and it's not unusual, onthe small local roads, to see small black Amish carriages whisking along behind a fast-stepping horse.

Lancaster County is dotted with "Plain Schools" run by Old-Order Amish and Old-Order Mennonites. In fact, there are 156 such one-room schools attended by 4,650 children, and the number of Plain Schools is increasing, with five new ones built each year during the 1980's.

There are usually about 30 students in the eight-grades one-room school, taught by a young Amish woman. During the day, the teacher and her students sing songs, compute figures, spell words, read books, take recess, eat lunch, do workbooks, sweep the floor, laugh and pray. There is no science, physical education, computer instruction, sex education, organized sports, clubs, career education, music instruction, guidance counseling and other progressive services and programs common to modern schools.

The Plain Schools are dedicated to the proposition of molding children into Amish men and women, promoting the emotions of faith, teaching group responsibility, providing a moral education, and maintaining cultural traditions. In many ways, there are like the "Christian Schools" which have sprung up in Michigan in recent years.

Again, heading south, we left picturesque Lancaster County for the hub-bub of the District of Columbia and suburban Maryland. With all the tales of crime in the National's Capital, we were surprised to see our grand-daughters' bicycles casually resting against the railing of the front porch of their Maryland home, less than five miles from downtown Washington. The bicycles were there, night and day, for several days, and probably still are.

An important event of our stay there was installation ceremonies of eight-year-old Sarah's Brownie Troop. The hall was full of mothers and fathers (a surprising number of the latter), who proudly clapped for each presentation.

But, perhaps the most interesting news from the ceremony was that the Brownie Leader is an astronomer who works nights at the Naval Observatory. We made the mistake of asking why she works nights. The reply was simple:

"G-r-a-n-d-m-o-t-h-e-r. astronomers have to work at night so they can see the stars in the sky".

Ah, yes.

The Smithsonian Institution has always been one of our destinations in Washington. This year we decided to take a look at the Hirshhorn Museum part of the Smithsonian, where there was an exhibit of the works of English painter Francis Bacon, called by some "one of the preminent painters to have emrged in the aftermath of World War II. He says of his own works, "Anything that's at all accurate about life is always macabre. After all, you're born to die."

After looking at his 30 or so full-size paintings, we wished we were back on the good earth of Charlevoix County, which we were in a few days.

Recyclers to meet Nov. 15

The Recyclers Support Group will meet at 7 p.m., Wednesday, Nov. 15 at North Central Michigan College. The meeting will take place in Room 5 of the main classroom building.

Topics for the meeting are a community battery recycling project and plans for a second regional recycling conference. The meeting is open to anyone interested in learning about recycling and area recycling efforts.

Veterans plan dinner

East Jordan American Legion Post number 227 will host a buffet supper and get-together for area veterans at 6:30 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 18 in the post at 305 Main Street.

Veterans of all wars and those with service organization affiliations are invited to join in honoring and remembering those who fought and didn't come back as well as those who were injured in the wars and are now recuperating at home or in a hospital.

The Legion post will furnish beverages, rolls and condiments. Those attending the buffet are asked to bring a dish of their choice.

Middle school schedules conferences

Charlevoix Middle School parent-teacher conferences will take place from 6:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m., Tuesday, Nov. 21. Parents may call the school (547-3260) to make appointments with their child's teachers.

School board votes to increase pay for substitute teachers

by WENDI WRIGHT

At their Nov. 6 meeting, the Charlevoix school board voted to raise the 'pay' for substitute teachers. According to Gordon VanWieren, school superintendent, and Vane Smith, elementary principal, Charlevoix has had trouble securing substitute teachers in the past, because the system's rate of pay per day was below that of other schools competing for the same teachers.

According to Smith, Charlevoix competes with East Jordan, Boyne City, Petoskey, Ellsworth and Central Lake for the limited number of teachers in the area who are willing to substitute.

VanWieren told the board that he recommended the pay be raised from $43 to $50 per day, stating that amount would allow Charlevoix to compete with the other schools. "We don't want to be the highest, but we want to make it better for our substitutes," he said. VanWieren stated that the $50 amount was right about in the middle range of what the other schools pay.

Smith pointed out that because most of the substitutes available do not live in Charlevoix, they incur travel costs. He said he felt an increase in pay would help absorb some of these costs, making the teacher more willing to substitute in Charlevoix.

SPORTS

Overtime loss finishes season

There seems to be a balance, a law of averages, in the sporting world. For each team which goes unbeaten, there is a team which goes winless.

This year Charlevoix's girls basketball team found themselves on the wrong side of that law. They lost a heartbreaker in district tournament play Monday evening to finish the season with an 0-20 record.

Charlevoix was beaten by Onaway 30-27 in overtime. It was a game which Charlevoix had in its grasp, but slipped away in the final seconds.

With only a few seconds to play, Charlevoix had the ball and a three point lead, 26-23.

But fate didn't smile on the Rayders. Fate didn't even keep a poker face. Fate sneered at the Rayders.

First a turnover gave the ball to the Cardinals. Then Onaway hit a three-point basket, off the glass, with three seconds left in regulation play.

Onaway then outscored the Rayders 4-1 in overtime.

Despite the loss, Charlevoix did see some improvements from earlier season games. Unlike many earlier games, the Rayders did not have a bad quarter where they let the game get out of hand.

The game was low scoring throughout, with Charlevoix trailing 9-5 after the first quarter, but leading 11-9 at the half. Charlevoix entered the fourth quarter leading 21-20.

As she did in most games this season, Melissa Boss led the Rayders in scoring with 12 points.

Runners compete in marathon

Joe Potter

Two Charlevoix residents recently competed in the Chicago Marathon.

Joe Potter carried an American flag over the 26 mile course, which he covered in approximately four hours. The Chicago Marathon was by no means Potter's first. Potter, who turned 59 Nov. 8, has run the Boston marathon three times and the Detroit and New York City Marathons once. He trains by running six to 15 miles per day.

Vicki Voisin also ran in the Chicago Marathon, turning in a time of 4:25.

Middle school girls finish season

The eighth grade girls basketball team closed their season on a fun note this past Saturday with a mother-daughter game and a pizza outing.

Members of this year's team were: Becky Bragg, Carrie Cunningham, Jamie Doan, Ellie Frey, Trina Holm, Jessica Kline, Christy Meier, Melissa Mosher, Amy Parrish, Shannon Rowell, Teresa Seese, Michelle Sexson, Carrie Wakulat and Erin Wright. They were coached by Leanna Mosoryak.

In an eight-game conference schedule, the team posted five wins against three defeats. In the Inland Lakes Tournament the girls placed second and brought home a trophy.

Mosoryak credited the team not only for playing well, but also for their sportsmanship.

She said they worked hard for their wins and also did their best in defeat.

Mosoryak stressed the importance of team unity in the team's success and also offered thanks to the girls' parents for their support throughout the season.

Swap skis this weekend

The Charlevoix High School ski team will host its annual ski swap this weekend in the high school cafeteria.

People are invited to bring in their old ski and general winter equipment between 9 a.m. and 6 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 18. Sale of the equipment will take place from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m., Sunday, Nov. 19.

For additional information contact the high school office.

ORDINANCE NO. 520
CITY OF CHARLEVOIX
SUBDIVISION REVIEW AND ZONING FEE SCHEDULE ORDINANCE

An Ordinance to set fee schedules on matters involving zoning fees and fees for review of proposed subdivisions and to provide for additional fees when the costs to the City significantly exceed the standard fee and includes a determination by the City that a differential of less than twenty percent (20%) between its costs and the standard fee is deminimis and does not justify the added staff time to keep track of or collect an additional fee.

THE CITY OF CHARLEVOIX ORDAINS:

- The following is a fee schedule for plat review and zoning matters.

SECTION I: STANDARD FEE

Subdivision Review
Lot Split Application	$250.00
Plat Review	325.00
Planning Commission
Development Plan Review	$275.00
Rezoning Application	325.00
Special Use Permit Application	250.00
Zoning Board of Appeals
Variance Application	$225.00
Land Use Permits
Sign Permit Application	$25.00
Zoning Permit Application	25.00

SECTION II: ADDITIONAL FEE

A. When the City's cost for processing any matter which requires a fee as listed above exceeds the standard fee by twenty percent (20%) or more, then an additional fee shall be charged.

B. No permit shall be issued nor shall any approval become effective until the additional fee has been paid.

C. The additional fee shall be equal to the City's cost in processing the matter less the standard fee if the standard fee has already been paid. The City's cost shall mean the total value of staff time spent on processing the matter plus expenses. The value of staff time shall be the hourly compensation of all City employees or independent contractors whose involvement is reasonably required by the review process, including but not limited to the Planner, Zoning Administrator and clerical staff, multiplied by the number of hours each individual has spent processing the matter in question. Expenses mean photocopying and postage charges.

SECTION III: REFUNDS

A. Sign permit application and zoning permit application fees shall be refundable should a sign or zoning permit not be issued by the City. Fees for Subdivision Review, Planning Commission, Zoning Board of Appeals and City Council reviews and approvals shall not be refundable unless an application has been withdrawn by the applicant prior to any processing of such application by City officials.

SECTION IV: This Ordinance shall rescind Resolution No. 81-11-2 passed by the Charlevoix City Council on November 2, 1981 and any other ordinance or resolution which conflicts with the provisions of this Ordinance.

Ordinance No. 520 is hereby adopted on November 6, 1989 by the following yea and nay vote:

YEAS: Councilmembers Whitley, Probert, Muma, Russell, Potter & Haggard.
NAYS: None.
ABSENT: None.
Arlene L. Staley, City Clerk Gary N. Probert, Mayor

Schools OK contract to recapture taxes

Charlevoix school board members approved a contract which allows them to recover 25 percent of the downtown development authority's revenue until 1998 Monday night.

A state law allows cities to establish downtown development authorities to capture taxes for improvements in the district. Property values are "frozen" at a certain level during a base year and taxes on any additional property value that the district gains are funneled directly to the downtown development authority for improvements.

The taxes on the new value would have been split between the city, schools, county and other taxing districts.

Under the refund contract, approved by the school board Monday night, $87,625 is expected to be returned each year to the schools by the city. According to city figures, the tax return will begin in 1990 and end in 1998.

School business manager Richard Kelly said the school will begin to collect the funds in the 1990 spring tax collection. The city estimates the total amount of money going to the school over nine years will be $788,625.

Kelly said he is reluctant to estimate what the total will be, because the amount will change as the state equalized value (SEV) of the downtown property changes. He is estimating between $85,000 and $90,000 will be returned to the schools next year.

When the DDA was formed in 1982, property tax values in the downtown area were "frozen" at the 1982 level. When the values increased, all tax money generated by the increase went to the DDA instead of other government units.

The schools lost approximately $270,200 to the DDA, Kelly said during the last millage election. In closed meetings with the city, the school board negotiated a means of returning some of the funds.

"It will certainly help us. We are not in a strong financial position," Kelly said. The school has been using its fund equity, or savings, for two years to balance its budget.

The school district, Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School Distrcit and Grandvue Medical Care facilty, operated by Charlevoix County, are government bodies affected by the DDA.

If the contract is approved by Heart Smart machine purchase ends a year of fund-raising

To understand the significance of the Heartstart defribillator one must know what's behind the little white machine and what's ahead of it.

Behind the little machine which looks kind of like a lap-top computer are pizzas, pancakes, bowling balls, letters, phone calls and a whole lot of community pride and initiative.

Question: How did a machine so small hide all of those things?

Answer: It didn't hide them. It brought them to light.

Last fall groundwork was laid for a fundraising campaign to purchase two defribillators for the city ambulances. The defribillators use electric current to stabilize a heart attack victim with an erratically beating heart.

Patty Sitzema, Nomi Mol and Ralph McRae cochaired the fundraising effort for Heartstart, but many other people also pitched in.

Several people became involved even before fundraising began. The Medical Control Board which helps coordinate emergency services in the area worked with the Heartstart to decided exactly which defribillator would be best suited to Charlevoix's needs. Personnel from the city ambulance and fire departments helped determine where the machines would go in the ambulance, what training would be necessary for ambulance personnel and how the machines will be used.

☐ Things you ought to know about Heart Start, page 3.

Fundraising didn't officially begin until this past February. The fundraising objective was to raise not only enough money to purchase the machines, but also enough to pay for operations, repairs and updates without ever using tax dollars. That objective carried an estimated price tag of $20,000.

One of the first fundraising efforts involved Pizza Hut. The pizza maker donated a percentage of the profit from every pizza sold on a certain to the Heartstart effort. Pizzas for the heart were sold on two separate days.

During the summer, several letters were written asking for both business and private contributions. Contributions resulting from those letters brought in enough money to put Heartstart well on the way to purchasing one of the two machines.

As the Heartstart fundraising drive neared its goal this fall and the community began to view the machines as a reality just around the corner and not as a wish way down the road, the fundraising campaign picked up steam quickly.

Patty Sitzema and John Martin with new "Heart Start" machine.

A Sunday morning pancake breakfast brought money to the Heartstart coffers and put the program into the homestretch.

Finally, on Oct. 1, approximately a year after the Heartstart planning began, a fundraising event took place which put the campaign over the top.

Local bowlers and Paul Bunyan Lanes staged a bowlathon. And these bowlers were serious. They weren't rolling just nickels and dimes. When the pins settled and the figures were added, the bowlers of Chrlevoix had raised almost $9,000.

The heart machines were ordered and received and as of Nov. 7, nine members of the Charlevoix ambulance crew had completed training and are certified to operate them.

Although there is an account at the First State Bank which will accept donations for machine operating costs, the main fundraising effort is now completed.

The community can now look back at fundraising and look forward to living in a safer community.

Ahead-lines

Christmas celebration coming

Christmas may come only once a year, but it will last for a full month in Charlevoix.

The celebration begins the day after Thanksgiving, Friday, Nov. 24, when the city Christmas tree will be decorated.

Children will have the opportunity to ride in the bucket truck and place their handmade ornaments on top of the tree. Hot chocolate and doughnuts will be served and there will be caroling.

The tree will be lit at 5:30 p.m.

Business windows dressed for the holidays will be judged at 5:30 p.m. Firday, Dec. 1. Windows to be judged should be registered with the chamber of commerce. The merchant's association would like to have all the windows decorated before the Open House, Saturday, Dec. 2.

Downtown merchants will host open houses 10 a.m.-8 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 2. Refreshments will be served and shoppers will have the opportunity to hit pre-Christmas sales.

At the open houses, customers will be able to register for gift certificates that can be redeemed at participating shops.

Sue Louiselle also will host an open house at The Country Blossom, a floral and craft shop two miles south of the bridge on Old Norwood Road. To get there, follow U.S. 31 to Old Norwood Road and turn right.

The annual children's film, sponsored by Charlevoix County State Bank begins at 1 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 2 at the Cinema III. There is no admission price and no tickets are necessary for the event. Film to be announced.

The annual Santa Brunch will be held at the elementary school 10 a.m.-noon Saturday, December 9. Children will have the opportunity to buy gifts or make their own. Refreshments are served and pictures can be taken with Santa.

The event is sponsored by Xi Epsilon sorority.

Santa Claus — the one and only — is coming to town by firetruck Saturday, Dec. 16, according to John Martin, fire chief. Santa will ho-ho-ho his way down Clinton Street towards the Christmas tree at 1 p.m.

Residential windows will be judged 5:30-7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 20. Homes should be registered with the chamber of commerce to be recognized. Keep Charlevoix Beautiful sponsors the residential window contest.

Things you should know about new Heart Start

Emergency services personnel and leaders of the Heartstart campaign note that there are some important things people in the community should understand about the recent purchased defribillators.

First of all, the machines don't make CPR (cardiopulmonary rescusitation) any less important. It's still important for the public to be trained in CPR. If anything, the machines make CPR more important in that a heart attack victim who receives CPR prior to the ambulance's arrival now stands an even better chance of being saved.

People should also understand that a defribillator does not actually start a heart that is completely stopped. What it does is stabilize a heart which is fribillating (i.e. rapidly vibrating.)

Charlevoix city fire chief John Martin explains that to the naked eye, a victim whose heart is fribillating will appear the same as a victim whose heart has stopped. A rescuer won't be able to feel a pulse, but when the machine is hooked up, it will indicate that the heart is fribillating and allow an electric shock to be administered to stabilize the heart.

People should also understand that just because rescuers attach the defribillator to a victim, that doesn't necessarily mean the victim is going to be shocked.

The Heartstart machine isn't just for shocking, but is also for monitoring what a heart is doing. The machine will monitor and record what the heart does during the ambulance ride. Attaching the machine to a victim simply allows the ambulance attendants to monitor the heart and means that should the heart begin to fribillate and need to be shocked, everything will be in place. The machine contains a safety mechanism which won't allow a shock to be administered to a heart which is not fribillating.

Pool fund-raising study under way this week

A feasibility study concerning fund raising for a community pool is under way.

Morris Everett Jr., a fund-raiser consultant, is conducting interviews of area residents under the auspices of the Pool Steering Committee.

Everett was selected from among 10 firms interviewed to do the study.

He has been conducting 11 interviews a day of Charlevoix school district residents asking them about their feelings about the proposed pool and raising funds to build it. He also discusses other issues in the community.

The interviews are designed to measure support for a pool fund-raising effort.

Everett also was part of a delegration from the Charlevix area which attended the 17th annual conference of the Michigan Foundations which took place Nov. 8-10 at the Hyatt Regency Hotel in Flint.

Everett attended the conference as the first step of a "feasibility study to determine the potential of successfully mounting a fund raising campaign for the proposed indoor community swimming pool" for the Charlevoix area. As a result of attending the sessions and personal contacts with major grant makers of Michigan, Everett concluded that "there is encouraging support for Charlevoix projects as long as there is evidence of broad-based financial support from the total community."

"Unfortunately, it will be impossible to contact all citizens who may wish to express an opinion regarding the poll and other Charlevoix projects," according to Everett.

Co-chairs Ken Weller and David Strawbridge suggest that anyone who would like to express their ideas regarding the pool project mail their comments to: Morris Everett, Jr., Friends of the Pool, P.O. Box 275, Charlevoix, MI 49720. These comments and ideas will be included in the study.

County finishes numbering

by PEG OHLE

It took just about 10 years of off-again, on-again work, but the numbering system for Charlevoix County has been completed.

Eileen McDonough gave this good news to the County Board of Commissioners at its last meeting.

McDonough, working within the County Building Code Department is the last of several county employees assigned to the task. Previously, the Planning Department and Emergency Services Department were given the job, and several other persons in the Building Code Department preceded McDonough in the assignment.

The system, which assigns five-digit numbers to every dwelling in the county, is not a complicated one, McDonough says.

It all begins with two baselines which bisect the county east and west and north and south.

The east-west baseline begins at the Charlevoix-Cheboygan County intersection separating Chandler and Hudson Townships and continues west along the line separating Boyne Valley and Melrose Townships, on through the south end of Boyne City and the north end of Wilson Township, along the line separating Eveline and South Arm Townships, and finally along the north border of Antrim County at the south edges of Marion and Norwood Townships, ending at Lake Michigan.

The north-south baseline begins at Walloon Lake at the point separating Evangeline and Melrose Townships and continues southward along the Wilson and Boyne Valley Townships dividing line to the Charlevoix-Antrim County line.

The east-west and north-south baselines intersect near the Boyne City Airport.

Houses on north-south roads are numbered beginning at the east-west baseline. Numbers on houses north of the baseline

Learning to see

by Edith Gilbert

While strolling across the bridge the other day I casually remarked to my companion, "Isn't it a shame that the railings don't match on both sides of the channel."

"What do you mean?"

"Well, you can see they are completely different," I continued.

"I can't see any difference," my companion replied. "They are both painted blue."

"That's true. But on the south side the railings are divided, and on the north side they are continuous."

"They look the same to me."

"Look," I persisted. "The south side is much sturdier. there are four rungs and on the north side there are only two. The railings don't match. It's like wearing two different shoes on your feet. Can't you see?"

Can't you see? The phrase rang a bell. My first sculpture teacher used to say that to me as I struggled to do the human figure, when I could not get the bones and muscles of the arms right. I used to think arms were round until she showed me that a wrist is flat on the top and on the bottom. The flat planes revolve around the arm to the elbow. Ah-ha. Now I see!

Fortunately, learning to see is something our Charlevoix kids are being taught in all three schools by dedicated art teachers. And when these kids grow up they will be much more responsive to their surroundings than the young people who never had an art course. Learning to see is just like learning to throw a ball. It takes practice!

The future business people, professionals and home owners will, we hope, have sensitivity to their surroundings, an understanding of scale, an appreciation of design. They may understand what a landscape architect or an interior designer or a photographer is talking about. They may even be able to make a judgement. Is this a fresh approach or is it trite? Is this person qualified or just puffed up? Does this please or offend the eye?

As we continued across the bridge up the hill past Pointes North, I noticed the black gaslight lamp-posts, which have recently been installed as a demonstration project by the DDA on one side of Bridge Street. On the other side of the street, there are still the former street lights, which of course don't match. Now I wonder what is going to happen. Is the DDA's recommendation going to be heeded by the new city council? Does the council see the problem? Are they going to rip out the new gaslight lamp-posts? Are they going to keep one side of the street looking different from the other? Or is Charlevoix the Beautiful going to become Charlevoix the Unique.

As the kids say–beats me!

REASONABLE TO ME

L. SCOTT SWANSON

Late night TV

No matter how articulate and logical you are, there are certain things which you can't explain to a baby.

For some peculiar reason, the baby at our house has taken a liking to late night TV. She's a big fan of Arsenio Hall and David Letterman.

Exactly why the kid likes late night TV, I do not know. Even though she smiles, I'm pretty sure that a lot of Hall's jokes go right over her head. You know how some people are. Always pretending to get jokes even when they really don't.

The kid's fondness for the Letterman show is another mystery. She lives in the same household as a buffalo of a dog, a psycho cat, two birds that enjoy baseball on the radio and listening to the computer printer and a fat, black rabbit that hasn't made an indoor visit since he chewed the phone cord in half. You'd think the kid would have had enough of stupid pet tricks. But no, she likes the Letterman show.

Of course at just more than a week old, she's too young be given free reign with the TV set. She's got to be monitored by an adult.

I'd stay up with her, but circumstances don't allow it. She likes to snack during commercials and given her nonformula diet, I'm no help in that department. So she and her mother are late night TV partners.

Unfortunately, the mother isn't anywhere near as big a fan of late-night TV as the baby is. In an attempt to be a good father and husband, I tried to resolve the situation.

One day when I caught the baby between naps, I picked her up and walked over to the rocking chair and sat ourselves down to give her a good talking to.

"Now, kid," I began, trying to look as stern and fatherly as I could. "You've got to ease up on the late-night TV. Research by prominent child psychologists - don't ask me to name names just take my word for it - indicates that babies who are less than a month old shouldn't be watching a whole lot of TV.

"And when they do, they should only watch educational stuff. You know, Perry Mason reruns, the Beverly Hillbillies, stuff like that."

I paused for a moment to give the baby a chance to respond, to see if I was getting through to her.

The baby crossed her eyes, stuck her tongue out and blew some little spit bubbles. I took this response to mean she was still a bit unclear on the point I was attempting to convey.

"Look," I said. "Aside from the fact that I don't think watching so much late-night TV is good for you developmentally, I also question whether it's good for your mother developmentally.

"Staying up that late makes her tired and she gets the jokes so there's the risk that you could end up with a tired mother prone to snickering. Do you want that on your shoulders?"

The baby kicked her feet out and flailed her arms and hands about her head and face.

"Now, pay attention when I'm talking to you. This is serious," I said, working hard to sustain my stern look.

The baby succeeded in corralling one of her wayward arms when it strayed too close to her mouth and she nabbed the shirt sleeve with her gums. The other arm was warier and stayed away from the baby's mouth so it could continue to wave freely.

"Tell you what," I said. "We'll compromise. We've got a VCR. I'll tape the Hall and Letterman shows. You can watch them all you want, but you've got to agree to watch them at a decent hour."

I thought we had a deal, but later that night the baby proved me wrong. Come midnight, she was up and ready to watch her shows.

Maybe the problem was an inability on my part to communicate with her. But I like to think she just doesn't trust the VCR.

With icy blasts, I sigh.
Will it be an "English" winter —
That lasts until July?

CLOCKWISE

BOB CLOCK

Schools and snow

It's lucky I'm not the guy who decides when school keeps—and when it doesn't.

The kids would have one long holiday from Halloween until Easter.

Take last Thursday morning, for example.

I awoke several times in the wee hours and realized from the sound of the wind that evil spirits were abroad.

At 6 a.m., the alarm went off and I looked out the window. Wednesday night's rain had turned to snow and the street looked treacherous. The cars were caked with frozen snow. Then the clock radio began to announce school closings: Elk Rapids, Traverse City, Cheboygan, Kalkaska.

But no Charlevoix, Petoskey, East Jordan or Boyne City.

I shook the radio thinking more school closing would drop out, but they didn't.

So I raced downstairs and went outdoors. The slush was freezing and the road was slick. Neither plow nor sander had been by the house.

"They can't get those school buses out under these conditions," I told the cats when I went back inside. "It's not a fit day out there for man nor beast."

They nodded their heads in unison as they dove into their breakfast.

I turned on the downstairs radio as I fixed my oatmeal, listening for additional school closings. There were none.

A few minutes later I was on my way to Petoskey, after having scraped a ton of frozen gunk from the car windows. The driving was terrible and I marveled at how macho our school administrators must be, sending out buses to pick up little tykes in such weather.

Petoskey Road was a nightmare and I could just imagine how bad the country roads must be.

When I reached the plant in Petoskey — after a long and arduous journey across Siberia—I learned my fears were justified. Some of Charlevoix's elementary school bus drivers were told to take the kids back home as soon as they reached the school. Older kids were trucked home an hour or so later as the storm picked up steam.

I KNOW THAT canceling school is a tough decision, particularly for dedicated educators who value every minute a child is in the classroom—learning.

But I also know from driving the wintry roads of Northern Michigan for 25 years that slippery pavements and zero visibility are life-threatening. I shudder when I think of a school bus filled with children colliding headon with a logging truck.

Of course, we weren't confronted with such agonizing decisions before the big push for school consolidation a generation ago.

In the olden days, one- or two-room elementary schools were located within walking distance of virtually every farm in the county. High school kids who lived in the country usually boarded in town during the school year, particularly when the weather was bad.

Consolidation, based on the assumption that bigger is better, is now a fact of life.

SO IS SCHOOL busing.

Children who live any distance from school must spend a part of every day riding the school bus in all kinds of weather.

The decision of when to cancel school must be one of the most difficult faced by school administrators in Northern Michigan. They want the kids in the classroom as often as possible; but they also bear a tremendous responsibility if a bus cracks up, runs off the road or gets bogged down in deep snow miles from the nearest dwelling.

My only hope is that when such decisions are made, safety and common sense are the deciding factors — not whether someone in Lansing wants to put the lives of Charlevoix kids on the line.

I also hope our administrators are not influenced by what administrators in other school districts are doing on a particular day, since road and visibility conditions can and do vary drastically from district to district in Northern Michigan this time of year.

City council handles routine business

Charlevoix City Council took care of routine business but didn't pay all the bills at Monday's meeting.

Councilmen approved:

- A site plan for John Cross Fisheries. Cross wants to tear down an old house and replace it with a three-stall garage at the Belvedere Avenue end of his property on Round Lake. The planning commission recommended approval.
- Payment to send Michelle Rick-Biddick, administrator of Water-Air Team Charlevoix (WATCH) to a recycling conference in Detroit. WATCH is financing her time at the conference and Irish Boat Shop is paying partial lodging costs, food and half the registration fee. The city is paying the other half of the registration fee.

If Rick-Biddick can register on behalf of the city, which is a member, the cost will be $195 and the city will pay $97.50. If she cannot register on behalf of the city, the cost will be $230 and the city will pay $115. Probert suggested Charlevoix Township share the cost.

In return for paying half the fee, Rick-Biddick will bring back materials from the conference and highlight specific information the city might want to implement.

- Renewal of insurance for the city with the Michigan Municipal League Liability and Property Pool. For 1989-90, the city will pay $71,167. For 1988-89, the city paid $71,985.
- Awarding the city audit to Rehmann, Robson and Co. of Cheboygan. The firm will audit the city for three years for a total of $42,000. Hill, Woodcock and Schroderus of Petoskey, which had done the city's audits, bid $48,900 for the next three years.
- Election results naming Arlene Staley as city clerk, Cheri Hoffman as first ward councilwoman, Alvin "Butch" Russell as second ward councilman and Patricia Gaskin as third ward councilwoman.

Councilmen did not pay a bill for $900 to Great Lakes Tractor of Traverse City for a bulldozer borrowed for two days. Councilman Norm Probert said he thought the work at Mount McSauba, which the bulldozer was used for, would be donated.

Probert questioned several other bills, including one to Haggard's Plumbing and Heating. The city has spent approximately $5,000 at Haggard's since June, the councilman said.

The bills were often for small amounts, and Probert inquired all the government units, Grandvue will receive $6,300 for 1989-1998. Char-Em will not get funds back.

The school district was the third governmental unit to approve the contract, after the city council and the DDA. The county and Char-Em will have to agree to the document before it becomes binding.

Generally speaking, Char-Em does not favor DDAs, said Jim Shepard, Char-Em superintendent. The district has many DDAs in several of the towns it serves, and each case is different. Some towns might need a DDA to improve a community's economy or reverse deterioration to the downtown area.

But the DDA funding system troubles him, Shepard said, because the tax money is captured by the DDA and not sent to the other government bodies.

"It's actual dollars being taken away from the school district," Shepard said grow larger from the baseline north. Numbers on houses south of the baseline grow larger from the baseline south.

He expects the Char-Em school board will discuss it at their next meeting, Monday, Dec. 11.

Houses on east-west roads are numbered beginning at the north-south baseline. Numbers on houses east of the baseline grow larger from the baseline east. Numbers of houses west of the baseline grow larger from the baseline west.

Houses on the east or south side of a road have even numbers and houses on the west or north side have odd numbers.

In addition to the county being divided into quadrants, each township is divided into number ranges, each of which allows for 1,000 numbers. A quick glance at these township grid maps will pinpoint any person's house when the number is known.

The distance from the baseline and from house to house determines the number given the house. A house located within 50 feet of a neighboring house will have a number closer to the neighbor's number than if he were located half a mile down the road. Distances from the baselines and between existing houses were scientifically measured by a Distance Measuring Computer in assigning numbers to present houses.

Copies of the numbering maps and lists of addresses will be furnished to all emergency services agencies in the county, as well as to public utility companies.

Whether or not they will be made available to other agencies, companies or individuals will be decided by the County Board of Commissioners. Some commissioners have expressed concern that the work done and paid for by the county could be picked up by individuals who would sell the maps and lists for promotional and advertising purposes.

FAMILY

NINA AND CHARLES CAREY

Collins-Carey

Nina Francine Collins and Charles LaFayette Carey II were married Saturday, September 23, at the Central United Methodist Church in Traverse City.

The bride is the daughter of the late Ray and Phoebe Collins of Traverse City, and the bridegroom is the son of Charles and Jeanne Carey of Charlevoix.

The Revs. Dean Bailey and Donald Scranton officiated at the double ring ceremony in which the bride was given in marriage by her brother, Ray J. Collins.

For the occasion, the altar was decorated with candelabra, a unity candle, and arrangements of champagne roses, white carnations, stephanotis, baby's breath, and greens. The pews were marked with candles, baby's breath, and greenery.

The bride's gown was the one her mother wore on her wedding day. It was of ivory satin styled with a sweetheart neckline, tapered chapel sleeves, and full cathedral train outlined in ecru lace. The bride's jewelry, a cross pendant of pearls and sapphires, was also a family heirloom, her father's gift to her mother on their wedding day.

The bride's headpiece was a satin Juliet cap trimmed with a pearl-beaded silk Venise motif which held the waltz-length veiling of illusion and seed pearls. The bride carried her mother's white leather Bible draped with a bouquet of champagne roses, white carnations, stephanotis, and baby's breath.

Mary Lee Kiella attended the bride as matron of honor. The bridesmaids were Lorrie C. DeVol, Lou C. Fay, Penny Carey, Cindy Robb, Marva Spencer, and Lacala Hall. Lauren A. Carey and Kelly L. DeVol were junior bridesmaids, and Sarah E. and Marie F. DeVol were flower girls.

Tom Keie served as best man, and John Yaroch and Chris Papineau were ushers. Peter and Randy Carey, John DeVol, Larry Fay, Peter Pace, and Tom Collins were groomsmen.

A reception at the Waterfront Inn followed the wedding ceremony. The rehearsal dinner was held at the Traverse City home of Cindy Robb.

Following a wedding trip to Ireland and Switzerland, the newlyweds are at home in Traverse City. The bride is an attorney practicing with the firm of Blakeslee, Chambers, Peterson, Dalrymple, and Christopherson. The bridegroom is a licensed contractor and owner of Topper's Painting, Inc.

Schaefer-McLenon

Sheri Schaefer and Kevin McLenon exchanged marriage vows October 21 at the Charlevoix Church of God.

The Rev. Duane Nelson officiated at the double ring ceremony for which the church was decorated with sonya roses, pink carnations, and candelabra.

The bride is the daughter of James and Gloria Schaefer of Charlevoix, and the bridegroom is the son of Richard and Margaret McLenon, also of Charlevoix.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her parents, wore a wedding gown fashioned with short puffed sleeves and a sweetheart neckline edged with lace and beads. Her bridal hat was trimmed with matching beads and she carried a bouquet of sonya roses, pink carnations, baby's breath, and white ribbons.

Organist Ann Fielder provided a program of traditional wedding music.

Sandi Schaefer was maid of honor, and bridesmaids were Carin Joyce and Tina McLenon. They wore emerald green floor-length gowns with velvet bodices and long puffed sleeves. They carried bouquets of sonya roses and pink carnations with green ribbons.

Kaylee Kughman was junior bridesmaid and Zach Sadler was ringbearer.

Mike Kuzmik assisted the bridegroom as best man, and Eddie McLenon and Jeff Skeel were groomsmen. Ryan Them and Kevin Mousseau served as ushers.

The bride's parents hosted a reception at the American Legion Hall following the ceremony. The buffet was prepared by Carrie Edson and music was offered by Jerry Sherlock. The bridegroom's parents hosted the rehearsal dinner at the Grey Gables Inn.

The newlyweds are at home in Charlevoix following a wedding trip to the Upper Peninsula. The bride is employed by First America Bank and the bridegroom by Michigan Scientific Corporation.

CHURCH

James D. Miller

James D. Miller, 51, owner of Staley's Hardware in Charlevoix, died November 14 in Ishpeming.

Funeral services were held Saturday, November 18, at the Community Reformed Church in Charlevoix. The Rev. Robert G. Wilson and the Rev. Lander Carter of Christ Episcopal Church in Charlevoix officiated.

Mr. Miller was born November 23, 1937 in Royal Oak, the son of Lynn S. and Marie Walcott Miller. He graduated from Royal Oak Dondero High School in 1955 and from Adrian College in 1961 with a bachelor's degree in business administration.

On June 17, 1961, he married the former Dorothy J. Kalemkiewicz in Royal Oak. They moved to Ludington and lived there for nine years before moving to Charlevoix in 1970.

Mr. Miller worked for Freedman Art Craft and Irish Boat Shop. He also was a licensed realtor before purchasing the hardware store in 1976.

He was a member of the Charlevoix Lions Club and was active with the club's bloodmobile; a member of the Charlevoix Yacht Club; a member of Christ Episcopal Church, and president of the men's club at the church.

Survivors include his wife; three daughters, Sandra Lynn of Breckenridge, Colorado, Susan Leigh of Charlevoix, and Sheryl L. of Charlevoix; two brothers, John W. Miller of Bartlesville, Oklahoma, and Frederick W. Miller of Glen Ellyn, Illinois; his father-in-law and mother-in-law, Walter and Wanda Kalemkiewicz of Warren.

The family suggests memorials to the Charlevoix Area Hospital or Christ Episcopal Church.

Dr. Michael A. Aleccia

Funeral services for Dr. Michael A. Aleccia, DPM, were held Saturday, November 18, at Immanuel Lutheran Church in Suttons Bay.

Dr. Aleccia died November 15 at University Hospital in Ann Arbor.

Dr. Aleccia was born October 11, 1946 in Detroit, the son of Samuel P. and Catherine T. (Serafini) Alleccia. He served in the United States Air Force and graduated from Wayne State University and also the Ohio College of Podiatric Medicine. Dr. Alleccia served his internship at Providence Hospital in Southfield and his residency at the Veterans Hospital in Battle Creek.

Dr. Alleccia was on the staff of the Charlevoix Area Hospital, Munson Medical Center, and Cheboygan Community Hospital. He had operated a podiatry practice in Petoskey and Cheboygan.

On December 30, 1983, he married the former Dagny Clausen in Suttons Bay.

Dr. Alleccia was a member of Cross of Christ Lutheran Church in Petoskey.

Survivors include his wife; two sons, Michael and Christopher; two daughters, Lindsay and Meredith; his parents; one sister, Sharon Aleccia Rosen of Madison Heights; one brother, Anthony Aleccia of Royal Oak; several nieces, nephews, aunts, uncle, and cousins.

The family suggests memorials to the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department for the Tracking Dog Fund, or to the Immanuel Lutheran Church Organ Fund, Suttons Bay.

BEACONS OF BLESSINGS

by Rev. Bruce E. Hamilton

Someone once said when you think, you will thank. That's what I'd like you to do this Thanksgiving week. Think about the benefits God has poured out upon our lives and thank Him for them.

Have you thought about the worth of your family? Isn't it wonderful to have a wife or husband who stands by you and believes in you? What about a mother or a father who has always seen more in you than you perhaps have been able to see in yourself? The hugs and kisses of a son or a daughter when you come home make even the most miserable day seem brighter.

What about the blessing of friends? How many of you have been off in the woods hunting with a friend? Cold weather and tracking go a lot easier when you are sharing it with a friend, What does it mean to you to be able to pick up the phone and find a listening ear anytime you need it? How often have you found just the words of encouragement you needed in the advice and love of a good friend?

If you are happy in your job, that says a lot about your life. There is something special about doing work that you enjoy. You look forward to each new day and take pride in all that you do.

Have you ever considered being thankful for where you live? Charlevoix is a community of caring, sharing, and giving people. We know the meaning of being good neighbors. If the word about a need gets around, it's rare that folks don't look for ways to pitch in and help meet it.

Don't take your health for granted either. That body of yours is a God given miracle in itself when you think about what goes on inside of it each day. Respect it. Take care of it and life cannot help but take on an even greater joy.

When you think, I hope you will thank. Thank God for all that He has given you and all that He has done in your life. I like the way the Psalmist offers thanks. "Bless the Lord, o my soul, and all that is within me, bless His holy name. Bless the Lord, o my soul, and forget not all His benefits."

Arnold-Schoonover

Betsy Arnold of Charlevoix and Robert Alan Schoonover of Traverse City exchanged marriage vows October 14 at the Opera House in Traverse City. Thomas White of Cornerstone Ministries in Traverse City officiated at the ceremony before approximately 200 guests.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her son, Seth Thomas Arnold, is the daughter of Betty P. Frank of Bay City and the late Percy Frank. The bridegroom is the son of Robert D. and Marilyn Schoonover of Traverse City.

Danielle White assisted the bride as matron of honor and Thomas White served as best man. Hans and Kelly Schoonover, brothers of the bridegroom, were ushers. Molly Arnold, as the ringbearer, was escorted by Shay Thomas Arnold.

Music for the ceremony was provided by Laurie Sears, flutist, and Steve Stargardt, pianist.

A luncheon reception at the Waterfront Inn followed the ceremony.

Following a wedding trip to the Upper Peninsula and Mackinac Island, the newlyweds are at home in Charlevoix. The bridegroom is a realtor employed by Rupp & Keen, Better Homes & Garden, Traverse City. The bride is a homemaker and the mother of Seth, Shay, and Molly Arnold.

NCMC, NMU develop transfer guidelines

New Transfer Guides designed to help students transfer credits earned at North Central Michigan College in Petoskey to Northern Michigan University in Marquette have been developed through the cooperative efforts of both institutions.

Paula Lacey, transfer counselor at North Central, explained that once students indicate an interest in attending Northern Michigan, or ask which courses they should take to transfer to a particular degree program, the transfer counselor points the way to one of 22 Northern Michigan Transfer Guides. The guides have information about Northern Michigan programs ranging from art to water science, and from the popular programs of business administration to education.

Martin Dolan, Northern Michigan's coordinator of transfer admissions and community college relations, pointed out that students will save both time and money, and avoid worry, by following the new program recommended in the Transfer Guides.

Those wanting more information about the Transfer Guides should contact Lacey at North Central Michigan College, Student Services Offices, Petoskey, phone (616) 347-3973.

4-H agent joins staff of Extension

Todd D. Kesner has been appointed the Michigan State University Cooperative Extension Service 4-H youth agent for Charlevoix County, effective Oct. 23.

Kesner is responsible for planning, organizing, implementing and evaluating youth development programs relevant to the needs of Charlevoix County young people. He is working with community leaders to identify opportunities for youth programs and assisting local support groups in securing and managing funds to support 4-H youth programs.

Kesner is also identifying, recruiting, training and assisting volunteer leaders to teach and advise youths in these programs and activities.

He received his bachelor's degree in animal science and agricultural communications.

Roy C. Hayes

Former prosecutor, U.S. attorney returns North

Former Charlevoix County Prosecuting Attorney Roy C. Hayes, who has been serving as United States Attorney for the Eastern District of Michigan, is returning to northern Michigan to live and work.

He and his wife, Jacqueline, and their two children, Roy C., Jr. and Amy Elizabeth, will again take up residence in Charlevoix and Hayes will practice law with the firm of Schureman, Frakes, Glass, and Wulfmeier in Petoskey.

Hayes was Prosecuting Attorney from January, 1975 to June, 1978, and was in the private practice of law in Charlevoix from that time until his appointment as United States Attorney in 1985.

Schureman, Frakes, Glass and Wulfmeier has opened a new office in Petoskey following several years of serving clients in Detroit and Birmingham. In addition to Hayes, there will be three other attorneys in the firm's Petoskey office: Jack Carpenter, who has practiced law in Petoskey for 17 years; Steve Overton, who has been engaged in the practice of law in northern Michigan for 10 years; and Charles F. Glass, a senior partner in the firm who is a part time resident of Harbor Springs.

The law firm will also have a consultation-by-appointment office in Charlevoix.

Winter storms hamper hunter's efforts

The 1989 firearms deer season kill is down because hunters have been kept busy dodging winter storms instead of swamp brambles in pursuit of white tail deer.

Deer kill at the beginning of the 1989 hunting season is lower than last year at this time, according to preliminary counts at the state's Department of Natural Resources field offices and other gathering places for deer hunters.

Wildlife biologist Glen Matthews said the number of deer brought in at field offices was from a quarter to a third less than last year.

The season is off by an even longer shot, according to Ray Neckel, a hunter and salesman at Northern Sports in Petoskey. As an indication of just how miserable the season has been, Neckel said Monday the only buck that came in was one taken opening day.

"I would say it is down by better than a half," Neckel said.

He cited weather as the reason the deer kill is down.

"The deer are staying down and not moving," Neckel said.

There are signs the firearm season is over, at least for some.

"I was out last night (Sunday) and everyone was unloading (shooting) guns at dusk, and you don't usually hear that until the last night of the season," Neckel said.

He believes many hunters decided to bag it and head home.

Neckel said he doesn't think the deer kill will be as high this year because the hunting pressure is off now that hunters have returned home due to the weather and the amount of snow on the ground.

Sandy Snyder of Tri-Rivers Party Store in Indian River reported fewer bucks on their buck pole opening day. Snyder's have had the pole since 1983, but Indian River has had a buck pole for as long as anyone can remember. Snyder only keeps tabs on opening day kills.

"Considering the weather conditions I think we did excellent," Snyder said.

Opening day saw 84 deer. Last year 90 hung from the pole.

Matthews said by all indications hunting was good this weekend, especially Saturday.

"There were a fair number of hunters out," Matthews said, adding many hunters reported pretty good success and many antlerless tags were filled out before hunters returned home Saturday.

Neckel said the season will see more does and fawns killed this year, because hunters will less likely to wait for that big buck.

Matthews said a lot of people will wait to use the antlerless tags, if they think they will not get a buck.

This is a marked change from opening day Wednesday, and than Thursday and Friday when rain then blizzard-like conditions cancelled many hunting forays or forced brief outtings. Instead of plowing though mud and deep snow, hunters remained sequestered at hunting camps or nestled at local pubs.

Matthews said he suspects the kill will be more level throughout the hunting season and that kills should equal last year's by the time the season ends.

"More deer will be taken later in the seaon," Matthews said.

Official numbers from the DNR will not be available until near the end of the season, but another indicator is the Mackinaw Bridge deer counts.

The number of deer on automobiles crossing the Mackinac Bridge to date is up from last year. As of Monday, 4,965 deer were counted, up 722 (15 percent) from last year at this time.

Neckel believes the high counts from the Bridge Authority may not mean better hunting in the Upper Peninsula, but only that people are returning home sooner.

Deer season runs from Wednesday; Nov. 15 through Thursday Nov. 30.

Jeff Ricks bagged a 170-pound, 12-point buck on a Charlevoix area farm. He also bagged a spike buck from the same stand.

Deer Hunter Information Stations set up

Deer hunters heading north this year for the November 15 firearm deer season opener can stop and take an information break at two "Deer Hunter Information Stations" located along US-27 at Clare and I-75 near St. Ignace, from November 11-14.

Department of Natural Resources (DNR) conservation officers and wildlife biologists will staff the special stations to provide hunters with deer hunting literature and answer questions on deer concentrations, hunting prospects, regulations, and places to hunt and camp.

The stations will be located at the John C. Mackie Welcome Center on US-27 at Clare, and at the I-75 St. Ignace Welcome Center, situated 200 yards north of the Mackinac Bridge. Hours of operation will be 9 a.m. to 6 p.m., November 11-13, and 9 a.m. to noon, November 14.

"Last year, more than 4,000 deer hunters stopped at the two stations," remarked DNR Director David Hales. "Now in our third year, this continues to be a fine opportunity for us to talk one-on-one with the hunters, and to exchange a great deal of valuable information."

Department of Transportation Director James Pitz added, "We're pleased to offer the highway centers as a permanent location for the DNR and hunters to meet each November. "Again our staff will assist in having tourist and lodging information on hand at these sites."

An estimated 700,000 hunters are expected to harvest 354,000 deer during the November 15-30 firearm deer season, according to DNR wildlife biologists. Michigan's deer population is estimated at two million.

BRAKE PRICES?
UNTIL THEY PULL THE WHEELS, THEY'RE PULLING YOUR LEG.

Think about it. How do some brake places know what your next job'll cost if they've never seen your brakes to begin with? Answer: they don't.

Fact is, there's no way anyone can figure out exactly what the price will be. There are just too many possibilities.

That's why at Midas, we pull all four wheels before every brake job. To get inside your brakes. To inspect them. To positively determine what's gone wrong. From a nine dollar can of fluid to a new master cylinder.

And when we're finished, we'll give you a pinpoint estimate of the entire job. With a price that won't go up when the job's done. That's our promise to you.

So when it comes time to pay, you'll have a leg to stand on.

International club wins charter

Official recognition has been granted to the Charlevoix International Club.

The group met Nov. 14 with Susan S. Bennett of St. Clair Shores, chairwoman of the Michigan Council of People to People International to receive its charter.

The Charlevoix club is the newest chapter of People to People in the United States. Bennett also presented members with ID cards and lapel pins.

Don Bourcier, member and chairman of the club's Friendship Caravan Project, said the group is helping send a number of high school students to the Soviet Union in June.

Five students have applied for the trip. The club plans to have at least 10 students go from Charlevoix County on the 21-day tour of seven Soviet republics and 24 cities, Bourcier said.

A screening committee which will interview students applying for the trip has been named by international club president Ralph McRae. Committee members are: Bourcier, Darrel Linder, Doris Lundteigen and Charles Bentley.

McRae recently attend the international convention of People to People International in Kansas City, Mo.

Susan Bennett of the Michigan Council of People to People International gives a club charter to Ralph McRae, president of Charlevoix's International Club. The Charlevoix chapter is the newest member of the group in the United States.

Efforts to start Charlevoix's chapter of People to People began following a trip by McRae to the Soviet Union several years ago. McRae recently worked to bring Soviet visitors to the city through the international club and other volunteers.

The international club is open to new members. Anyone interested in joining the club should contact McRae at 547-6764.

Chamber planning annual meeting Dec. 7

The Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce will hold its annual meeting Thursday, December 7, at the Grey Gables Inn, beginning at 6:30.

The meeting will open with the presentation of awards, followed by a talk by Lieutenant Commander J. Richard Lynch, commanding officer of the U. S. Coast Guard Cutter Mesquite. He will note the observance of the 200th anniversary of the Coast Guard and its many years of operation in the service to the Charlevoix area.

A social hour with hors d'oeuvres provided by the Charlevoix County State Bank and the announcement of new directors will complete the evening.

There are presently four candidates for positions on the Chamber's Board of Directors. They are John Ferguson of Ferguson & Chamberlain Associates, Inc ., Donald Voisin of Charlevoix-Agency, Inc., Kirby Dipert of Davis Chevrolet-Buick, and Robert Hoffman, C.P.A.

Further nominations may be made in writing, signed by not less than three members of the Chamber, and filed with the Executive Director by November 27.

The new directors will replace John Campbell of Site Planning Development, Inc., Jeff Porter, D.D.S., and LoAnne Brown of Charlevoix County State Bank.

Water levels fall below average

The November Newsletter of the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers indicates that during October, the water levels of Lakes Michigan-Charlevoix were below their long-term average, and are expected to remain so for the next six months.

It is forecast that by next April the difference from the long-term monthly average will be minus 18 centimeters.

An Invitation to Northern Michigan
ELEMENTARY EDUCATION TEACHING PROFESSIONALS From:
MICHIGAN STATE UNIVERSITY'S COLLEGE OF HUMAN ECOLOGY

We need to hear from you! Teaching professionals throughout northern Michigan increasingly require "close to home" access to continuing professional education programs and services. This may be the case for you.

MSU's College of Human Ecology is currently conducting a state-wide survey of elementary education teaching professionals and curriculum directors.

If you are interested in adding an Early Childhood (ZA) Endorsement to your teaching certificate and/or in completing a Master of Arts in Child Development and wish to receive a copy of the MSU Interest Inventory, please call or write:

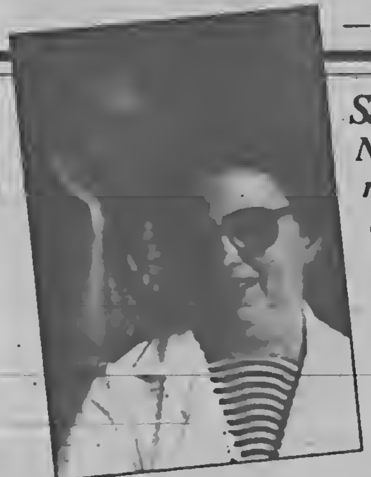
"Each Thanksgiving, I thank the Lord for giving me extra time with my family, and for providing the doctors and nurses who knew what they were doing."

—Doris Stein of Kingsley



She's not alone. Hundreds of others have benefited from the 17 years the Northern Michigan Heart Center in Petoskey has spent successfully diagnosing, treating, rehabilitating and preventing heart disease. A quality of cardiac care and experience with no equal in northern Michigan. And, the stories of these special people prove we all have something to be thankful for. To have this quality of cardiovascular care so close to home.

In August of 1985, Doris Stein began to feel pain and pressure in her back and across her chest. After testing, an area doctor found a blockage in one of Doris' main arteries. Balloon angioplasty was recommended, either in Petoskey or Grand Rapids.

"The decision was easy for us," said Doris, since she had been told of the excellence of care at Northern Michigan Hospitals. Doris arrived at the hospital in a motor home borrowed from her son-in-law. "My granddaughter was at my side the entire trip—worrying and sniffling," recalled Doris. Ironically, it was her 35th Wedding Anniversary.

"The nurses brought us an anniversary cake and everything," she said. After surgery, Doris was discharged with orders to make changes in her diet and exercise habits. Today, she's back on the job in a Traverse City machine shop. Asked how her life has changed, Doris replied, "It's just as busy!"

"We've become very good friends with our doctor. He's a great guy, not only as a doctor, but as a person as well."
—Jack and Ruth Larson of Millersburg

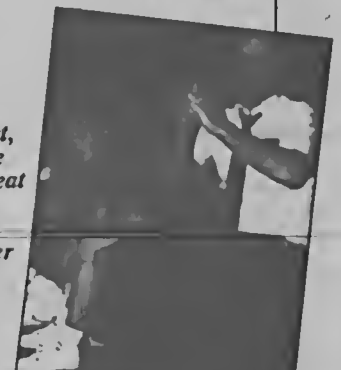
Jack Larson had a heart attack in 1984, when he was ice fishing in Canada. "I began to have chest pain and shortness of breath. I remember thinking this was it," explained Jack. After a second heart attack in 1987, open heart surgery became inevitable, and was successfully performed at Northern Michigan Hospitals.

Two years later, Jack's wife failed a stress test. According to Ruth, "I've never had any indication of heart trouble. I could always outdo him—piling wood and walking." A Burns Clinic cardiologist determined Ruth was a 'silent sufferer.' The 99 percent blockage would've caused a fatal heart attack left untreated. In 1989, Ruth successfully underwent open heart surgery. Both Jack and Ruth have a positive attitude and fondness for the physicians and nurses at Northern Michigan Hospitals. And they're grateful for the quality of care they received. As Jack aptly put it, "You've got to be thankful for every day you get."

"I'm thankful I'm alive and I look at things differently—my family, my wife, my home—and the medical facility."
—Ken Boss of Charlevoix

A sharp, stabbing pain crossed Ken Boss's chest last February. But, the last thing this 52-year-old expected was heart trouble. He hunted, fished and enjoyed snowmobiling. This pain must be indigestion. But, the next day at work, the pain returned. And this time Ken knew "something was wrong." He left his job, as Vice-President of Marketing for Puff's of Petoskey, and drove himself to the Emergency Department at Northern Michigan Hospitals. The physician there administered nitroglycerine to relieve Ken's pain and admitted him to the hospital for observation. The following day, the balloon angioplasty Ken was scheduled for was scrapped after the blockage revealed was too severe. Instead, Ken underwent open heart bypass surgery. "The professionalism of every one of the doctors was unbelievable," Ken said.

The rehabilitation program afterward, according to Ken, "got me going again." Today, Ken remarks, "I feel better than I have for some time." Ken's wife is pleased with his lifestyle changes. And Ken is thankful for many things. "This Thanksgiving is going to be special for me because of the work you folks did there. I am thankful we have a facility like this one in the immediate area."



"I used to cheat, but I guarantee you, I don't cheat now. In fact, I never eat red meat and I never miss church."
—Russ Soffredine of Gaylord

In November of 1987, Russ Soffredine had his first warning. "I just returned from driving one of my daughters to college in Alpena. I had heartburn." Russ took an antacid and the pain stopped. But, Sunday it returned. This time, his wife persuaded him to go to the hospital.

He failed the EKG and was referred to Northern Michigan Hospitals and a Burns Clinic cardiologist. A cardiac catheterization revealed a 95 percent blockage which balloon angioplasty successfully opened.

Russ returned to his job, coaching 80 kids in basketball, a changed man. He quit smoking, drinking, eating red meat, dairy products and fried foods. And, he began walking. Four miles to school. Ten to twelve miles a day during the Summer. Since his angioplasty Russ has a winning record on the court and in the classroom—helping 59 more 6th graders graduate to the 7th grade. He attributes his successes to his students. "That's not me, that's the kids. I have good kids—they spend a lot of time at it."

2. Delete Section 6.06 (4-j)-Permit Required for Planned Unit Development. The following shall be deleted.

All land that is left in a totally natural state shall be counted as eligible for one additional "bonus" residential unit per lot area-density requirement as allowed by the zoning ordinance in that district.

I.e., a 100 acre P.U.D. in A-1 can have 10 initial residential units plus one "bonus" residential unit for every 10 acres of land left in a totally natural state.

The "bonus" acreage will be measured from the set-back requirements of the zoning district the P.U.D. is located in.

The purpose of this section is to encourage more open, totally natural area by allowing the developer more residential units per zoning district than normally allowed.

Any questions or comments may be directd to William Henne, Chairman, 08347 Boyne City Road, Charlevoix, Michigan or Ethel Knepp, Secretary, 10772 Burnett Rd, Charlevoix, Michigan.

about the bidding process for city purchases.

If the city is buying something for more than $50, three calls are usually made to competing stores to check prices, explaind city treasurer Richard Brandi. If the city wants maintenance on something bought from the stores, there might be a different policy, he said.

The bills for Haggard's could also include a tractor exchange, which allows the city to return used tractors to the store, Brandi said:

Councilmen Alvin "Butch" Russell and Ken Whitley agreed that the city should spread its plumbing purchases to other businesses in town. It would look better, Whitley said.

After the meeting, Brandi and Probert discussed the bills. People get into routines of doing business with one company sometimes, but they usually only have to be reminded once or twice before they start checking prices again.

He also said if bills paid since June were added up, the totals might be surprising.

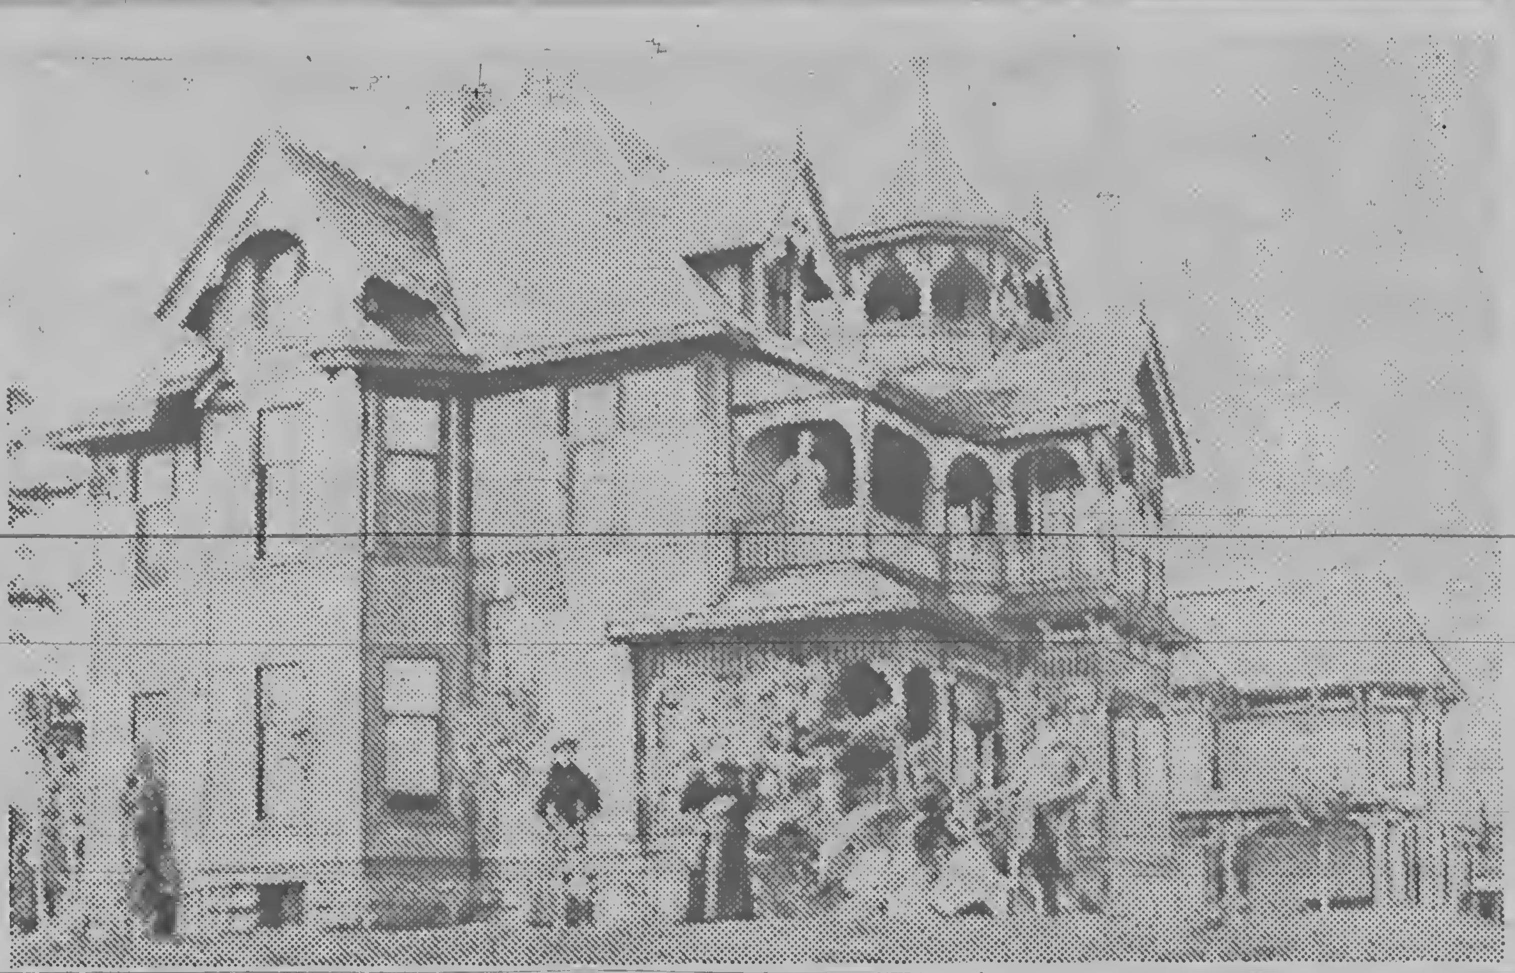
SCRAPBOOK



This "House for Sale" ad ran in the 1900 Charlevoix Board of Commerce book. Accompanying information explained that the selling price included all furniture. The house was built in 1894 and consisted of 14 rooms, including two bathrooms. There was a cement cellar, fine furnace, and laundry with set tubs. The kitchen had a range with all improvements. There were eight chambers, in two of which there was hot and cold water. The house was located on a terrace overlooking Lake Michigan, Pine Lake, and Round Lake. At the time of the ad, the house was owned by Mrs. L. D. Kanaga. Who knows where it was located? (Picture courtesy of Virginia Emrey).

New proposal made for Bridge Park

Once again discussion has been initiated which could lead to modifications of Bridge Park. Bridge Park is a city park on the harbor, south of the bridge near the docking area of the Beaver Islander and U.S. Coast Guard Cutter Mesquite.

At Monday evening's council work session, Lynn DeGrow, president and general manager of the Beaver Island Boat Company asked the council to consider proceeding with a study which would formulate a plan for improvements in Bridge Park and the surrounding area.

According to the proposal, the engineering firm of McNamee, Porter and Seeley Inc. would draft a plan at a cost not to exceed $22,000. McNamee, Porter and Seeley Inc. would work in conjunction with BJR, Inc., Northwest Design Group, Inc. and city planner Garry Harsch.

The plan would consider not only the grassy park area, but also: the area occupied by the boat company; the old sewage treatment plant building; the parking lot between East Park and the channel; and the docks in front of the area.

Funding for the plan would come from the city. City manager Mike Wiesner said that a few years ago, money was budgeted through the Downtown Development Authority (DDA) for a study of Bridge Park, but that study was not done. He added that there is no money budgeted this year for such a study.

Councilmen Earl Muma, Norm Probert, Ken Whitley and Jim Potter said that if the city does agree to undertake a study, they favor taking bids for the study.

Wiesner and DeGrow said the reason McNamee, Porter and Seeley, Inc. was approached is because the firm has previously worked on the city sewer system and already has knowledge of the old treatment plant.

Representatives of McNamee, Porter and Seeley, Inc. met with a group of Charlevoix people Friday, Nov. 10 at the Weathervane Terrace Hotel conference room.

According to a memorandum in the council informational packet, those who attended that meeting were: Wiesner; city treasurer Rick Brandi; Harsch; DDA member Gene Steele; DDA and Chamber of Commerce member Hugh Mason; Chamber of Commerce executive director Jacqueline Merta; Chamber of Commerce member John Campbell; DeGrow; Traver Wood of Site Plan Development; Pat Jackson of BJR, Inc.; Harold Krutsch of the Weathervane Hotel and Charlevoix Convention and Visitors Bureau; and John Adams and Dennis Benoit of McNamee, Porter and Seeley, Inc.

Among the things discussed at the meeting were:

-A desire by the Chamber, DDA and Boat Company to improve the park area.

-An interest by the Boat Company in operating a cruise-dining boat to replace the Star of Charlevoix, provided the city will make improvements and expand the work area near the park.

-A Boat Company desire for twice the current enclosed storage area (1,000 rather than 500 square feet. A proposed development on North Fox Island may be served from Charlevoix although consideration is also being given to Northport. It was also noted that docks need to be improved, the loading area leveled out and more parking provied.)

-A need for improved traffic circulation in the park area.

-The possibility of using some of the waterfront area for commercial parking.

-Removing the superstructure of the old treatment plant and doing something with the pumps housed within it and either greatly reducing or eliminating the odor problem.

-Creating additional public restrooms which could be operated and maintained by the Approximately seven hours with a city electric department bucket truck, the help of 250 to 300 children and their parents and approximately 20 gallons of hot chocolate went into decorating the community Christmas tree in East Park this past Friday. The tree may look a bit top-heavy in terms of decorations because very few kids wanted to take a bucket truck ride to the bottom of the tree.

Ahead-lines

Time for basketball, a civil game

Basketball. Now there's a game.

Enough, enough, maybe even too much of this football stuff already. When you come right down to it, what kind of game is football anyway. It's silly.?

First all of the players get in clusters where they commiserate and conspire against the other team. They break out of the clusters and line up across from each other.

One guy bends over and grabs a ball that has been placed on the ground just so by a guy in a striped shirt. Another guy wants the ball, but the guy holding the ball on the ground won't part with it right away. So the guy who wants the ball pinches the guy holding it on the ground.

Once pinched, the guy holding the ball gives it to the guy behind him. Then a terrible commotion ensues. All the players run into each other and they all fall down.

The guy in the striped shirt, who is the authority figure, toots his whistle and makes the players get up and go back into their little clusters until they can learn to play nice.

But football players never learn. As soon as they break out of the little clusters, they're right back at it again, pinching and knocking each other down.

That's football, a crude and ugly game.

Now basketball on the other hand is a real game, a thing of grace and beauty.

Basketball players don't have to wear helmets. They have no reason to hide their faces. They've done nothing to be ashamed of.

In basketball, the game begins with the players all gathered around at center court in a harmonious circle.

A guy in a striped shirt tosses a ball in the air and two big guys fly up to bring it down.

When one player gets the ball, none of the other players pinch him. Sure, a player from the other team might stand close, but that's just to make sure the guy who has the ball takes proper care of it.

In basketball everybody gets to touch the ball, the big people as well as the little people.

After one team puts the ball in the basket, then the other team gets to try. As any well-behaved youngster will tell you, that's called taking turns. And people who play nice take turns.

Basketball is a friendly game, a civilized game.

For the Charlevoix Rayders, the basketball season begins this coming Tuesday, Dec. 5 with a nonconference game at East Jordan.

Charlevoix begins Holiday Season

Stephanie Lee Marks, 3, was a little perplexed, but happy to be participating in the Christmas celebration.

Santa Claus and two of his elves showed up Friday evening to make sure the Christmas season got off to a good start.

Amanda Eaton, 10, places her decoration on the community Christmas tree. She is accompanied by Greg Skeel of the city electric department.

This year a warming shed was provided. Supposedly, it was to keep the children from getting cold, but many of those seeking refuge in the shed were pretty big to be considered children.

THE BALSAM FIR, THE CHRISTMAS TREE EXTOLLED BY SUCH WRITERS AS HANS CHRISTIAN ANDERSEN AND CHRISTOPHER MORLEY, IS ONE OF THE MOST POPULAR CHRISTMAS TREES. EACH YEAR OVER 4 MILLION OF THESE BEAUTIFULLY SHAPED TREES ARE HARVESTED. CRUSH A FEW NEEDLES IN YOUR HAND AND THEIR RUNGENT ODOR WILL REMIND OF CHRISTMAS. EARLY EACH SUMMER THE FIR GOES THROUGH A DRESS REHEARSAL FOR THE HOLIDAYS, DISPLAYING ITS OWN "CANDLES", WAXY PURPLISH-BLUE CONES HELD UPRIGHT ON THE TIPS OF ITS BRANCHES. ITS CANOPY OF LOWER BRANCHES PROVIDES A PROTECTED PLACE FOR BIRDS AND SMALL ANIMALS AND ITS TENDER NEEDLES ARE RELISHED BY GROUSE. ITS REALLY A PERFECT TREE ALL YEAR AROUND.

Worldwide, can it be
That Mankind will join hands
And set itself free?

REASONABLE TO ME

L. SCOTT SWANSON

A story before and after

A deer story is like chili. As it ages and with subsequent servings it develops more flavor.

This year I shot a six-point buck at 7:50, opening morning.

I'd been in my blind a little more than half an hour when the buck walked out of a little swamp I was watching.

The swamp is in the middle of a large area which has been clear cut and replanted with small Norway pines. The pine trees are currently two to two and a-half feet high. I can still see over them fairly well from the of the bluff where I sit, but about next year the pine trees will be too tall and I'll have to find a different place to hunt. Pity. That spot's been good. I've killed three bucks there in the past five years.

The buck was quite a distance away, off to my left. I put my scope on him and looked him over. Initially, I thought I saw horns, but wasn't sure. I adjusted my rifle scope from five up to nine power to take a closer look.

Although the buck was a six-point, he didn't have a particularly large rack. When I first saw him, he was walking slowly, but he stopped for a moment as he broke out of the swamp. When he stopped, I got a better look and confirmed that that the tips of a small rack protruded above his ears.

As I said, he was a fair distance off, between 150 and 200 yards. The 30-30 I hunt with is no Howitzer and I've been known to miss a buck with my first shot. I steadied the rifle on the front of the blind. When I got the cross hairs where I wanted them, I touched off a round.

When I was 14 years old, I wounded and then lost a nice buck because I quit firing after one shot. It's a mistake I don't plan to make again. I racked the 30-30 and prepared to fire a second, third or fourth shot; whatever it took.

But there was no need. The six-point dropped in his tracks. It was the quickest and simplest kill of any of the bucks I've taken.

So that's the current story of this year's buck, the fresh chili version. But what will the story become in subsequent tellings? Given time, how much flavor will it develop?

Consider what the story of this year's buck will be like 20 years from now.

It was shortly after 7 o'clock. The sun was just beginning to rise. Despite the bitter cold, I'd been on guard in my blind since about 5 a.m. I always got out to my blind real early in my younger days.

Suddenly, I heard a rustling in the brush several hundred yards away. I always listened closely when I was hunting.

I was in the heart of a big, thick swamp. Visibility was limited in that spot, but it was a good spot. I must've killed 30 or 40 deer there.

Since the deer was so far off, I had to peer between the trees to spot him. He was a huge old buck, an 18...no, no, beg your pardon...a 16 pointer. No need to exaggerate.

Raising Old Betsy - that's what I called my rifle - I sighted in on him. Those antlers just loomed up against the horizon.

He was 500, maybe 600, yards away. But in those days I was steady as a rock and made shots like that all the time.

I got him in my sights. Back in those days we didn't have scopes. I aimed one inch to the left to correct for the wind and half an inch high to compensate for the curvature of the earth.

Taking a deep breath and holding it, I fired. I must've flinched a little when I pulled the trigger because my shot didn't hit exactly where I wanted it to. I hit that buck in the left ventricle and I was aiming for the right.

But still, as usual I'd hit the heart. And with that big buck it was a good thing I had hit him in the heart. Anywhere else and I'd never have gotten him. As it was, I had to track him for three days.

Yep, no doubt about it, that was quite a buck and quite a hunt. I remember it well.

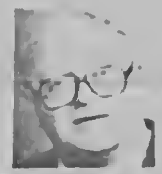
CLOCKWISE



BOB CLOCK

Clocks cave in - artificial tree

Judy and I have committed the ultimate sacrilege.

We have purchased an artificial Christmas tree.

I have nursed the idea of buying a fake tree for quite some time, but I always hesitated to mention it around the house because the kids are card-carrying traditionalists.

To them, it wouldn't be Christmas without a bone-chilling trip to a Christmas tree lot, pawing over dozens of snowy specimens and finally deciding on a tree with only one "bad side."

Then there is the matter of hauling the tree home, usually tied to the top of the car.

I remember one trip to a tree farm in Hayes Township many years ago. After surveying a forest of evergreens, we picked a large, full-bodied Scotch pine. I paid the man and hoisted the tree — trunk forward — onto the roof of the car, tying it securely in place with clothesline.

En route home I glanced out a side window and saw the shadow of the car on a snowbank — tooling along Boyne City Road with a Christmas tree standing bolt upright on the roof. As I watched in horror, the tree flopped over in the opposite direction.

It didn't fall off. It just changed positions.

Of course, we always had to store the tree on the back porch for several days to let the snow and ice melt. Then, a few days before Christmas, we would drag it indoors and try to set it up in the tree stand. I say try, because the trunk usually was too big and I would have to lug the tree onto front porch and cut off huge sections until it would fit the stand.

Last year I had to cut off so much that my $25 Norway spruce was no bigger than an African violet.

Then there was the problem of making a lopsided tree with a crooked trunk stand up straight and tall so it can be decorated.

Sometimes I had to anchor the tree to a nearby wall with binder twine.

At this point I always reminded the kids how smart the old Germans were, suspending their Christmas trees by the trunk from the ceiling.

But those days are over.

Oh, we might buy a real tree — a small one — this year to make the transition less painful.

But after that, I guarantee that our Christmases will be plastic — and painless.

One thing I am going to miss is having live evergreen boughs to make little "grave blankets" for the window boxes after the holidays. In years past, I would cut the lower limbs off the tree and weave them into attractive covers for the planters on the porch railing.

At least I thought they were attractive. They always looked nice festooned with snow and ice.

One year after removing the limbs I carried what was left of our Christmas tree down to the curb and stuck it in a snowbank. Just then a neighbor came by.

"What's that?" she asked, pointing at the straggly pole with a few tuffs of needles at the top.

"That's our Christmas tree," I said.

"Oh, dear!" she sympathized. "I knew you were having a bad winter what with colds and everything. But I didn't think it had come to this."

IF YOU LIVE in Charlevoix, I wish you would go outside and check your roof.

If you are missing about 20 yards of rolled roofing, let me know and I'll be one happy fella.

Thanksgiving Day, I made a pilgrimage into the backyard to see if I could harvest a little more sage before winter begins in earnest.

I was surprised when I stumbled over a quantity of snow-covered roofing that hadn't been there a few days ago.

"Hmmm," I hmmmed to myself. "Some poor S.O.B. has lost his roof and doesn't know it."

So instead of checking on the sage I made a quick trip through the neighborhood looking for a roof with holes in it.

Then it dawned on me that we have a flat section of roof at the rear of the house that cannot be seen from the ground.

It looks as though last week's 50 mph winds have claimed another victim.

Me.

U.S.C.G. Commander Lynch to speak at annual Chamber meeting

Lieutenant Commander J. Richard Lynch, commander of the U.S.C.G. Cutter Mesquite, will address Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce members at their annual meeting, Thursday, December 7, 6:30 p.m. at Grey Gables. Lynch has served in both interesting and diversified positions thus far in his twelve and one half years as an active duty officer.

A native of Donora, Pennsylvania and second of 11 children, Commander Lynch graduated from the Coast Guard Academy in 1977. His first assignment was in Cape May, New Jersey, as Operations Officer of the Cutter Hornbeam. Upon completion of that two-year tour of duty, it was on to St. Louis, Missouri, where he served in the Second District Navigation office until 1982.

Commander Lynch's next assignment was in Sitka, Alaska as Executive Officer of the Cutter Woodrush, where he served until 1984.

Then, in a complete change of location and duty, Commander Lynch was sent to George Washington University in Washington, D.C., where he studied for and received a master's degree in business administration in 1986. He remained in Washington for the next three years, serving at Coast Guard Headquarters in various positions. In July of this year he took over command of the Mesquite.

Commander Lynch and his wife, Dianne, along with son Ryan, almost seven, and their 3-year-old daughter Lindsay, live on Pine Ridge Drive, not far from Mt. McSauba. The location of his home is a happy one for the commander, who lists skiing as one of his favorite sports. However, most of his spare time is spent with his wife and children due to the nature of the job and the family separation involved.

The Mesquite left Charlevoix for buoy duty the day after Thanksgiving with hopes to be home in time for the Christmas holiday. Just in case the Mesquite is unable to return to Charlevoix in time to address the Chamber, Commander Lynch has made arrangements for an officer from Sault Ste., Marie to speak in his absence.

Letters to the Editor:

"Scrapbook" mystery answered

(Editor's note: We received several calls from people who recognized the old house on Belvedere Avenue. Mary Margaret Geiken sent in the following letter explaining the background of the house.)

Editor,

Re. "Scrapbook" column on page 20 - 11-22-89 Courier: the house pictured is No. 208 Belvedere Ave. It was purchased by Capt. Geik C. Geiken from the Kanaga family shortly after the turn of the century. John Dexter purchased the house from Ruth L. Geiken in the early 70's, restored it inside, and lives in it during the summer months. The house to the west of the "Gieken House" was owned by James Parsons, and is now owned by the grandchildren, Jim Dane and his sister, Jane Brewer.

Sincerely,
Mary M. Geiken
(Mrs. Cornelius Geiken)

P.S. Originally the house had three stories - but after a fire (in latter teens or early '20's) it was finished-off with the two stories. Yes, they could view our three beautiful lakes, from the second and third floors, but not today!

FAMILY

Miner-Gauthier

Mr. & Mrs. Michael D. Gauthier

Karri K. Miner and Michael D. Gauthier exchanged marriage vows October 28 at the Wesley United Methodist Church in Alamogordo, New Mexico.

The Rev. Lowell H. Swisher performed the double ring rites before approximately 75 guests.

The bride is the daughter of James and Katherine Moots of Alamogordo, and the bridegroom is the son of William and Patricia Gauthier of Charlevoix.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a Victorian style gown of organza with Schiffli lace trim on the neckline, sleeves, and bodice. The bouffant skirt of organza, which flowed into a chapel-length train, was also trimmed with Schiffli lace as well as ruffles. The bride's headpiece was a floral arrangement attached to a two-tiered veil, and her bouquet was an arrangement of daisies, blue carnations, and baby's breath, with white and blue lace streamers.

Jennifer Miner, sister of the bride, and Patricia Vigil, niece of the bride, were flower girls. They wore blue and white tea-length gowns and carried white baskets of flower petals.

Steven J. Gauthier, brother of the bridegroom, was best man, and Paul Christensen and Brett Thomas were ushers.

The parents of the newlyweds hosted a reception at their home. The bridegroom's parents hosted a rehearsal dinner at Western Sizzler Steak house.

The newlyweds are at home in Alamogordo, where the bridegroom is stationed with the Air Force. They plan a rip to Charlevoix during the Christmas holidays.

Health Department urges Christmas tree caution

Christmas trees, lights and other seasonal accessories can create a magical and memorable holiday. These sensible suggestions will help ensure your holiday memories remain magical.

If you purchase a natural tree, pick one that's fresh. Test for freshness by rubbing a hand over the branches or by tapping the base of the tree on the ground. If needles start to fall, do not buy the tree. A dry tree can be particularly hazardous.

If cutting your own tree, be extra careful as to how you wield the axe.

Store the tree outdoors, preferably under shade, until it's time to be used.

Recut the trunk diagonally and be sure to mount the base of the tree securely.

The base of natural green trees should be kept in water. Check the water level daily and add more as required.

All types of trees should be kept away from fireplaces, heaters and other sources of heat.

Declare the tree a non-smoking area and keep matches out of the hands of children.

Trees should not block exits.

Never leave small children alone with a Christmas tree.

Never use electric light strings on metallic trees. Instead, shine a spot or floodlight for a colorful effect.

Don't leave the Christmas tree lights on if no one is in the room.

If a tree catches fire, do not attempt to move the tree. If possible, put the fire out with an extinguisher. If not, evacuate the building and call the fire department.

Before you replace a bulb, allow it to cool off and make sure you unplug the light string.

Be sure to check bulb reflectors for insulation, consisting of either plastic or another non-metallic material, placed between the lamp and the metal part of the reflector. (Reflectors, which fit around the bulbs, require CSA certification. The reflector is often sold with the Christmas light string).

Before using any Christmas tree lights or electric decoration, check all wiring, sockets and plugs for fraying, cracks or loose connections. If at all in doubt, replace the old sets.

Make certain you choose replacement bulbs with the correct wattage and-or voltage.

Four Charlevoix students named to area honors band

At auditions held recently, four Charlevoix High School Band students were selected as members of the 1989 Honors Band sponsored by District II of the Michigan School Band and Orchestra Association. Flutist Jake Porath, trumpeter Matt Stargardt, and trombonists Bill Crook and Tim Henne were chosen for the band in competition with bandmembers from twenty high schools in Northern Michigan.

The 65 piece band will present a concert in the Cheboygan Opera House at 3:00 p.m. on Sunday, Dec. 3. Guest conductor for this year's concert will be Gary Owens, director of bands at the University of Michigan-Flint. The group will perform band compositions by Charles Ives, Malcom Arnold, and John Philip Sousa. The band members will arrive in Cheboygan the day before the concert for several hours on intensive rehearsals and they will stay over Saturday night in a motel in Cheboygan. The Sunday concert is open to the public. The admission charge is $3.00.

Senior Citizens center receives grant money from state

The Charlevoix Senior Citizens Center will have a new home next year.

Last week, the Center's Board of Directors were advised they will receive state grants in the amount of $16,989 to help pay for remodeling the old Charlevoix Township Hall on Norwood Road for their permanent home.

This grant, added to the $16,000 Center members have raised on their own, will make it possible to do the necessary preliminary work.

More than half of the grant money will be used for "energy" purposes–installing a heating system, water heater, and insulation. According to Senior Center Coordinator Sherry Black, the remainder of the money will be used to construct an addition to the existing structure.

It will take additional funds to complete the building. The state Office of Services to the Aging has promised to consider another grant application; Congressman Bob Davis' office is checking into the possibility of securing a federal grant; and the Senior Center will continue its own fund-raising activities.

When completed, the building will become the serving place for the daily Commission on Aging lunches and headquarters for all Senior Center activities. For the last several years, the Center has been located in the V.F.W. Hall on U.S. 31 North.

The old Charlevoix Township Hall was deeded to the County Commmission on Aging two years ago by the township.

Jordan River Arts Council planning holiday activities

Two musical events to launch a festive holiday season are being offered the first weekend in December by Jordan River Arts Council.

The council's second annual madrigal dinner will be at 7 p.m. Saturday, December 2 at Wolverine-Dilworth Inn, 300 Water Street, Boyne City.

Featuring the music and merriment of the Petoskey High School Madrigal Singers, the evening will start with a wassail bowl followed by menu of pumpkin soup, garden salad, Cornish hen, baked hams and spinach in cream sauce and English plum pudding with a brandy sauce.

The event is a fundraiser both for the arts council and the madrigal singing group, and the $27.50 tickets include taxes and gratuities. Tickets may be purchased at Busy Bridge Antiques and Gift in East Jordan or by calling Cindy Dalian at 536-7857.

The first annual Christmas concert of the newly formed Jordan River Arts Council Community Chorus will be at 3:30 p.m. Sunday, December 3, at the First Presbyterian Church, 207 Williams Road, in East Jordan. There is no admission charge, but a free will offering will be taken.

CHURCH

Ruth S. Way

Ruth S. Way, 87, of Charlevoix, died Nov. 20, 1989, at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

Funeral was Saturday, Nov. 25, at the Charlevoix Assembly of God Church. The Rev. Lowell Anderson officiated and burial was in Barnard Cemetery.

The former Ruth S. Olson was born Aug. 26, 1902, in Cadillac, the daughter of Joseph and Sophia Berkquist Olson.

On Oct. 11, 1920, she married Clarence S. Way in Cadillac. The couple lived in Northern Michigan for two years before moving to Detroit.

While residing in Detroit, Mrs. Way was a defense worker during World War II for Briggs Manufacturing and U.S. Rubber Co. Mr. and Mrs. Way returned to Norwood Township in 1947 where they farmed. In 1979 they moved to Charlevoix. Mr. Way preceded her in death on March 31, 1987.

Mrs. Way was a homemaker and known for her hospitality. She enjoyed being a hostess and in later years her greatest hobby was picking fruit at local orchards.

She was a charter member of the Assembly of God Church in Charlevoix and was a Sunday school teacher for many years. She was an active member of the Charlevoix County Farm Bureau.

Survivors include: one daughter, Geraldine Hittenburer of Fort Lauderdale, Fla.; four sons, Robert R. of Augsburg, Germany, D. Dawson Way, Doug Way and Dick Way, all of Charlevoix; 19 grandchildren; 30 great-grandchildren; three sisters, Mrs. Esther Barber, Marie Stenke and Anna Lupion, all of Cadillac.

The family suggests memorials to the Charlevoix Assembly of God Church.

Arrangements were handled by the Winchester Funeral Home, Charlevoix.

Rena B. Shapton

Rena Belle Shapton, 72, of Charlevoix, died at her home on Nov. 26, 1989.

Funeral was Wednesday, Nov. 29, at St. Marys Church, Charlevoix. The Rev. Wilbert Hegener OFM officiated and burial was in St. Marys Cemetery, Charlevoix.

Mrs. Shapton was born July 1, 1917, in Atwood, the daughter of Frank and Lillian (Bow) Supernaw. At the age of 2, she moved to Charlevoix with her family. They made their home at the family farm which was on the present site of Belvedere Golf Course. She attended Charlevoix schools graduating from Charlevoix High School in 1936.

On Oct. 19, 1940, she married Ralph L. Shapton in Charlevoix. They moved to the Detroit area and then made their home in Royal Oak for 25 years, returning to Charlevoix in 1973.

Mrs. Shapton was a member of St. Marys Church and the Altar Society. She was also a member of the Charlevoix Historical Society. While her children were in school, she was very active in church and school activities and was a Cub Scout den mother for three years.

She is survived by her husband; three sons, James W. Shapton or Marlette, Donald L. Shapton of Interlochen and Ronald L. of Franklin Tenn.; eight grandchildren; two brothers, Rex Supernaw of Charlevoix and Charlie Supernaw of Rochester; one sister, Ruby Tillotson of Petoskey. She was preceded in death by a son, Thomas R. Shapton in 1960.

The family suggests memorials to St. Marys Church or the Charlevoix Area Hospital. Envelopes for memorials are available at the Winchester Funeral Home, Charlevoix.

BEACONS OF BLESSINGS

by Pastor Duane Nelson
Charlevoix
Church of the Nazarene

So how was your turkey dinner with all its trimmings? I bet you, most of us had our fill. I know that every time the Thanksgiving holiday comes up I certainly get my fill. Yet, during this holiday season, I had to stop and think about Christ, what He went through on earth just for me, and the cost of following Him.

It says in Matthew 8:19-22, "Then a teacher of the law came to him (Jesus) and said, 'Teacher, I will follow you wherever you go.' Jesus replied, 'Foxes have holes and birds of the air have nest, but the Son of Man has no place to lay his head.'

"Another man, one of his disciples, said to him, 'Lord, first let me go and bury by father.' But Jesus told him, 'follow me, and let the dead bury their own dead.' "

Hey, that's a pretty rough post-Thanksgiving thought. I found myself saying, but there is a lesson to be learned and lived out.

Over and over I'm reminded that Christ gave His all for me. Throughout the entire year, I've been blessed beyond compare and all those blessings came from Jesus. How thankful can I be?

It comes down to this: to be truly thankful to Christ who gave up His all for me I need to give up my all to Him. Remember the scripture at the beginning. Christ is telling us that if we want to follow Him, He takes priority over everything. The teacher of the law had to give up his home and place of safety. The disciple had to put Christ ahead of his family.

This may all sound insensitive and demanding of Christ. But He knows all and sees all, and more importantly, He knows what is best for us. When He calls us to the commitment of following Him, He will take care of us and the circumstances we find ourselves in. "And my God will meet all your needs according to his glorious riches in Christ Jesus" (Philippians 4:19, NIV).

So when we ease back into our favorite chair contemplating how to take off the extra weight from Thanksgiving, let's put our mind and complete commitment on Christ. Following Christ may cost us everything, but we'll always have our "fill".

Some area residents may have unexpected refund due

There may be some low-income families in the Charlevoix area who are eligible for up to $910 through the federal government's Earned Income Credit program.

According to Richard Tillen of the local Department of Social Services, these families would probably be those who do not file an income tax return because they do not owe additional taxes and normally would not be eligible for a tax refund.

The Earned Income Credit program has been in operation since 1986, so families who have not filed an income tax return since then may want to do so now to learn if they have money coming for past years.

Most working families earning between $5,000 and $11,000 in 1989 now qualify for a credit of at least $700, according to Tillen. All that is necessary for eligible persons to do is file Form 1040 or 1040-A and the Revenue Service will compute the credit due them.

Anti-drug video made available for local students

It's "time to think" is the inspirational message behind a new videotape designed to educate children about the dangers and implications of taking drugs.

"Time to Think" is the title of the videotape made available through Wast Management of Michigan - Northern Michigan. The 30-minute video features children from various cultural and economic backgrounds sharing their thoughts about growing up and making life decisons.

The video focuses on the childrens' thoughts and reactions about drug and alcohol abuse. "Teasing won't kill us, but drugs will kill them," says one little girl who chose not to take drugs. Her schoolmate agrees, saying "It's a waste of time' it's a waste of money, and it's a wast of life."

Waste Management joined with the nationally recognized Robert Crown Center in Hinsdale, Illinois, a not-for-profit education center offering drug abuse prevention programs, to produce the video which also explores the physiological, psychological, social and legal consequences of drug use. The 30-minute tape joins an actual class in session at Robert Crown, as the instructor explains the difference between "good" and "bad" drugs, how the nervous system works and chanes that occur in the body when different durgs are taken.

A free copy of "Time to Think" is available to any community organizaiton. Contact Don Pizzurro, WM of Michigan - Northern Michigan at 547-2814 or Barney Way, Cedar Ridge Recycling & Disposal Facility, a division of Waste Management, at 547-4606 .. A helpful presentation packet is also available for use by parents, schools and other organizations.

BUSINESS

Please keep mailboxes clear

With more than 1,400 deliveries to make each day along rural routes criss-crossing the outlying areas of Charlevoix, local postal carriers can do without the additional challenge of snowed-in mailboxes.

Charlevoix Postmaster Sheila Murphy explains that local postal workers want to get people's mail to them, but in order to do that they have to have safe access to mailboxes.

People are asked to be conscientious in keeping their mailboxes clear. And fortunately, most people in the area have been pretty good about doing so and area postal carriers haven't gotten stuck all that often.

"We don't get stuck too often," Murphy said. "Maybe two or three times a year for each carrier.

The Charlevoix post office has three full-time rural routes and a shorter auxiliary route.

"It's usually the most difficult, the morning after a snow (storm)" Murphy said of the rural delivery.

People are asked to clear snow away not only directly in front of their mail boxes, but also for a short distance to each side of the mail box so the postal carrier will have room to pull up to and pull away from the box.

Murphy pointed out that snowed-in mailboxes aren't only a problem in the country, but also in town. She said carriers occasionally face unshoveled sidewalks and porches which simply aren't safe to navigate.

When carriers can't make it to a person's mailbox, they bring the person's mail back to the post office and try again the next day. That may slow the delivery of that person's mail, but if a carrier gets stuck, it sets back delivery for everyone on the route.

Local businesses join to launch holiday season shopping campaign

Forty Charlevoix businesses have joined forces in a promotional campaign encouraging people to shop in Charlevoix during the holiday season. (The businesses are listed in the tab enclosed in this week's Courier.)

From 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday the businesses will be hosting an open house to help kick off the holiday shopping season.

Friday, Saturday and Sunday shoppers may register for a gift certificate drawing sponsored by the participating businesses. Gift certificates valued at $300, $200 and $100 will be awarded.

Shoppers may register for the drawing at any of the participating businesses which will have signs in their windows. Shoppers are welcome to increase their odds by registering at more than one of the forty businesses.

Drawing of the three winning names will take place at 5 p.m., Monday, Dec. 4 at the Chamber of Commerce office.

Winners may use the certificates at any of the participating businesses and are not required to spend all of the money in any one place.

In addition to the promotional campaign, many community businesses are extending their business hours, particularly during weekends for the holiday season.

The Christmas promotional campaign is being coordinated by the Merchants Association, which is a branch of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce.

The business group also coordinated the community Christmas tree decoration and lighting which took place in East Park Friday. More than 100 children when up in the city lift truck to place decorations on the tree. While the children soared skyward, many of the parents stayed below finding sanctuary in a small warming shed and downing a total of about 20 gallons of hot chocolate.

Clarification

A story which ran in last week's Courier regarding pre-Christmas celebrations and business open houses should have said the open houses will be hosted by businesses throughout the community instead of by downtown merchants.

Local scouts took to the streets this past Saturday morning to collect bags of food.

After collecting the food, scouts took it to the Charlevoix Food Pantry based in the lower level of the Congregational Church.

Snowmobiles allowed on roadside

Snowmobilers will be able to travel along Charlevoix County roads in order to reach designated trails, at least this winter.

Last week, the County Road Commission adopted Michigan Public Act 74 of 1968, which sets forth how snowmobilers may travel on county roads and the penalties for disobeying the law.

Specifically, the law states that snowmobilers must keep as far to the right of the roads as possible. The law does not permit snowmobiling on state highways

In adopting the law, the Road Commission decided to open the roads this winter and review the results next May.

Local scouts collect food

Local scouts from Boy Scout Troop 11 and Cub Scout Pack 11 collected more than 1,400 cans and boxes of food Saturday, Nov. 18. The food was turned over to the Charlevoix Food Pantry which over the next several months will distribute it to area families in need.

The effort by local scouts was part of a national food collection drive by scouts. The Charlevoix scouts placed empty plastic bags on doors throughout the community Nov. 11. One week later, the scouts collected bags which people had put food in and hung back outside on their doors.

The food pantry is based in the lower level of the Congregational Church and is a cooperative project of churches in the Charlevoix Community.

PETER C. KRAMER
- Completes Third G.R.I. Series
Peter G. Kramer, Sales Associate with Real Estate One of Elk Rapids, recently has completed the third course of the Graduate Realtor Institute, (G.R.I.) series. The three one week seminars include instruction on commercial investment properties, taxation, appraisals, property management, advance financing and many other subjects associated with the real estate profession. With the successful completion of the three courses, Pete will be honored in the near future at the Traverse City Board of Realtors monthly meeting.
Peter has been in the real estate profession just 17 months and has already reached $2,000,000 in sales. His continued success and commitment to further his education has proven to be rewarding to him. Pete's plans for 1990 include obtaining his broker's license and becoming an Associate Broker with Real Estate One of Elk Rapids.
Congratulations, Peter.

Council gives Elm Street relocation proposal mixed reviews

A proposal by the Community Reformed Church to relocate Elm Street received a mixed reaction from city councilmen Monday evening.

The church would like to expand their building and in turn move their parking lot to the south. In order for the expansion to take place as proposed, Elm Street would have to be shifted to the south.

The church would pay the cost of moving the street and accompanying utility lines. That cost is estimated to be approximately $30,000.

Church officials originally asked for Elm Street to be closed and a turn-around to be constructed near the tennis courts. The city opposed closing the road.

In October, church officials came before the council and asked about relocating the road. Councilmen said they wanted to know how people living near the church felt about that.

Monday evening, Dr. Jeff Ricks from the church board told councilmen that the church had polled 38 people living near the church regarding their feelings about relocating Elm Street.

Ricks said 31 of the people questioned said they had no objections, while seven people objected. Among the objections were the proximity of the proposed relocated street to homes and the city setting a precedent of shifting streets.

Ricks noted that the planning commission has seen and approved the revised plan.

Another concern raised at Monday evening's meeting was an exit from the church parking lot onto Oak Street. Currently the exit is near the highway. According to the proposal, the exit would be moved farther down Oak Street. Connie Doan, who lives at 105 Oak Street, said she and others living on Oak Street strongly object to the proposed exit location.

Councilman Norm Probert said Oak Street residents he talked to objected to the exit. He also questioned how property owners who would have the relocated street leading toward their homes would feel about headlights shining on their homes at night.

Ricks noted that one of the property owners in that situation was among those who had been questioned and had not objected to the relocation.

Councilman Bill Haggard asked why the church could not remodel, leaving Elm Street where it is and putting additional church parking on church property to the south of Elm Street. He said he didn't view walking across the street from the parking lot to the church to be an unusual hardship.

Ricks said the reason the church building needs to expand to the south is due to the architecture not because the church people don't want to cross a street from the parking lot. He noted that if it was possible, the church would have preferred to save the $30,000 and cross the street.

Councilmen Earl Muma and Jim Potter said that if the Oak Street exit problem can be resolved, they will have no problem with putting a jog in Elm Street.

Haggard said that if it is impossible to come up with a design which will allow the street to remain where it is, he would go along with changing it.

Probert said he opposes the change. Councilman Ken Whitley said he would like more time to look into the matter.

Burns Clinic board names new administrator

The Burns Clinic Medical Center Board of Directors has announced the appointment of David F. Thomas as Administrator and Chief Operating Officer of the Clinic.

According to Daniel McDonnell, M.D., Burns Clinic President, "Mr. Thomas has had extensive experience in the operational and financial issues facing medicine today." Most recently he was the Director of Physician Billing at the University of Pennsylvania. Prior to that, he was the Executive Director of the University Physicians at the University of Missouri. For seven years he was the Director of Business and Information Systems at the University of Vermont.

Mr. Thomas attained a Masters Degree in Administrative Science from John Hopkins University in Baltimore. He is the immediate past chairman of the Academic Practice Assembly and has served that group as legislative liaison.

While at the University of Vermont, he and his family found they enjoyed the rural environment and look forward to getting back to that lifestyle in Petoskey. Mr. Thomas says he was attracted to the top twenty clinics in the midwest, "and the Burns clinic definitely fits into that category."

He and Carol, his wife of twenty-one years, are making their home in Petoskey. Their son Michael is a freshman at the University of Missouri, while their daughter Jennifer will be a freshman at Petoskey High School.

Historical Society plans dinner

Members of the Charlevoix Historical Society will participate in a Christmas Celebration Dec. 5 at Stafford's Weathervane.

Dinner, which costs $13 per person, will feature a choice of New York Strip steak or Oriental Chicken.

There will be a gift exchange. Ladies are asked to bring a gift for a lady while gentlemen are asked to bring a gift for a gentlemen. Cost of the gifts is not to exceed $5.

Those planning to attend the event are asked to make reservations by Dec. 4 by calling either Mary Geiken or Pat Gaskin. Although people are encouraged to make reservations in advance, they may pay at the door.

Pool committee to meet

The Pool Steering Committee will meet at 5:30 p.m., Thursday, Nov. 30 at City Hall. Among the items on the agenda are a report on the Labor Day fundraising auction and discussion of a feasibility study currently being conducted.

A professional fundraiser working with the pool committee is conducting the feasibility study. The study consists of talking to approximately 30 people in the community to determine the level of community support for a pool. Results of the study will be released in December or January.

Pool proponents are also reviewing for informational purposes the background of a community pool constructed on Washington Island, off of Green Bay, Wisc. Construction funding for the pool was contributed by a wealthy family. A significant portion of the pool's operating funds are generated by a $1 million endowment fund.

Pace yourself when coping with hardships of winter

Some of the worst storms and coldest days of this winter are still ahead for Northwestern Michigan. Many of us find outside winter chores unpleasant. This attitude tends to make us stay inside until winter's snowy activities demand that we venture out to attack the largest and heaviest snow drifts.

It's fine to enjoy the slower paced winter lifestyle, but it's also important to remember not to get too relaxed. Summer activities can include digging in the garden, mowing the lawn, or perhaps jogging or swimming. Without this constant type of activity in the winter our bodies tend to relax. It's very important to give our bodies time to adjust to the strenuous intermittent activities that winter can demand.

Dr. Brian Youngs, Regional Medical Director for District Health Department No. 3 recommends that "people with certain medical conditions such as hypertension or anyone over the age of 40 should consult their physician before undertaking any strenuous winter activities."

Snow shoveling is strenuous work. It involves lifting heavy snow and turning and throwing each load. This activity strains both the heart and other muscles. The cold weather makes the strain even greater since your heart has to work overtime in order to keep you warm. Every year we hear unfortunate reports of individuals who suffer severe and sometimes fatal consequences as a result of shoveling snow, pushing cars out of snowbanks, or becoming over-exerted in the cold while hunting or ice fishing.

It's a good rule to avoid the kind of activity that puts lots of stress on your heart and upper body unless you are sure you're in good enough shape to handle such strain. Remember that getting into proper condition takes more than a day or two. Ideally, we should be in good shape long before the first heavy accumulation of snow arrives.

If you must go out to shovel your walks and driveway, be certain to dress in warm clothes. Wear a hat or scarf, since an uncovered head guarantees a significant loss of body heat. Remind yourself that speed is not essential when you're shoveling; pace yourself and take as much time as you need. Take rest breaks as often as you need them. Consider your physical condition and stay within your limitation.

You may want to examine some of the alternatives to shoveling, such as hiring a plow or using a snow blower, especially a self-propelled one.

In any case, it's always wise to approach snow removal with caution. By doing so, you can best defend yourself against the rigors of cold weather and the risk of sprains or heart attack.

Once upon a Christmas . . .

. . . When bustling downtowns welcomed shoppers with a gaslight's glow . . . friends and families ushered in traditions that became our warmest holiday memories.

Those traditions live on in Saginaw County's Old Towns – Chesaning, Frankenmuth and Saginaw.

Twinkling lights and sparkling eyes reflect the joys of the season. The warm glow of shop windows brightens the spirits of young and old alike.

Holiday feasts and yuletide treats add spice to the season while old world charm brings to mind a simpler time.

Delight in memories of a Christmas past; rejoice in Christmas present. In Saginaw County's vibrant Old Towns.

Create a Christmas to remember in Saginaw County Riverlands. Call the Saginaw County Convention & Visitors Bureau today for your free guide to Christmas lights and delights: Toll-free, 1-800-444-9979.

BRAKE PRICES?

UNTIL THEY PULL THE WHEELS, THEY'RE PULLING YOUR LEG.

Think about it. How do some brake places know what your next job'll cost if they've never seen your brakes to begin with? Answer: they don't.

Fact is, there's no way anyone can figure out exactly what the price will be. There are just too many possibilities.

That's why at Midas, we pull all four wheels before every brake job. To get inside your brakes. To inspect them. To positively determine what's gone wrong. From a nine dollar can of fluid to a new master cylinder.

And when we're finished, we'll give you a pinpoint estimate of the entire job. With a price that won't go up when the job's done. That's our promise to you.

So when it comes time to pay, you'll have a leg to stand on.

2. Delete Section 6.06 (4-j)-Permit Required for Planned Unit Development. The following shall be deleted.

All land that is left in a totally natural state shall be counted as eligible for one additional "bonus" residential unit per lot area-density requirement as allowed by the zoning ordinance in that district.

i.e., a 100 acre P.U.D. in A-1 can have 10 initial residential units plus one "bonus" residential unit for every 10 acres of land left in a totally natural state.

The "bonus" acreage will be measured from the set-back requirements of the zoning district the P.U.D. is located in.

The purpose of this section is to encourage more open, totally natural area by allowing the developer more residential units per zoning district than normally allowed.

The Charlevoix Rotary Club provided turkey and fixings for the Thanksgiving dinner served to residents of Pine River Place last week. Residents of the apartment building chipped in with casserole dishes and desserts, making for a festive holiday meal. After dinner, John Gasking, president of the Charlevoix Historical Society, recalled some happenings in early Charlevoix.

E.J. Health Center offers cholesterol test

The East Jordan Family Health Center will host a Blood Pressure Clinic in the Community Room of the Health Center Tuesday, December 5. The blood pressure check is free. Cholesterol testing will be provided at the same time; however, it is requested that appointments be made to reduce waiting time. People may call ahead of time (536-2206) to make the cholesterol testing appointment. There is a $5 charge for that test.

Congressional rep to visit

Bill Huber, district representative for Congressman Bob Davis, will be in Charlevoix from 12:30 p.m. to 2 p.m., Friday, Dec. 1 at the V.F.W. Hall. Huber will be available to discuss any problems people are having with the state or federal government.

Nursing home directory available

Citizens for Better Care has available the 1990-91 Nursing Home Directory for the ten counties of Northwestern Michigan. The guide includes profiles on all the nursing facilities in the ten counties, information on alternatives to nursing homes, how to choose a facility, and the financial aspects of nursing homes.

The guide is an essential tool for those looking for a nursing home placement at the present or for the future. If you would like a copy of the guide, or if you have questions about long-term care facilities, contact Mary Beth Osowski at Citizens for Better Care, 346 E. State St., Suite C, Traverse City, MI, or call (616) 941-1399

The Grand Traverse Chapter of CBC includes the counties of Antrim, Benzie, Charlevoix, Emmet, Grand Traverse, Kalkaska, Leelanau, Manistee, Missaukee and Wexford.

State begins new title program

Beginning Nov. 1, the Secretary of State began issuing newly-designed certificates of title for all motor vehicles, titled watercraft and mobile homes.

The changes were initiated to comply with odometer disclosure requirements established by consumer protection legislation, including the federal Truth in Mileage Act of 1986 and Michigan Public Acts 254 and 255 of 1988 affecting salvage titles.

The Truth in Mileage Act requires vehicle owners to declare odometer mileage at the time ownership of the vehicle is transferred. That mileage now becomes part of the document and will be printed on the front of the title when it is issued. The law also requires owners to declare whether the mileage is actual, not actual, or if it exceeds the mechanical limits of the odometer. That information will also be printed on the front of the title.

Public Acts 254 and 255 require titles to list major component non-salvageable parts and the color of the vehicle. Non-salvageable parts would be those major components that have been badly damaged and cannot be used. Among those parts or components that must be listed on the title are engines, transmissions, front fenders, frames, passenger doors, rear bumpers and truck cabs.

The new certificates of title measure 7 inches by 8 inches and include space on the back side for an additional dealer reassignment. They comply with standards and recommendations agreed upon nationally by all states through their affiliation with the American Association of Motor Vehicle Administrators (AAMVA).

On April 1, 1989, Michigan began issuing a separate certificate of title for "branded" vehicles. Among those vehicles are salvage, municipal, police, driver education and taxis. The "branded" title is orange in color.

Questions concerning the new certificates of title should be directed to the Bureau of Driver and Vehicle Records at 517-322-1166 or by writing to the bureau at 7064 Crowner Drive, Lansing, Michigan 48918.

Boat Company.

At Monday evening's council meeting, DeGrow repeated the Boat Company's interest in initiating some type of cruise ship operation to replace the departed Star of Charlevoix.

Whitley voiced several concerns about the proposed study and changes it might lead to. Whitley said he is concerned about losing a portion of the lake view from Bridge Street and is also concerned about what the project might cost city taxpayers and how that cost will be recouped. He also questioned what rent would be paid to the city and if there would be a loss of parking.

Norm Probert and Haggard said they would like to see the matter go through the DDA where specifications can be developed for a study and involved parties such as the Boat Company can provide more refined and detailed plans.

Charlevoix businesses team up for open house

By LISA BABCOCK
News-Review staff writer

Forty businesses will team up to host one of the largest Christmas open houses in Charlevoix's history this weekend, running 10 a.m.-8 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 2.

The 1989 open house could be the biggest ever, according to Bob Hoffman of the merchant's association. It is the biggest shopping extravaganza he can recall in eight years.

Charlevoix already looks quite a bit like Christmas. The community Christmas tree was decorated last weekend with children's handmade ornaments. The city's electric department shuttled children up the tree in a bucket truck and the tree was lit in a ceremony that included carolers and refreshments.

More children's activities are planned for this weekend, as the annual children's film sponsored by Charlevoix County State Bank begins at 1 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 2 at Cinema III. There is no admission price and no tickets are necessary for the event. The film will be announced.

During the open house, stores will have refreshments, and in every participating business shoppers will have the opportunity to register for three gift certificates worth $300, $200 and $100.

Shoppers can register for the gift certificates Friday, Saturday and Sunday. The more stores shoppers enter, the better their chances of winning a gift certificate.

Winning names will be drawn Monday, Dec. 4, and winners will be notified as soon as possible, Hoffman said.

The gift certificates can be cashed in at any participating store.

Participating businesses include Banhof Sports, Barb's Hallmark Harbor, Bartlett's Decorating Center, Bonnie's Country Spice, Boyne Auto Supply, Bridge Street Ace Hardware, Bridge Street Artists, Buday's Home Electronics, Bullfrog Light Co., Central Drugstore, Charlevoix Antique Mall, Charlevoix County State Bank, The Clothing Co., Coldwell Banker Schmidt Realtors and Country Casuals.

Others include: Dilworth Boat Shop, First State Bank of Charlevoix, Glen's Market, Haggard's Plumbing and Heating, Koucky Gallery, Little Caesar's Pizza Carry Out, Linda C. Mason Interior Decorators, Mayfair of Charlevoix, McDonald's of Charlevoix, McLelland Home Furnishings, Mettler's, Midwest International and Real Wood Furniture.

Other participants are: Sears Authorized Catalogue Merchant, 7-Eleven, Shop of the Gulls, The Silk Flower/Toy Train, Trademark Clothiers, Village Inn Pizza, Villager Pub, Weathervane Restaurant, Wildwood Innovations, Williams' Dockside Pharmacy and Wishes and Whimsics.

Many of the stores also will offer individual drawings for gift certificates and merchandise during the open house. In addition, many merchants plan to offer special open house prices on selected items. (See related story for details.)

More than 400 children and their parents placed decorations on the city Christmas tree in East Park Friday to open the holiday season.

Individual stores plan open house events

Many individual stores have special events planned during the Merchant's Open House 10 a.m.-8 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 2.

A list of the plans of various businesses participating in the open house follows.

Bahnhof Sports — Refreshments will be served to customers throughout the day as they look over the latest in ski wear.

Barb's Hallmark Harbor — Refreshments will be served and specials will be offered on boxed cards and other goods. The store also is offering carousel horse Christmas tree ornaments, featuring a different one each week.

Bartlett's Decorator Center — A drawing for a Bartlett's gift certificate will highlight the open house. Refreshments also will warm visitors as they browse among the furniture and home decorating items.

Bonnie's Country Spice — Christmas music, spiced cranberry drink and Christmas cookies will greet visitors to this State Street business. The store also will offer a drawing for a dried statice wreath and a fresh evergreen wreath. Other prizes awarded will include ornaments and potpourri. A $1 off coupon applies to any item in the store. Owner Bonnie Webster said her store features handmade items and she will be offering different specials throughout the month. She will be open every day until Monday, Dec. 18.

Boyne Auto Supply — Gifts ideas for the home mechanic and home repairman will be available during the open house and throughout the season.

Bridge Street Ace Hardware — If you have an angler on your list or someone who enjoys fine crafts, there's something for them at Ace hardware. Numerous gift ideas will be on display during the open house.

s whose works ~~are on~~ display in the gallery will be on hand for the open house so that visitors can talk with them about their works and meet the people behind the art. The cooperatively-owned gallery will offer refreshments and feature stained glass ornaments, Kath Lather's elves, jewelry boxes and menorahs by Jofar during its holiday display.

Buday's Northern Certified Electronics — The electronic store is having a sale that will beat downstate prices. Camcorders and video cassette recorders (VCRs) will be on sale during the open house and refreshments will be served. During the holiday season, Buday's will offer financing, and is introducing Toshiba Items. Free delivery also is available.

Bullfrog Light Co. — The candle company invites visitors to its retail showroom on Loeb Road off of M-66. The firm does have an outlet at the factory or the candles are available at Mayfair, Barb's Hallmark Harbor and Bonnie's Country Spice.

Central Drug Store — The store's annual Christmas sale will be under way during the open house with a flier about the specials on Christmas gifts and decorations coming through the mail this week. Visitors to the store will be greeted with refreshments as well as sale prices.

Charlevoix Antique Mall — Complimentary refreshments and individual drawings for three gift certificates and special gifts will mark the open house. Also several of the dealers whose items are sold at the mall will be on hand to talk with customers about the individual pieces and to answer questions.

Charlevoix County State Bank — The bank will sponsor a free movie for children 1:30 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 2., at Cinema III during the open house so that parents can shop while their children are enjoying the film. The bank's annual open house is set for Friday, Dec. 8.

Clothing Co. — A Christmas sale on Levis, turtlenecks and other gift items will greet shoppers during the open house. Refreshments catered by Dave Phillips of the Wharfside Deli also will add to the fun. The store offers free gift wrapping throughout the holiday season.

Coldwell Banker-Schmidt Realty — Stop by and see what's hot in Charlevoix during the open house.

Country Casuals — Cider and special sale items will be served during the open house.

Country Customs — Refreshments will be served and the craft shop in the white house will keep its doors open until 8 p.m. Shoppers will have an opportunity to enter a drawing that is part of a contest the shop is holding. Several dolls, stuffed rabbits and other goods made with fabric from the shop are on display and shoppers get to vote with their sales receipts. The winner will be given a basket of fabric and notions. "Voters" will be entered in a drawing for a basket of gift items.

Dilworth Boat Shop — Selected items will be on sale for the merchants open house. Refreshments also will be offered to visitors to the shop right on the docks of Round Lake. Throughout the holiday season the ships store and more will feature extended shopping hours.

First State Bank of Charlevoix — The bank will hold its annual open house Friday, Dec. 15. Punch and cookies will be offered and a drawing for Christmas Club participants will be held. Also, children can get their picture taken with Santa on that day.

Glen's Market — Glen's will be decked out in the Christmas theme during the day-long open house. A special feature on Friday and Saturday will be a "gift show" near the supermarket's deli section. Party trays, specialty meat and wine packages are among the gift ideas.

Haggard's Plumbing and Heating — Close out prices will be of-

Mitten Tree one of community's warmest traditions

By LISA BABCOCK
News-Review staff writer

A Christmas tree decorated with mittens, hats and scarves for the needy will go up soon at First State Bank of Charlevoix, marking one of community's warmest holiday traditions.

The Mitten Tree, organized by the Women's Club, has given help to some of Charlevoix's small needy hands for nearly 30 years.

Nancy Wood remembers that the project began when she was working as a probation officer in the juvenile courts.

A lot of children needed help and didn't have mittens to keep their hands warm, Wood noticed.

The project became incorporated with Project Santa Claus, started by Colleen Wright and Dorothy McRae. The Santa project included toys at first, although over the years, social services and others have taken over those needs, Wood said.

The Mitten Tree was adopted by the Women's Club a few years later, however, and took root and grew.

Demand has increased over the years, and Wood predicts 150s pair of mittens and gloves will be needed this season.

Children from single-parent families don't always have enough money for things, Wood said, and those children are always grateful for the mittens.

Children have always been grateful for the mittens, she said.

The tree isn't just for children anymore, Wood said.Senior citizens and adults need mittens and gloves as much as children, she said.

Mittens are always in demand, because kids and adults lose them, Wood said.

Leftover mittens are used during the rest of the year for the same reason they're given out at Christmas — to keep needy hands warm.Mittens not yet in demand are stored at the community pantry, so the school nurse and others can distribute the leftovers.

Knitters, organizations and individuals who make or buy mittens are asked to contribute.

Even if their Christmas tree isn't covered with jewels, the mitten recipients will have a special set of purls to wear all winter long.

Contributions of mittens are welcome, Wood said. They can be dropped off at Forst State Bank, 111 State Street.

Christmas tree lighting spreads good cheer

The lighting of the Charlevoix community Christmas tree was greeted with ohs and ahs Friday.

A hearty group of area residents dressed for the cold expressed their pleasure as Mayor Gary Probert flipped the switch, magically transforming the tree with lights.

Serving hot chocolate in the park Friday evening in Charlevoix, gave Jacqueline Mabee of The Clothing Co. an opportunity to see the Christmas spirit at work.

Mabee and others who braved the cold watched area children ride the electrical truck cherry picker high in the air to place decorations in just the right spot on the town Christmas tree.

Charlevoix electrical department workers ran the boom from noon until well after dark so that every child could place his or her ornament on the tree. Many moms and dads were given rides as well.

Ed Whitley, electrical department supervisor, estimated close to 500 people took a ride in the truck.

Mabee said the tree decorating is a part of what Christmas is all about in Charlevoix. She enjoys the "good cheer" shared by the community.

The hot chocolate was donated by the Charlevoix Merchants Association.

Joel Trubilowicz (center, top photo) and his mother, Marty, are lifted to the top of the city's Christmas tree by Greg Skeel of the city electrical department. More than 400 children and adults were on hand to decorate the tree throughout the afternoon Friday. Electrical department workers stayed until well after dark to give every child a chance to place his or her decoration on the city tree. Not everyone decorated the tree from the top. Some children (bottom photo) put their handmade ornaments on the lower branches of the tree in Charlevoix's East Park.

What makes Charlevoix special at Christmas?

What is it that makes Charlevoix special at Christmas?

Is it the tiny white lights that cast a warm glow throughout the downtown?

Is it the gently falling snow that gives the city that Christmas card perfect gown of white?

Is it the friendly, small town atmosphere that extends through all the seasons?

For Judy Carey, Charlevoix at Christmas is all this and more.

Carey, who runs the Charlevoix Antique Mall on U.S. 31 just south of the city, finds Charlevoix magical at Christmas.

"With the snow, the little white lights and all the decorating everyone does, it makes it kind of magical," Carey said.

For Harold Cowles of Haggard Plumbing and Heating Charlevoix is a happy, fun city at Christmas.

Bill Stewart of Bullfrog Light Co. likes the sparkling lights on the trees and the atmosphere.

"I really like the small town atmosphere," Stewart said. "I like shopping in a real downtown with sidewalks, not malls. I like getting out and going from store to store."

Carolyn Young of Silk Flower/Toy Train on Michigan Avenue likes going from store to store, too. Christmas shopping for her is not walking in a mall.

"It's going from shop to shop and feeling winter," Young said.

For Sue Bartlett of Bartlett's Decorator Center, the quaint small town atmosphere is what makes her Christmas in Charlevoix. She likes the small touches merchants offer.

"You get personalized service here that you don't get in a bigger city," Bartlett said. "You go in the shops and everyone's real friendly."

Barb Godwin of Bridge Street Artists Gallery agreed.

"There's nothing more personal than going into the stores and being greeted by all the shopkeepers," Godwin said.

"You're still a name here," Lani Ochs of Central Drug added. "And there's not a mad rush.

"You can park a lot closer here than you can at the mall, too."

Seeing familiar faces adds to the fun of the Christmas season, according to Jackie Mabee of The Clothing Co.

"There's a lot of good cheer running around," she said.

Bonnie Webster of Bonnie's Country Spice on State Street agreed.

"Everybody goes all out and is in the Christmas spirit," Webster said of the city during the holidays.

Christmas is the one time of year that businessman Don Norman wishes he was located downtown. The owner of Real Wood Furniture, across for Pizza Hut on Bridge Street, said, "I love the lights and the snow and the old town atmosphere. Everybody knows everybody, almost, and you meet people on the street you know. It's just nice."

Tom Ceran of McLelland's Home Furnishings thinks the mix of the city's history, scenery and friendliness makes it a special place for Christmas.

"With its history and the rolling hills and evergreen trees, it's a charming place to be at Christmas," Ceran said.

Charlevoix churches pull together to help needy

By LISA BABCOCK
News-Review staff writer

CHARLEVOIX — Santa isn't the only one packing important holiday gifts. Anonymous Santas from several of Charlevoix's churches are checking lists once and checking them twice to find the needy and fill grocery bags with holiday goods.

Needy families have been identified and postcards are being sent out to them asking if they are willing to accept a gift.

Needy families are identified by the Department of Social Services and the school nurse. Names are cleared with agencies so holiday efforts won't be duplicated, explained Jean Giffin, a volunteer.

The local Santas are preparing grocery bags that will contain turkey and fixings for a holiday meal and canned goods that they might need.

Children will get a toy and a piece of clothing, and adults over 75 also get a gift in their package. Mittens from the mitten tree, run by the Women's Club, are included in packages.

The Community Christmas Project started in 1983 and grew out of the food pantry at the Congregational Church, according to Giffin.

Several churches are involved in the effort, with different churches providing volunteers and serving different needs. To make the Christmas project work, volunteers are needed to buy the goods, package the goods, contact the people and many other services.

Last year, baskets were given to 160 families, and this year Giffin expects the need to be even greater, based on the increased use of the food pantry this year.

The bags can be delivered or picked up. When a recipient picks up the gift, he or she is given a number, and the number is used to give them the bag.

It is done that way so people won't have to give their names.

"It's hard for people to have to accept the gifts," Giffin said.

Although some people may skeptically assume that people take what they don't need, she disagrees.

"For all the people that take advantage (of the project), others are too modest to accept," she said.

There is more unemployment this year and the pantry has served more people who were traveling through town and lingering for a while.

For Giffin, the effort is special. "It really is a time when you realize a town has a heart," she said. Giffin thinks the general outpouring of good will is gratifying.

Mittens and financial donations are welcome. Mittens can be dropped off at First State Bank, 111 State St., and checks may be sent to Community Christmas Project, care of the First Congregational Church, Charlevoix.

Council resurrects bandshell debate

The East Park bandshell, an issue which has been dormant recently, has been resurrected and will be discussed at the city council work session next Monday.

Councilman Ken Whitley raised the issue at this past Monday evening's council meeting. Whitley said he wants to put a fish pond and stage back in the park.

Whitley said he wants something built which will be similar to what was previously in the park although perhaps the stage could be 10 to 15 percent larger.

When asked if he felt money raised by the bandshell committee for a pavilion should be used to reconstruct a stage, Whitley said as far as he's concerned, that's up to the bandshell committee. He said that if the committee wants the funds they've raised to go toward the stage, fine. If not, then he would like to see city funds and state grant money used to replace the stage and pond.

Some of the other councilmen hesitated to act at Monday evening's meeting, but unanimously concurred with a recommendation to discuss the bandshell at next Monday's work session with an eye toward acting the following week.

Following the meeting, bandshell committee members said they have been working with construction firms in recent weeks to get prices on a scaled-down bandshell.

U.S.C.G. Mesquite runs aground

Three crewmen were injured and the crew of the U.S. Coast Guard Cutter Mesquite was forced to abandon ship Monday morning Charlevoix based ship ran aground near the Keweenaw Point in Lake Superior.

Despite the injuries, all of the crewmen are safe and accounted for. The injured crewmen were taken to Portage View Hospital in Hancock and treated for chest pains, an ankle injury and an injured arm.

Damage to the ship forced the crew to take to smaller boats carried on the Mesquite and abandon ship. The crew was taken aboard the Mangal Desai, a commercial ship registered in Bombay, India, a short time later.

The 180-foot Mesquite was in Lake Superior performing routine maintenance on navigational aids and ran aground at approximately 2:30 a.m. Commanding Officer J. Richard Lynch gave the abandon ship order approximately four hours later.

Two U.S. Coast Guard HH-3F helicopters from the Traverse City station were dispatched to the scene with water pumps. Coast Guard Cutters Katmia Bay, Acacia and Mobile Bay were also dispatched to the scene.

The Mesquite was built in 1942 by the Marine Iron and Shipbuilding Corp.

Driver faces manslaughter charges

Kenneth Allen Schrum, 27, of Warren has been ordered to stand trial in 33rd Circuit Court on two counts of manslaughter with a motor vehicle.

Schrum was the driver of a car involved in a Sept. 17 two-car collision which killed Bob and Maxine Drenth, the driver and passenger in the other car.

According to testimony offered in a preliminary examination Nov. 30 in 90th District Court: -Schrum had consumed five to seven beers in the hours preceding the accident;

-may have been exceeding the speed limit as he entered a sharp curve on Marion Center Road;

-was warned by a passenger in his vehicle to slow down as he entered the curve;

-had difficulty negotiating the same curve the day prior to the accident;

-lost control of his vehicle, crossed the center line and collided with the Drenth vehicle.

Based upon those factors, Charlevoix County Prosecuting Attorney Kraag Lieberman ask-

College financial aid explained

High school juniors and seniors planning to attend college are invited to bring their parents to a college financial aid meeting at 7 p.m., Monday, Dec. 11 in the Charlevoix High School study hall.

High school counselors Toni Felter and Charlie Bentley will explain federal, state and local programs available to help students with college costs. Among the programs explained will be the Pell Grant, Michigan Competitive Scholarship Program, Michigan Tuition Grant Program, Parent Loan Program, Perkins Loan, Paul Douglas Teacher Scholarship Program, Stafford Loan and college work study programs.

Felter and Bentley will also explain the process for applying for college financial aid and some of the forms involved.

An Apple computer with a program used in determining financial aid eligibility will be available for families who wish to plug in family financial figures to get an estimate of how much financial aid they can expect. An estimate of 1989 tax information can be used in this process or for a less accurate estimate, figures from a 1988 tax statement.

A significant portion of the meeting will be set aside for students and parents to ask questions. Additional information can also be obtained by contacting the high school student services office at 547-3226.

Current estimates for the cost of college at a public four-year college range from $5,900 to $8,500. Estimates for costs at private colleges range from $8,500 to $15,000 per year.

ed District Judge Harvey C. Varnum to order Schrum bound over to Circuit Court on the manslaughter charges. The manslaughter charge is a felony offense punishable by up to 15 years in prison and-or a $7,500 fine.

Schrum's attorney, John Fershee, argued that if Schrum was bound over to Circuit Court, it should be on a charge of negligent homicide rather than manslaughter.

Fershee contended that a charge of negligent homicide requires that a death occurred and there was negligence involved, but a charge of manslaughter requires willful, wanton or gross negligence.

Referring to a State Supreme Court decision, Fershee said the standards for gross negligence are very high and require that a person: has knowledge of the need for care in a situation; has the ability to avoid a problem by using ordinary care; and fails to use ordinary care.

Lieberman argued that the Schrum case meets the standards for gross negligence and therefore the manslaughter charge is in order.

"The defendant was more than on notice about the dangers of this curve," Lieberman said.

Varnum's decision was in line with Lieberman's position.

"What I've hear here today satisfies me that I can bind the defendant over on these two charges (manslaughter)," Varnum stated.

In explaining his decision, Varnum referred to: medical reports indicating the Drenths died as a result of the accident; Schrum's problems on the curve the day before the accident; and testimony by Schrum's passenger (see accompanying story concerning testimony) that he braced himself and warned Schrum to slow down as they came to the curve.

Varnum ordered Schrum to be arraigned in Circuit Court Dec. 11. Pending further court action, Schrum will continue to be free on a $2,000 cash bond.

The purpose of district court preliminary examinations is to determine if a felony offense was committed and if there is a probable cause indicating the accused may have committed the act. If the district court judge determines a felony was committed and there is probable cause, then then defendant is bound over to circuit court for arraignment and trial.

Testimony indicates driver was warned about curve

According to testimony at a Nov. 30 preliminary examination, a driver involved in a Sept. 17 traffic accident which caused the deaths of Bob and Maxine Drenth was warned one day prior to the accident to be careful on the curve where his vehicle went out of control.

Cancer Society trims trees to raise funds

The Charlevoix County Unit of the American Cancer Society is raising funds for cancer research, education and patient services with a "Love Trims A Tree" Christmas campaign.

Christmas trees for the drive are located in the Market Mall in Charlevoix and Northwestern State Bank in East Jordan. People wishing to help with the program may make a donation in honor or memory of someone. That person will be represented on one of the trees by a dove decoration designed by local artist Cara Hochhalter. The names of the honorees will be recognized at the tree.

Donations may be made by sending a check to the American Cancer Society, P.O. Box 304, Charlevoix MI 49720. A $5 minimum donation is requested for the Christmas ornaments.

The Charlevoix County Unit of the American Society is also looking for volunteers to work with Society programs. For additional information, call unit president Dana Pajtas at 547-4767.

Many people wonder what brings such a strong array of artistic talent to Northern Michigan. I'm referring to Brian Froud and his lovely wife Wendy, who have singly and jointly worked with puppeteer, Jim Hensen on several films including "Star Wars", "The Empire Strikes Back", "Dark Crystal" and "Labrynth"; and Wendy's proud parents, Walter and Peggy Midener, both former teachers at Detroit's Center For Creative Studies.

It all began in the turreted attic of a three story brick house called, "The Elms" high on a hill in East Jordan. That's where Peggy MacKenzie Midener played with family heirlooms, when she visited her grandmother during the summer. And that's where her daughter, now Wendy Midener Froud, rummaged through the musty trunks filled with old bits of satin and lace, when she was a child. Peggy's imagination still tingles to the thrill of discovering secret treasures in special hiding places. After years of studying art, and teaching painting at the Center for Creative Studies in Detroit, she now turns to creating whimsical boxes with secret compartments that sell for hundreds of dollars in Detroit and Chicago galleries. In Charlevoix you can explore her imaginative work in the Koucky Gallery.

While a student, Peggy met her future husband, Walter Midener, who was teaching sculpture at CCS. Of course, she brought him to East Jordan. There he relaxed while fishing on the Jordan River for trout. But when the sculpting urge overtook him, he converted the home garage into a studio. Today his work is owned by many private collectors, is represented in major public institutions. He has won many important prizes and is represented in major museums throughout the United States. Trained in Germany, Walter fled during the Hitler years to the United States, became a citizen and joined the American army. His military career is as interesting as his artistic career. Attached to Military Intelligence, his unit was the first to arrive at Buchenwald. He also won the Silver Star for capturing 80 German soldiers single handedly. Before the war ended, Walter was wounded and received the Purple Heart.

During his career at CCS, Walter rose to become the Director of CCS and saw the school achieve national accreditation. He had the honor of presenting his daughter Wendy with her diploma.

Wendy told me she did not want to compete with her father's sculpting or with her mother's painting. Therefore she chose crafts as her specialty, and–shades of old attic trunks–she particularly enjoyed creating whimsical dolls, trimmed in ribbons and lace, feathers and fur, beads and brass. A trip to New York, a private show, a stroke of luck, and she was hired my Jim Hensen, the puppeteer. A prominent English illustrator worked in the same studio. His name – Brian Froud. He may be better known here as the co-author of

REASONABLE TO ME

L. SCOTT SWANSON

Loading diapers - a dirty job ...

Clenches her fists, waves her arms, kicks her feet, scrunches up her face and wails, this baby does.

Well, I suppose I'd do that too if I started storing up gas generated by things I ate. Either wail or explode.

For some reason unknown to me, burping is not our baby's strong suit. I'm not sure why she's reluctant to burp. Perhaps she's just too well-mannered for her own good. If that's the case, it must be something she inherited from her mother. It's never been a problem for me.

We've received several suggestions, kind of miracle cures, for baby burping. We've given each suggestion a fair shot. Hold the baby high on your shoulder. Lay her on her stomach across your lap. Watch what her mother eats. Keep the baby's head lower than her stomach. Hold the baby. vertical while feeding her.

None of these things has been successful on a consistant basis. Every so often the baby refuses to burp after eating and an hour or two later the wailing begins.

Only two things seem to bring relief. The baby's not happy again until she either burps or loads her diaper. And she only does those things in her own good time. Parental begging and pleading is wailed down without a hearing and does nothing to speed the process. You just have to wait her out.

When these rantings occur during business hours they're no big deal. Unfortunately, they more often begin around midnight and, like a bad movie, by the time they're over you're more than ready.

As noted, the baby is reluctant to burp. Therefore, her relief of choice is the diaper route.

Diapers, specifically the volume of them a baby goes through in a day, have been the biggest surprise to me in this baby-raising endeavor. Going into the program, I figured diapers would be purchased in units similar to beer or pop; 12-packs or 24-packs. So I was wrong. Diapers are purchased in units similar to hay; they come in bales.

The life of a diaper is a dangerous and unpredictable thing. In terms of average life expectancy, even fruit flies do better than diapers. I changed and buried one the other night that had lasted just less than eight minutes.

Normally, diaper fillings are nothing to look forward to. But when it's late at night and the baby's got gas, mommy and daddy look forward to a diaper filling like a kid looks forward to Christmas; staying awake until it gets here.

While baby burps are surprises for which there is no introduction, a diaper filling is an event which follows a build-up.

The baby will pause from her wailing, look around for a second and catch her breath. If you're a parent who's been walking the floor for an hour or so with this crying baby, you view this as a good sign.

Then she will clench her fists, puff her cheeks, cross her eyes and tense every little muscle from head to toe. Another promising sign.

At 1:25 a.m., even a parent disinclined to outbursts of emotion will feel compelled to offer impassioned encouragement. "Do it kid. Blast that diaper into oblivion. Load it to the max."

The baby straightens her legs a bit and theres a squirting noise. The family dog, who's been sprawled on the floor watching this fiasco, lifts his head and sniffs at the air with interest. Another diaper bites the dust.

And that's the show's finale. Once the baby's cleared her system, she's happy as a clam. Following a diaper change, the same baby who moments before was a screaming fiend is replaced by a drowsy little angel nestled in her crib.

Child battles heart problem

I would like to tell you a little about James Arthur Thomas Richardson, who was two months old Dec. 4.

He is my great-nephew, which means his mom is my niece.

James is a bright, happy, smiling little rascal and he's growing faster than the national debt.

But he has an awfully big problem.

James was born with a condition called tetralogy de Fallot, a congenital deformity of the heart.

According to Taber's Cyclopedic Medical Dictionary, tetralogy de Fallot is "an anomaly of the heart consisting of pulmonary stenosis, interventricular septal defect, dextroposed aorta which receives blood from both ventricles, and hypertrophy of the right ventricle."

A lot of big words for such a little fellow.

A tetralogy is a condition with four symptoms or elements. Fallot is the name of the French doctor who first recognized the condition. It's pronounced "Fall-ow."

I think it is encouraging that his condition has a name.

Judy and I visited young James in Plymouth over the weekend and Great Uncle Bob was allowed to hold him and give him a kiss on the top of the head. Great Aunt Judy held him longer and gave him a knitted mint-green bunting she had made for him.

Although James doesn't know it, he has a rough year ahead. Dec. 13 he will enter Mott Children's Hospital in Ann Arbor for catheterization. This means doctors will insert a slender tube equipped with a monitoring device into one of his blood vessels until it reaches the heart. Then they will be able to look around to determine the extent of the deformity.

The procedure isn't exactly a piece of cake for a full-grown adult. For a baby with tiny organs and blood vessels, the examination can be quite precarious.

Then, when James is between nine months and a year old, he will enter the hospital for open-heart surgery. Doctors will mend the hole between the ventricles of the heart, reshape a faulty valve and effect other repairs.

James' parents — Gary and Cheryl Richardson — are taking their first-born's medical problems in stride. They are ready for any contigency and are prepared to rush James to the hospital at the first sign of cyanosis — a bluish tint to the fingernails and lips. That is why he sleeps in their bedroom in my old crib — a piece of furniture which has been handed down in the family from generation to generation to generation.

Gary and Cheryl are buoyed by their confidence in the doctors at Mott Children's Hospital and the knowledge that the heart is an extremely durable organ. Little James has a great-grandfather who just celebrated his 97th birthday and is still hearty.

So James is a lucky little guy to be born into a loving home in a day and age when medical science can recognize and treat malformed hearts such as his.

WINTER WALKING in downtown Charlevoix isn't what it used to be.

This fall, new sidewalks were laid on the west side of Bridge Street and, in keeping with our new awareness of the needs of the handicapped, curbstones have been removed at street corners for the convenience of wheelchair patients.

Of course, this means that flags of concrete at corners must slope slightly toward the street.

Slanted sidewalks are fine in fair weather; but our recent spate of ice and snow has turned almost every crosswalk in town into a veritable toboggan chute.

Ask me. I went sailing down one such icy grade the other night, lost my balance and landed on my left elbow.

If I hadn't been in prime physical condition, I could have broken my humerus — which would not have been very humorous.

So trod carefully when approaching any of our new street corners. The grading was done for a good reason — to assist the handicapped. And such corners are negotiable — even if it means walking to one side in the snow.

If you are in your twilight years (17 or older), it might be a good idea to carry a ski pole when venturing downtown.

the best seller "Faerics" and another book, "The Land of Froud." These two artists had a lot more in common than dolls and faerics, muppets and puppets for soon a fanciful wedding was planned in England with all the muppeteers present. Wendy and Brian spent their honeymoon where else, but in the old brick grandfather house in East Jordan, which is still in the family, and used as a guest house. The Mideners, in the meantime, permanently settled in their own charming double studio on Lake Charlevoix.

Returning to England, Brian was asked to design the sets, characters and costumes for the Hensen film "Dark Crystal," while Wendy make the Gelflings. At the same time she was also lent to help develop Yoda in "Star Wars." The most recent film "Labrynth" includes another generation, Toby, who plays the abducted baby in the film.

This year, Wendy, Brian and Toby will spend their first Christmas in East Jordan with the Mideners.

To coincide with this visit, during the month of December, the Crooked Tree Arts Council is honored to give a Midener-Froud Exhibit in the gallery at the Virginia McCune Arts Center in Petoskey. Here you will see sculptures in wood, metal and terra cotta by Walter Midener, new whimsical boxes by Peggy, drawings and paintings by Brian, and a collection of artistic dolls by Wendy. It should be quite a show.

If you'd like to meet this outstanding family in person, come to the grand opening on Tuesday, December 19, between 5 and 7 o'clock. Refreshments will be served and you may share the holiday spirit with four very talented and charming artists.

Food pantry program fills a need

Santa isn't the only one packing important holiday gifts. Local anonymous Santas from several of Charlevoix's churches are checking lists once and checking them twice to find the needy and fill grocery bags with holiday goods.

Needy families have been identified and postcards are being sent to them asking if they are willing to accept a gift.

Needy families are identified by the Department of Social Services and the school nurse. Names are cleared with agencies so holiday efforts won't be duplicated, said Jean Giffin, a volunteer.

The Charlevoix Santas are preparing grocery bags that will contain turkey and fixings for a holiday meal and staple goods that they might need.

Children will get a toy and a piece of clothing, and adults over 75 also get a gift in their package. Both young and old get mittens from the Women's Club Mitten Tree project.

The Community Christmas project started in 1983 and grew out of the food pantry at the Congregational Church, according to Giffin, a parishoner.

Several churches are involved in the effort, with different churches providing volunteers and serving different needs. To make the Christmas project work, volunteers are needed to buy the goods, package the goods, contact the people and many other services.

Last year, baskets were given to 160 families, and this year Giffin expects the need to be even greater, based on the increased use of the food pantry.

The bags can be delivered or picked up. When a recipient picks up the gift, they are given a number, and the number is used to give them the bag.

It is done that way so people won't have to give their names.

"It's hard for people to have to accept the gifts," Giffin said. Although some people may skeptically assume that people take what they don't need, she disagrees.

"For all the people who take advantage (of the project), others are too modest to accept," she said.

She expects to help more families this year because there is more unemployment and the pantry has served more people who were traveling through town and linger for a while.

For Giffin, the effort is special.

"It really is a time when you realize a town has a heart," she said. Giffin thinks the general outpouring of good will is gratifying.

Included in the baskets are mittens from the mitten tree, run by the Women's Club, for young and old recipients. Children get a toy and an article of clothing, and a gift is included in the packages for people older than 75.

Mittens and financial donations are welcome. Mittens can be dropped off at First State Bank, 111 State St., and checks may be sent to Community Christmas Project, care of the First Congregational Church, Charlevoix.

FAMILY

Jones - Melling

Beth Jones & Malcom Melling

Mr. and Mrs. Neil Jones of Charlevoix announce the engagement of their daughter, Bethany Ann, to Malcolm Anthony Melling of Wigan, England. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Melling of Wigan.

The bride-elect graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1984, attended Northwestern Michigan College, and graduated from Southeastern Academy in 1987. Later, she was employed by Norwegian Cruise Lines.

Her fiance graduated from Liverpool University in 1987 and is currently employed by the Wigan School Authority as a traveling instructor in brass band instruments.

Raymond - Heille

LORI AND CHRISTOPHER HEILLE

Lori Raymond and Christopher Heille exchanged wedding vows Saturday, October 7, at the Charlevoix Assembly of God Church.

The Rev. Joe Johnston officiated at the double ring candlelight ceremony before a decorated arch flanked by lighted candelabra.

The bride is the daughter of Louie and Sonya Raymond of Charlevoix, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Heille of Annandale, Minnesota.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her parents, wore a gown of satin with an overlay of lace. A large bow accented the back of the gown, and smaller bows extended into the long train. Her veil was attached to a satin headband with miniature pearls, and her bouquet was an arrangement of white and pink roses.

Wedding music was offered by Ingrid Skarspad and special music by Sandy Johnston.

Jennifer Bonar served as maid of honor, and Betsy Haggard, Heather Bradley, and Tammi Heille were bridesmaids. They wore tea-length floral print chintz dresses and carried bouquets of white and pink roses. Katie Sue Way was flower girl and wore a dress similar to those of the bridesmaids.

Scott Raymond, brother of the bride, served as best man, and Todd Wold, Dave Charpontier, and Bruce Rokala were groomsmen. Craig Hale and Dave Charpontier assisted as ushers.

The bride's gown and the flower girl's dress were made by Jina Purvis. The bridemaids' dresses were made by Jenny Bellairs.

Following the wedding ceremony, the bride's parents hosted a reception in the fellowship hall of the church. Barney and Kris Way served as master and mistress of ceremonies, Aunts Loretta Tousley and Bonnie Elzinga served the wedding cake, and Scott Raymond provided a "Congratulations" sign.

The bridegroom's parents hosted the rehearsal dinner, also in the fellowship hall of the church.

Following a wedding trip to Mackinac Island, the newlyweds are now at home in Wilmar, Minnesota, where the bridegroom serves with the Youth for Christ Ministries.

... testimony indicates driver was warned about curve

Four witnesses were called to testify in the preliminary examination of Kenneth Schrum. Schrum, 25 of Warren, who has been charged with two counts of manslaughter.

Scott Hartley of Roseville was a passenger in Schrum's vehicle when it collided with the Drenth vehicle on Marion Center road.

Hartley noted that the day prior to the accident Schrum had difficulty negotiating the curve at the southern end of the cemetery. Hartley said that on Sept. 16 he warned Schrum about the turns near the cemetery and commented that the cemetery was there for people who don't make the turns.

Hartley testified that he and Schrum had worked together and become fishing buddies. On Sept. 17, they were in Charlevoix to fish for salmon. They were staying with Hartley's uncle and aunt who live on Marion Center Road.

On the afternoon of Sept. 17, Schrum and Hartley came into town to do some sight-seeing. During the afternoon they visited the downtown area as well as some outlying parks and streams. They were drinking beer while sight-seeing.

According to Hartley's testimony, he consumed five beers during the afternoon while Schrum consumed five to seven.

Following an early-evening cookout at Hartley's uncle and aunt's, Hartley and Schrum got into Schrum's car to return to town to do some evening fishing.

Hartley testified that as they came off of the hill by the Belvedere Golf Course and over the old railroad crossing he felt Schrum was going too fast. Hartley said he braced himself and cautioned Schrum to slow down.

As the Schrum vehicle entered the curve Schrum lost control. Hartley said Schrum swerved, overcompensated, crossed the center-line into the oncoming lane and collided with the Drenth vehicle.

Under cross examination by Schrum's attorney John Fershee, Hartley said that although he suffered injuries in the accident, he doesn't hold any bad feelings or animosity toward Schrum.

Three police officers testified at the preliminary examination; two sheriff's deputies and a state police accident reconstruction specialist.

The first deputy to arrive at the accident scene testified that he talked to Schrum first at the scene and later at the hospital.

The deputy said that at the scene Schrum seemed to be somewhat disoriented and shaken up. He said he asked Schrum if he had been drinking and Schrum said he'd had one beer.

The deputy said Schrum also told him that the Drenth vehicle had come into his lane and he'd swerved to avoid hitting it.

The deputy said he had Schrum take two field sobriety tests at the accident scene. He called the results of the test borderline.

Under cross examination by Fershee, the deputy said he did not give Schrum a breathalyzer test at the scene because Schrum had blood on his tongue and that can skew test results.

The deputy testified that at the hospital he again asked Schrum how much he'd had to drink and Schrum indicated he may have had two beers.

The deputy asked Schrum to allow a blood alcohol test. Schrum said he would, but first he wanted to speak to a friend. After Schrum spoke to the friend, the deputy again asked him to allow a blood alcohol test. Schrum again said he would, but first he wanted to talk to someone else.

After the third time Schrum said he first wanted to speak to someone, the deputy sought and acquired a warrant for the blood alcohol test.

The second deputy testified that he took photos and measurements at the accident scene. He said the point of impact was in the southbound (the Drenth vehicle) lane. The deputy testified that there were no scuff marks in the north bound lane or indications that either vehicle had left the roadway prior to the collision.

The speedometer of the Schrum vehicle was broken and stuck at 54 miles per hour, the deputy said.

The deputy talked to Schrum at the hospital where Schrum said the other vehicle cut him off and he thought he was going 25 miles per hour at the time of the accident.

The state police officer was received by the court as an expert witness in accident reconstruction. He testified that he had examined the vehicles, taken photos and measurements at the scene, spoken to the passenger in the Schrum vehicle and talked to other investigating officers.

According to the state policeman, the point of impact was well into the southbound lane. He said he attempted to use a formula to determine the speed of the vehicles at the time of impact, but could not make a determination.

However, he was able to use another formula to determine the speed at which a vehicle would lose traction on the curve in question. According to those calculations a vehicle will lose traction on the curve in question at 63 to 67 miles per hour under normal circumstances.

Fershee asked if it would be possible for someone to be proceeding through the curve at the speed limit and lose control.

The officer said not if the driver stays in his own lane. Changing the path of the car would alter the speed at which traction would be lost in the curve.

Garden Club installs officers

Inge Ledahl will be installed as president of the Charlevoix Area Garden Club at a Christmas luncheon at noon Tuesday, December 12 at the Weathervane Restaurant.

Ledahl is serving her second term as president and will be assisted by Rebecca Haney, first vice president; Lois Lewis, second vice president; Reatha Trentham, treasurer; and Nan VandenBerg, recording secretary and Esther Bleha, corresponding secretary.

The 50th anniversary of the founding of the Charlevoix club, affiliated with the Federated Garden Clubs of Michigan, Inc., will be observed. Charter members still active in the club are Lillian Swinton and Margaret Erber.

Nancy Fowler is hostess and Ann Mikulski and Lois Lewis co-hostesses.

Contributions may be donated to a favorite charity or the American Heart Association. Envelopes for those purposes are available at the Winchester Funeral Home, Charlevoix.

BEACONS OF BLESSINGS

by Rev. Duane Nelson
Charlevoix Church of the Nazarene

We have finally moved into the Christmas season. This is probably the most popular holiday of the year. Most everybody looks forward to Christmas. The kids can't wait until Mom and Dad leave the house so they can case all the closets for their gifts. Dad waits with a joyous heart for the tie he'll receive. Mom looks for that new jewelry box; the one from last Christmas is getting worn out. And brother and sister are ready to tear right into that package of underwear. Christmas is a lot of fun, isn't it?

Christmas is a fun and a very serious holiday also. In Isaiah 6:1-8, Isaiah received a glance of the Christmases to come. Isaiah has a vision of the Lord seated on a throne, high and lifted up, with the train of his robe filling the entire temple. He then saw above the Lord's head some angelic beings. Each had six wings; with two they covered their faces, two their feet, and two they were flying. They called out to one another in voices that were so loud and commanding that they shook the doorposts and thresholds, "Holy, holy, holy is the Lord Almighty; the whole earth is full of his glory" (Isaiah 6:3, NIV). As they were saying that and shaking the temple, smoke began to fill the building.

Isaiah, even though a godly man, saw the absolute purity of God. He knew from that experience that he needed a deeper cleansing. After which, we find him quite dedicated in service (v.8). Isaiah finallys saw the exalted God! This humbled him and pushed him to a deeper cleansing for service.

As we begin this Christmas season with all the fun that it holds, let's take some time to enter the presence of the exalted Christ. It is easy to see the infant Christ around Christmas, but much more difficult to see the exalted Christ.

To exalt Christ in our lives we need to seek His forgiveness and live for Him. After we have done that, we need to put ourselves in His presence just like Isaiah. We may never have his vision, but we can experience this deeper cleansing for service. It's not magic or Hollywood. However it does take some humility of heart, obedience of will, and like Isaiah a willingness to change.

Let's have fun with Christmas this year, but also take some time to realize why we have this fun and exalt the King!

Walter Wujcik

Walter Wujcik, 65, of Charlevoix and formerly of Hamtramck, died Nov. 28, 1989, at his Charlevoix home.

Funeral was Friday, Dec. 1, at St. Mary's Church, Charlevoix. The Rev. James K. Gardiner officiated and burial was in St. Mary's Cemetery, Charlevoix.

Mr. Wujcik was born Oct. 12, 1924, in Hamtramck, the son of John and Ksenia (Kocira) Wujcik.

He was employed by the A.Z. Shmina Co. for 32 years as a mason, retiring in 1985.

Mr. Wujcik married the former Evelyn Peters on Feb. 27, 1977, in Charlevoix. He resided in the Charlevoix area for the past four years where he also did masonry work.

He was a veteran of World War II, serving with the U.S. Navy in the European Theater.

Mr. Wujcik was a member of the Bricklayers Union, Local No. 2 in Detroit; a member of St. Mary's Catholic Church and a member of Knights of Columbus Pierre de Charlevoix Council No. 7172.

Survivors include: his wife Evelyn P.; one daughter, Waja and one son, Wally, all of Charlevoix; one niece, Celestina Brenz and one nephew, John Wojcik, both of Warren.

He was preceded in death by two brothers, John and Anthony.

The family suggests memorials to St. Mary's School education fund. Envelopes for that purpose are available at the Winchester Funeral Home, Charlevoix.

Exchange students honored

Park gets new showers

A spanking new shower building, complete with red tile floors, white ceramic shower stalls, toilets, and lavatories, and white epoxy walls will be ready for swimmers and campers at Whiting Park next summer.

Countryside Carpenters submitted the low bid of $57,000 for the structure and work is now underway, as well as road paving by Hotchkiss and Douma.

According to County Recreation Director Mike Davis, the new building is replacing an older, inadequate structure, and the paved access road and parking lot is replacing the old dirt road which frequently washed out.

The new building is on the lake side of Ferry Road, accessible to both swimmers and campers. Fifty percent of the cost of the structure and road will be paid for by a grant from the state Department of Natural Resources. The county's 50 percent share is earmarked and available for immediate use.

Church hosts Secret Shop

The First Congregational Church will host Santa's Secret Shop from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m., Saturday, Dec. 9 at the Elementary School.

Children will be able to purchase inexpensive gifts ranging in price from a quarter to $5. Youth from the church will be available to help the children select gifts.

Adult shoppers are also welcome.

Rev. Robert F. Pfeiffer

The Rev. Robert F. Pfeiffer, 88, long-time Oyster Bay summer resident, died November 29, in Southfield.

Memorial services were held Sunday, December 3, at the Church of the Redeemer, and interment will be in Pasadena, California.

The deceased grew up in Sheboygan, Wisconsin and he was united in marriage to the former Jane Brigham, who preceded him in death.

Survivors include a son, Robert Pfeiffer, Jr. of Palm Desert, California; a daughter, Betsy Valentine of Birmingham; and five grandchildren and one great grandchild.

Grange to host Christmas party

Barnard Grange will celebrate Christmas with it's annual Christmas program at 4 p.m. Sunday, December 10.

The program will feature acts from the Grange members and a visit from that jolly old man in the red suit from the North Pole. That's right, even Santa himself will join the festivities.

Sunday, December 31, there will be a square and round dance to ring in the new year. Dancing will begin at 8 p.m. and go at least until 1990 arrives.

The Barnard Grange cordially invites the public to attend both of these holiday events.

MADD plans candlelight vigil

The Grand Traverse regional chapter of Mothers Against Drunk Driving (MADD) will sponsor a candlelight vigil at 7 p.m., Monday, Dec. 11 at the Traverse City Government Center. People from the city of Charlevoix and Charlevoix County will be attending.

The names of all of the people in Michigan who died in alcohol-related traffic accidents during 1989 will be read.

A special invitation to the vigil is made to the relatives of victims and the general public is also invited.

BUSINESS

Family video shop opens in mall

Show Biz Video opened in Charlevoix this past weekend. The store features video entertainment for the entire family. Shown from left are David Moats, Mickey Mouse, Durinda Moats and David Moats. Mickey will be given away in a Christmas drawing.

The bright lights surrounding the movie posters in the Market Mall are reminiscent of the old movie theater marquees, and that's what they're supposed to look like.

The lights point the way to the Showbiz Family Video Super Store, a video service center which has just opened for business.

Showbiz is the fourth video center in the area operated by Rob and Durinda Moats. The others are in Petoskey, Gaylord, and Harbor Springs. The Charlevoix Center has 2,000 titles on its shelves, with subject matter ranging from latest releases to the oldest classics.

The titles are arranged in categories, such as Family, Cartoons, Comedy, Drama, and New Releases, with the latter arranged so they are easy to find. When a new release is added to the stock, Showbiz will have about 20 copies so customers will be able to see them without a long wait.

A special advantage of having more than one store is that video tapes can be rotated from the overall 10,000 title stock, Durinda Moats pointed out.

Showbiz will not stock any pornography.

David Moats is manager of the new video center, and Andrea Newman is his assistant. The center is open every day of the year, including holidays, weekdays from noon to nine in the evenings and weekends noon to 10. The hours will be longer during the summer months.

Showbiz will also be asking customers to name the type of videos they like to see so the center can stock what Charlevoix people want.

Of special interest this holiday season is free Showbiz membership during December and a drawing on Christmas Day for a three-foot Mickey Mouse.

Shopping winners named

Despite cold winds this past weekend, there was no shortage of registrations for $600 in Christmas shopping sprees.

Several local businesses hosted a Charlevoix shopping open house this past weekend. The open house was part of a Shop Charlevoix campaign the businesses are sponsoring during the holiday season.

Businesses participating in the campaign had registration forms for a drawing in which the prizes were a $300, $200 and $100 shopping spree.

Approximately 10,000 registrations were received. Holiday shoppers were allowed to register at more than one business.

The winner's names were drawn Monday afternoon. They were: Marie Forton, $300; Paul Cunningham $200; Bill Silberhorn, $100.

Christmas light contest scheduled

Judging of the Fourth annual Residential Christmas Lighting competition sponsored by Keep Charlevoix Beautiful will take place between 5:30 and 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 20.

Judges for the event will be Cara Hochhalter, Nancy Koucky, Don Dannecker and Jackie Krutsch. To register your home, phone the Chamber of Commerce office at 547-2101.

Class offered to stop smoking

Need help keeping your New Year's resolution to stop smoking? Successfully quitting smoking and having fun in the process is the goal of the "Freedom from Smoking" program beginning Tuesday, Jan. 16, at 7:00 p.m. at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

The weekly sessions sponsored by the Charlevoix Area Hospital and the American Lung Associaiton will conclude Tuesday, Feb. 27. Cheryl Jacobs, respiratory therapist and program leader, says, "The program really works because we don't quit cold turkey the first night and people find the support they need in the group to make breaking the habit permanent." The first session is an orientation meeting when the program outline will be explained. During quit week, sessions will take place both Tuesday, Feb. 6 and Thursday, Feb. 8.

A minimum of 12 registrations must be received in order to hold the class. Cost for the program is $50. For further information, or registration, call Charlevoix Area Hospital 547-4024.

Charlevoix Kiwanis Club celebrates 55th anniversary

by PEG OHLE

When members of the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club met last night at the Grey Gables Inn, it was for more than their monthly meeting.

The meeting marked the 55th anniversary of the founding of the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club; an occasion which was duly noted since it was 55 years to the day after 25 men gathered at the old Charlevoix Hotel to organize this new branch of Kiwanis International.

That was in 1934. Kiwanis International had been organized just 19 years earlier in Detroit, and there was a Kiwanis Club in Petoskey in 1934 which became the official sponsor of the Charlevoix Club.

Since 1963, the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club has been known as the "Maple Syrup Club of the U.S.A." because of its maple syrup business which started that year. Syrup sales have contributed most of the $500,000 the Club has donated to youth and community projects in Charlevoix in the last 55 years.

Ralph Hamilton, who served as president of the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club in 1957 and later as Lieutenant Governor of the Kiwanis Division, now serves as historian of the Club and has prepared a list of the projects to which the local Club has contributed during the past year. It is a long and varied list:

Boy Scout Building, Kiwanis of Michigan Foundation, Camp Daggett, Bergmann Center, Swimming Pool Project, Mt. McSauba Ski Project, Alcohol-Drug Rehabilitation, Science Scholarship, Sunshine Club, Handicapped Riders, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Cub Scouts, Law Enforcement Camp, Boy's State, Hugh O'Brien's Youth Project, Handicapped Winter Games, Special Olympics, Halloween Movie, Sponsored Youth, Camp Quality, Food Pantry, Salvation Army, and Odmark Band Pavillion.

Also varied are the occupations of Kiwanis Club members, who have always represented the business, financial, church, educational, governmental, industrial, medical, legal and other groups in Charlevoix. The roster of present-day officers and directors bears out the varied occupations:

Richard Rathke, banker; Philip Schairbaum, pastor; Arthur Ranger, engineer; Donald Dannecker, business man; Herbert Dishong, condominium manager; Sheila Murphy, postmaster; Fred Krell, retired radio announcer; Donald Gillespie, sheltered workshop manager; Gayle Gennett, school counselor; Fritz Puffpaff, retired merchant; Lynn Degrow, boat company president; and Roger Tyrrell, retired military man.

And, unlike most organizations, the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club has held its meetings in a number of different places, beginning with its first regular meeting in Mont's Cafe and continuing through the Charlevoix Hotel, Middle School Cafeteria, Herring's Dining Room, Beach Hotel, Argonne Supper Club, Maria's, Church of God Fellowship Hall, Woodshed, St. Mary's School, Methodist Church Basement, American Legion Hall, High School Lunch Room, Weathervane Inn, and the Grey Gables (present meeting place).

Today, the 50 or so Kiwanis Club members are carrying on in the tradition of earlier members. Their standing committees reflect what are and have been Kiwanis concerns: Youth Services, Community Services, Spiritual Aims, Major Emphasis, Fund Raising and Special Events, and Membership Development.

The Kiwanis Club's major emphasis slogan for 1989-1990 is "Encourage Excellence." The 25 founding members would no doubt approve.

The manufacture of maple syrup from sap collected from Charlevoix maple trees has been a fund-raising project for the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club since 1963. The above picture, taken in the 1960's, shows sap buckets being emptied into barrels to be taken to the "sugar shack".

The following business wish to congratulate the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club on 55 years of service:

The chairs in the lobby of the old Hotel Elston may not have been comfortable, but there were plenty of them. The hotel, which was located on the site of the present Oleson Shopping Center, charged $2 and $2.50 a day or $10 to $15 a week for rooms. It boasted of a "Fine location, lobby overlooking the Harbor. Modern improvements." This advertising picture appeared in the 1900 Board of Commerce book.

New bandshell to be built by June 30

If all goes according to plans discussed Monday evening, there will be a new bandshell in East Park by June 30.

Councilman Ken Whitley raised the bandshell issue at the Dec. 4 council meeting. At this past Monday's work session, it was discussed again.

Whitley said he's ready to go forward with the project. He said he and many other people wouldn't mind seeing something similar to the facility which was previously in the park.

Whitley and mayor Gary Probert met with members of the bandshell committee approximately six weeks ago. Monday evening, bandshell committee cochairman Gary Stutzman presented the latest bandshell design which was the product of that meeting.

Stutzman said the latest proposal would eliminate a basement and bathrooms thereby lowering the structure by eight feet. He said the highest part of the bandshell roofline would be four feet above street level.

According to Stutzman the facility proposed would have a fish pond, a 1,500 square foot stage and a storage area.

Stutzman said that with the elimination of the basement and bathrooms it may not be necessary to put in pilings to support the structure. If the structure can be built on a floating footing, construction costs may stay within the original budget estimates.

The facility was originally estimated to cost approximately $188,000. Bids came in about $100,000 higher.

Currently there is between $100,000 and $140,000 available for the project. Bandshell committee members feel that once a plan is adopted and the community resolves to go forward and complete the project, the rest of the money can be raised.

Whitley and the majority of the other councilmen said they don't object to the design now being proposed, but they want Stutzman to come back to the council within the next few weeks with refined plans and cost estimates.

Students in Mrs. Cathy Silberhorn's third grade class applied their social studies lesson to the class Christmas tree. They decorated th tree with ornaments reflecting various cultures from around the world.

Man charged in traffic deaths has plea of not guilty entered

Kenneth A. Schrum, 26, of Warren has pleaded not guilty to two counts of manslaughter with a motor vehicle. The charges are the result of a Sept. 17 traffic accident which caused the deaths of Charlevoix residents Bob and Maxine Drenth.

Following a Nov. 30 preliminary examination in 90th District Court, Schrum was bound over to 33rd Circuit Court for arraignment. Schrum filed a written waiver of arraignment form on which he pleaded not guilty. Circuit Court Judge Richard Pajtas entered the not guilty pleas and signed the form last week. The case has been set for a scheduling conference early next month.

The charge of manslaughter with a motor vehicle carries a maximum penalty of 15 years in prison and-or a $7,500 fine.

At the Nov. 30 preliminary examination, Schrum's attorney John Fershee argued that the charge should be reduced to negligent homicide. Charlevoix County prosecutor Kraag Lieberman argued that manslaughter with a motor vehicle is the appropriate charge. District Judge Harvey Varnum bound Schrum over on the manslaughter charge.

Bob Hoffman, John Ferguson and Kirby Dipert are three of the four new members on the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce board of directors. Missing is Don Voisin.

Mesquite to stay put at least until spring

The U.S. Coast Guard cutter Mesquite is still grounded near the Keeweenaw Point in Lake Superior and it appears the boat probably can't be salvaged until spring at the earliest.

The ship ran aground at approximately 2:30 a.m. Dec. 4. Although the ship is aground, it is not on the shoreline. It is grounded on a reef some distance from the shoreline.

Damage from the grounding flooded portions of the ship. High winds and waves caused additional damage this past weekend. As of Monday, the ship was listing and it was not known if the ship has been damaged

Santa rides a fire truck

Editor's note: The following story ran last year. Since it refers to a local tradition which hasn't changed, we're rerunning it again.

As is Charlevoix tradition for pre-Christmas visits by Santa Claus, Santa will arrive on a fire truck, rather than in a reindeer-drawn sleigh.

Santa Claus will visit Charlevoix at 1 p.m. this Saturday. He will distribute candy to the community's children at East Park, near the stop light.

The fire truck tradition began long ago in a year when Santa's reindeer had a run of bad luck a few weeks before Christmas.

First Blitzen sprained an ankle while he and Donner were playing reindeer games. Then Rudolph caught a terrible cold and instead of glowing, his nose was just running.

And Prancer, poor Prancer. While taking a break from prancing, he didn't pay attention to where he was sitting down and plunked right down on top of a snowblower. What a sad tail of woe that was for old Prancer.

Santa took the reindeer to the North Pole vet. The vet taped Blitzen's ankle, wrote a prescription for Rudolph and stitched up Prancer. He told Santa that the reindeer would be up and around in time for Christmas Eve, but there was just no way they'd be well in time to make the annual pre-Christmas trip to Charlevoix.

When folks in Charlevoix got word of this, they were all broken up, especially the children. No pre-Christmas visit by Santa meant he might not know what the kids wanted for Christmas. He might bring everybody the wrong stuff.

Next to the kids, the firemen were the most concerned. They had a whole bunch of boxes of candy and no Santa Claus to pass them out.

At an emergency fire department meeting, one of the firemen said, "We can't eat all this candy ourselves. It's rot our teeth and spoil our appetites for supper."

The other firemen agreed. Finally, they decided there was only one thing to do. They must take a fire truck to the North Pole and fetch old Santa down to Charlevoix.

Having the firemen fetch Santa proved to be an idea so popular that not even the city council argued about it.

A fire department tanker truck was dispatched to the North Pole. The trip was slow going up, but fast coming back.

If you look at a map or a globe, you can see that while the trip from Charlevoix to the North Pole is all uphill, the trip back is all downhill.

Coming back from the North Pole, the firemen got out a hose and sprayed water from the truck out in front of them. The water formed ice and the truck with the firemen and Santa slid downhill lickety-split, all the way from the North Pole to Charlevoix.

A lesson from China

James Rogers, an elementary school principal at a school in Kuala Lumpur, visited Charlevoix fourth grade students last week and explained how things are done on the far side of the world.

While fourth grade students saw slides and listened to a speaker talk about the Chinese culture, several of the students' mothers prepared Chinese food for them.

Nicole Gilligan works on mastering eating with chopsticks.

Jason Simpson samples a Chinese food known as an egg roll.

How deep does the water have to be for the rice to grow?

Can Chinese kids carry an abacus?

How long did it take to build the Great Wall?

Charlevoix fourth grade students posed these and other questions to James R. Rogers last Thursday. Rogers, who is elementary school principal for the International School of Kuala Lumpur in Malaysia, was a guest speaker for the fourth grade. Rogers' neice, Diana tank, is a Charlevoix fourth grader.

Rogers showed the students slides as well as Chinese puppets, clothes, newspapers and other items as he talked about the Chinese culture.

Among the slides were pictures of streets with hardly any traffic and a harbor filled with boats. Rogers explained that there is no problem with cars and traffic in China because most people can't afford cars and ride either buses or bicycles. The waterfront, unlike the streets, is jammed. Many of the people live on their boats.

When Rogers finished speaking, the students had a chance to ask questions. And they had plenty of them.

The water in rice paddys is between one foot and two-feet deep. An abacus is small enough so it can be carried. The Great Wall wasn't built overnight. Many people worked on different sections for many years.

Following the questions, the students sampled Chinese food prepared by mothers of some of the fourth graders.

Fourth graders participating in the program were students of Pat Miller, Anne Kelly, Mary Ann Chew and Pam Smith.

LET'S ALL GO CAROLING

REASONABLE TO ME

L. SCOTT SWANSON

Strategy isn't everything

Sports broadcasters make a lot out of sports tactics and strategy, but in reality tactics and strategy only go so far.

A sense of impending doom draped our basketball team like a wet blanket as we shuffled onto the floor that day. The other team had one guy who was about six-feet-eight-inches tall and two or three other guys who didn't have to tilt their heads back too far to talk to him. These players weren't just tall, they were also fairly talented.

Our team had but five guys. At just more than six feet, I was the tallest we had to offer. This mismatch occurred in a men's league I played in a few years back while living in another town.

As the referee told everyone to get set for the opening jump ball, I took a position back toward the defensive end of the court.

Aside from going early to beat the rush, I had another reason for starting at the defensive end. I didn't believe for a moment I was the only one who realized the big guy was going to win the jump. I assumed our opponents had also considered this prospect.

I suspected the other team would send two guys downcourt, one on each side, as soon as the ball was tossed in the air and try to get a fast break off of the jump ball. I decided I was going to take a guess at which way the ball would be passed and try to intercept the first pass.

This plan had its upside and downside. If I guessed correctly, I'd intercept the pass. If I guessed wrong, the pass would go one way and I'd be going the other and I'd look like a fool.

Well, there weren't many people in the crowd that day, so I tried it. As things worked out, I guessed correctly and intercepted the pass.

I dribbled the ball across midcourt. Looking beneath the basket, I saw all those big guys from the other team lurking, just lurking, in a zone defense. Nobody with good intentions lurks.

I paused to assess the situation. Our team was playing a team that was obviously a whole lot more talented than we were. And yet the game was tied 0-0 and our team had the ball.

Since things were going so well, I saw no reason to alter the situation. I figured if that team of tall guys wanted to stay under that basket then that would be OK by me. My dwarf teammates and I would just dribble the ball, maybe take one shot just before the buzzer and go into halftime leading 2-0.

But after about half a minute of watching us dribble the ball, the other team got wise. You could just see the little lights go on as they figured out what was happening. They broke out of the zone defense and came out to challenge us man-to-man.

Faced with this, we had to shoot, but not often. Around the end of the first quarter our team was leading 8-6.

But we couldn't stand prosperity. Instead of remaining patient, we started feeling our oats and shooting indiscriminately.

Time passed. Things happened. Bad things.

Late in the fourth quarter, I dribbled the ball across the midcourt line and looked up at the scoreboard. It said 99-31 with 37 seconds left to play.

Another brainstorm. I thought, "There's no way we're going to win this game. But maybe we can hold them to less than 100 points. It'd be a moral victory if nothing else."

So with our team trailing by 68 points, I went into a stall.

The other team saw through this ploy right away and took steps to thwart it. For the next 25 seconds I ran around dribbling the ball with the other team chasing me. It looked like a bunch of kids chasing a greased pig at the county fair.

The crowd took to cheering because now the game had some things it had lacked for quite some time - action and an element of suspense.

With about 12 seconds left, the other team finally cornered me and I had to pass the ball to a teammate.

And what did he do? Instead of running out the rest of the clock, he shot my strategy right in the basket.

My teammate had scored two points and he was happy as a clam. I was disgusted. The other team went down and made a basket and a free-throw and we lost 102-33.

Sometimes things go amiss no matter how good your strategy.

Out of the Blue

Now it's "basically" this or "basically" that
As boring and unjustifiable
As when everything, not so long ago,
Was, or was not, deemed "viable."

What is a city

Michigan seems to have an awful lot of "cities" compared to other states.

And very few of them fit the dictionary definition, which is "a center of population larger or more important than a town or village."

In Northern Michigan alone we have a number of communities which call themselves cities, including Rogers City, Mackinaw City, Boyne City, Tawas City, Filer City and Traverse City.

There also are a few cities down below, including Bay City, Cass City, Kent City and Imlay City. The Upper Peninsula has Mass City and Silver City in Ontonagon County and Gibbs City in Iron County.

Of the lot, only one — Bay City — even approaches my traditional concept of a city.

I suspect — but I'm not quite sure — that a lot of logging towns called themselves "cities" either tongue-in-cheek or as a way of putting on airs, pretending they were larger and more important than they really were in order to attract settlers.

Considering the wry humor of our progenitors, I'd say both explanations are highly plausible.

A lumberjack certainly would have less trouble convincing his high-born wife to move with him to Boyne City than he would selling her on the merits of a rawboned logging camp called Yuba or Phelps.

Some real cities, of course, are called cities to differentiate them from their states, i.e., New York City, N.Y., and Kansas City, Kan.

The dictionary says that the word city means different things in different countries.

In the United States, a city is a legally incorporated municipality. Oddly enough, some of our so-called cities are really chartered villages, such as Mackinaw City, giving us such awkward expressions at "Mackinaw City village limits."

In Great Britain, a city is a borough or town with a royal charter. The city is usually the "see" of an Episcopal diocese. However, in London, the City refers strictly to the financial district.

Canada probably comes closest to a universal definition. Among Canucks, a city is a large urban municipality. Period.

The word city, of course, has a Latin root: civitas, meaning citizenship or a community of citizens. City also has given us a wealth of other words, including "citified," which means having the manners or dress of city dwellers; "city slicker," a city resident regarded by rural folks as smooth or tricky; "city father," any important guy down at city hall; and "city chicken," pieces of pork or veal that are skewered, breaded and cooked by braising or baking.

CAN YOU RECALL a winter that has come on earlier or one with more gusto?

I can't.

According to the calendar, it is still fall but I have shoveled all the snow I want to shovel.

Furthermore, it has been incredibly cold for this time of year.

Zero and below in December? You have to be kidding!

If there is an up side to the whole dismal picture, it is that we may get less lake-effect snow if Lake Michigan freezes. That's what a lot of folks are banking on.

THE SADDEST note this holiday season is that the U.S. Coast Guard cutter Mesquite is aground in Lake Superior, her hull cracked, her engine room flooded and her superstructure sheathed with ice.

While people in high places decide her fate, it is entirely possible that the Mesquite's long career as a Coast Guard cutter and icebreaker may be over.

If the Mesquite is scrapped and not replaced, an important part of Charlevoix will be gone forever.

The economic impact will be devastating, considering what the year-round presence of Coast Guardsmen and their families has meant to Charlevoix's landlords, merchants, grocery stores, restaurants and bars.

Will Medusa be able to ship its cement early and late in the season without an icebreaker standing by to clear a path for the Challenger?

Will fish tugs be able to operate without assistance?

So many questions — and so few answers.

Editorial

Audience appreciated

Few things are more annoying than attending a play, movie, public meeting or lecture and not being able to hear because other members of the audience are talking, squirming about in their seats, continuously rustling papers, grumbling disapproval in regard to what is being said or in some other way being disruptive.

Such behavior, while uncivil and undignified, is unfortunately not uncommon.

However, there are some bright spots.

Last Thursday a gentleman spoke to a large group of Charlevoix fourth grade students. It's difficult to give the exact number of students. Suffice it to say there were four classes of them gathered in one room.

The gentleman who spoke has spent a number of years in China and he showed the students slides and talked about Chinese culture. He probably talked for between 45 minutes and an hour.

During this time, the students' behavior was exemplary. They kept quiet and paid attention. At the end of his speech, the speaker noted that he appreciated the students' politeness and courtesy.

An ability and willingness to be courteous, patient and listen to and analyze information is perhaps one of the most valuable social skills a person can acquire.

Last Thursday, the fourth grade students demonstrated that they have grasped that skill. High praise is in order for the parents, teachers, and most importantly the fourth grade students responsible.

Letters to the Editor:

Community tree praised

Editor,

Although we missed the decorating of the community Christmas tree this year because of the Thanksgiving weekend, I remember what fun my son had last year getting to ride to the top of the tree so he could place his handmade ornament near the lighted star. Each year, countless children of Charlevoix get the same thrill thanks to the tireless workers who man the city "cherry picker." This is a long, cold job, but because of those patient men, no child is ever disappointed. So thank you, city workers - you deserve special recognition.

And to the many disgruntled summer residents and visitors who write letters to the editor decrying Charlevoix's sorry state - too crowded, too congested, too commercial, too developed - let me add one more "too." Too bad you're not here to see us at Christmastime with our twinkling white lights and colorful store windows. Charlevoix is not only the beautiful, but the loving and caring as well, and our community Christmas tree, probably the only one in the area with more ornaments at the top than at the bottom, says it all!

Sincerely,
Mary Pair

Business serves as drop-off site

In conjunction with the community food pantry program, the RE-MAX real estate office will serve as a drop off site for nonperishable foods and goods. The office will be open for drop offs from 9 a.m. through 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday through Dec. 21.

RE-MAX staff members are supplying turkeys while the Rainbow Shop is providing chickens for several families the community food pantry will be furnishing with Christmas meals.

Exchange students from Japan and Spain live together in Charlevoix

by PEG OHLE

"East is east and west is west and never the twain shall meet." Despite Kipling's words, the "twain" have met in a Charlevoix home.

Ignacio Lopez from Madrid, Spain and Hideyuki Maki from the Japanese island of Shikoku are living in the home of Levi and Sally Sanford while attending Charlevoix High School as exchange students.

Ignacio has just turned 17, and Hideyuki is 18, and both are seniors. "They get along great together," says their American "housemother." "Nacho, as everyone calls him, has studied more English than Hideyuki, so he is always trying to help him."

We interviewed the two at the same time and saw the interplay as Hideyuki reached for words and Nacho helped supply them, usually with a big grin.

Hideyuki explained that he had studied some English in school in Japana, but only reading and writing, which does not help much when he is called upon to speak.

Both young men said they found the students at Charlevoix High School more independent than in their home schools, and Hideyuki noted that in his school, students wear uniforms with blazers and ties. Also, as many other exchange students have reported, in their home schools, teachers move from classroom to classroom, with the students keeping the same seats most of the day.

Both Nacho and Hideyuki come from schools larger than Charlevoix High School. There are about 2,500 students in Nacho's home school and about 1,700 in Hideyuki's school. Most of the teachers in Nacho's school are men, and about half in Hideyuki's school are men.

Charlevoix weather is colder and snowier than in Madrid or Shikoku. "We have only about a week of snow in Madrid," Nacho explained. Hideyuki's home in the city of Kagawa on the island of Shikoku is south of the main Japanese island where Tokyo is located and also offers a warmer climate.

Nacho has one older brother and three older sisters, all of whom have been exchange students. He hopes to follow in his father's footsteps and become an engineer, probably attending college in Madrid.

Hideyuki has a younger brother and a younger sister. His father is in the insurance business, but Hideyuki hopes for a different type of career. "I want to be a movie director," he told us, only half seriously, probably because he isn't sure such a career is possible for him.

To prepare for a career in engineering, Nacho is studying chemistry, drafting, physics, calculus, English, and United States history at Charlevoix High School.

Hideyuki is concentrating on algebra, United States history, English, performing arts, and fine arts.

They both played on the soccer team and Hideyuki is looking forward to the wrestling season. He hopes to compete in the 130-pound class—if he can get his weight down. Nacho likes to ski and hopes to compete in ski events.

The holiday season will probably bring a bit of homesickness to both students, who say they have missed their families and friends from time to time. However, lighted Christmas trees are common in both Spain and Japan, so Charlevoix will provide at least a touch of home for Nacho and Hideyuki.

Holiday band concert scheduled

The Charlevoix High School and Middle School (seventh and eighth grade) bands will present their annual Christmas Band Concert at 8 p.m., Wednesday, Dec. 20. The concert will take place in the high school gym and will be open to the public free of charge. The bands will perform arrangements of familiar music of the season as well as marches and concert works such as excerpts from Tschaikovsky's "Overture of 1812", (eighth grade band) and "Autumn" from "The Seasons" by Vivaldi (high school band). Over 160 student musicians will perform in the concert which is being presented to entertain the audience and to show the musical progress made by the band students so far this year.

1989 was a good year for Chamber

Chamber of commerce president Dan Barrons characterized 1989 as a watershed year for the Charlevoix Chamber.

Speaking at the group's annual meeting, Dec. 7 Barrons said that during the past year the community's political decision making climate improved, an in-water antique boat show was initiated, chamber membership grew by 10 percent and for the first time the chamber closed the year with money in the bank.

Barrons praised the chamber board for instituting a political action committee. The political action was formed during a period of conflict between the chamber and city council.

Barrons credited the 1989 chamber board for showing "courage and conviction through some very difficult times." He said the board's action brought about a positive change in Charlevoix's political climate.

According to Barrons, the chamber action focused attention on the city's decision making process. He said that currently the council is listening to input from the chamber and therefore the political action committee is focusing on state issues rather than on local elections.

Outgoing chamber directors LoAnne Brown, Dr. Jeff Porter and John Campbell were recognized as were incoming board members John Ferguson, Kirby Dipert, Bob Hoffman and Don Voisin.

The Antique and Classic Boat Show was initiated this year to help offset the loss of the Michigan Amateur golf tournament. In it's first year, the boat show drew approximately 20 boats. Despite dreery weather, several spectators came down to the city docks to see the old boats. Chamber officials are optimistic about the prospects of the show growing and becoming a significant summer drawing card in the future. The 1990 boat show is scheduled for June 30.

To the applause of those gathered at the Grey Gables for the annual meeting, Barrons noted that the chamber is closing 1989 with approximately $4,000 in a bank account designated for capitol improvements.

Oscar Stroud (left) was named citizen of the year by the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce. He received the award from Chamber President Dan Barrons at the chamber's Dec. 7 annual meeting. Stroud has been Charlevoix Township supervisor for the past 20 years. In presenting the award, Barrons praised Stroud for being a public official who addresses problems in an efficient and cooperative manner.

Bank names shopping winners

Charlevoix County State Bank has announced the winners of their annual holiday shopping spree drawing.

Linda Hull of Charlevoix won the $250 first prize. Pat Sokolowski of Ellsworth won the $150 second prize. Dabra Palmer of Charlevoix won the $100 third prize.

The prize program stipulates that the money must be spent at businesses in Charlevoix.

Hospital schedules CPR class

A four hour course in Basic Cardiac Life Support (BCLS) will be taught at the Charlevoix Area Hospital on Thursday, January 18, from 6 to 10 p.m. in the hospital classroom.

CPR (cardiopulmonary resuscitation) to save victims of heart attack, drowning, and other similar incidents, will be included along with life-saving techniques to help someone who is choking. Both infant and adult CPR and choking will be covered. The evening will include intensive hands-on experience using mannikins and a written examination.

The class is open to anyone, however, registration is limited to 25. Cost for the class is $20.

CHURCH

Clifton "Kip" F. Sundberg

Clifton "Kip" F. Sundberg, 75, of Charlevoix, died Dec. 8, 1989, at Allegan General Hospital, Allegan.

Funeral took place Tuesday, Dec. 12 at the Bethany Lutheran Church, Charlevoix. Pastor Robert Piller and Pastor Kenneth G. Bernthal of Christ Lutheran Church, Boyne City, will officiate. Interment will be in Brookside Cemetery, Charlevoix.

Mr. Sundberg was born Aug. 19, 1914, in Escanaba, the son of Arthur F. and Hilma O. Meyer Sundberg. He grew up in Escanaba and on May 1, 1936, he married the former Dorothy Mero in Chicago, Ill.

After living in Chicago, the couple resided in St. Ignace and moved to Charlevoix in 1953. Mrs. Sundberg preceded him in death on June 27, 1989.

Mr. Sundberg was employed by Petgas (Cities Service) Co. for 28 years as plant manager and gas serviceman, retiring in 1978.

He was a World War II Navy veteran, serving in the mmilitary from 1944-46.

He was a member of Bethany Lutheran Church; a member and past post commander of American Legion Leslie T. Shapton Post No. 226, Charlevoix. He had also served on the Charlevoix City Council for many years.

Survivors include: two sons, Wayne C. of Fort Collins, Colo.; James B. of Pleasant Hill, Ore.; two daughters, Sandy Kiefer of Hopkins, Mich. and Janice Binkert of Zurich, Switzerland; 11 grandchildren; one great-granddaugher; one brother, Carl Sundberg of Escanaba; three sisters, June Roberts of Franklin Park, Ill.; Evelyn Karkula of Fort Myers, Fla. and Irene Romin of Chicago, Ill.

The family suggests memorials to Clifton Sundberg Memorial Fund.

Jessie B. Warner

Jessie B. Warner, 98, mother of Louis Warner of Charlevoix, died Dec. 7, 1989 at Oaklawn Hospital in Marshall.

Funeral was held at 1:30, Mon. Dec. 11 at the Kempf Marshall Funeral Home in Marshall. The Rev. Mal Hoyt will officiate and burial will be in East Eckford Cemetery, Marshall.

Mrs. Warner was born June 5, 1891 in Eckford Township, the daughter of William and Anna (Hawkins) Butler. She lived her entire life in Eckford Township.

On Feb. 14, 1917 she married Nile Warner. Mr. Warner died in 1954.

Survivors include: two sons, Louis Warner of Charlevoix and Roger Warner of Homer; two daughters, Frances Ray of Albion and Phyllis Metzger of Battle Creek; one step-son, Arthur Warner of Zephyrhills, Fla.; nine grandchildren; 15 great-grandchildren; six great-great-grandchildren.

The family suggests memorial contributions be made to the East Eckford Community Church or to the charity of choice. Memorials may be sent to the Kempf Marshall Funeral Home, 103 Mansion, Marshall, Mich. 49068.

BEACONS OF BLESSINGS

Rev. Bruce E. Hamilton

How are your holiday preparations going? Since we've been in the north country, our newest Christmas tradition is to bundle up as a family and head out to the woods in search of the perfect tree.

Our guide on this wilderness journey was one of our parishioners, Jerry Shupert. He took us to the woods behind his farm. Now, Jerry hunts there a lot. With that in mind, I had sort of hoped to see an animal or two. But you take a seven-year old and a 12 year old to the woods with sleds and imagine how unique they can be!

Jerry knew what I was wishing for. Since we both knew the noise we were making, he did the next best thing. He started pointing out tracks. He showed me "The Bambi Expressway," a deer run that was thoroughly packed with tracks. When fresh rabbit tracks crossed our path, we tried to get the kids to hush and look hard. No such luck. I was fascinated by the brush strokes of a partridge's tail on the snow. The surprise though was what my son called "Bear Bizmiz," that's spore to you professional outdoor types. I never dreamed that there were bears near by. Jerry said the sign was unmistakable.

I share this outdoor tale to get you to consider your own Christmas adventure. The holidays create a lot of "noise." There are parties to attend, shopping to accomplish, cards to write, visits to make and in the midst of it all the real reason for the season can get lost.

Even with all your holiday "busy-ness", start looking for signs of God's presence in your life. Look for places that He has directed your path. See if you can spot signs where His love has made the difference. Check out how accurate the Bible, His life map for your daily walk, really is.

God is never far away from any of us. We are the ones who put distance between our hearts and His. Make a real effort to see just how much He has been trying to do in your life. You might be suprised. He will do even more if you will get the holiday "busy-ness" in the right perspective and put Him first.

Ina F. Gardener

Ina F. Gardner, 77, of Gaylord, died Dec. 7, 1989, at Provincial House of Gaylord.

A memorial mass will be offered 10 a.m. Friday, Dec. 15, in the chapel of Grandvue Medical Care Facility, East Jordan. The Rev. Joseph Diezel will officiate and interment will be in Arnold Cemetery, Louisville, Ontario, Canada.

Mrs. Gardner was born Dec. 11, 1911, in Canada. She grew up in Canada and had lived three years in Charlevoix with her husband, Glynn, and for the last six months resided in Gaylord.

Mr. and Mrs. Gardner were married in June, 1962 in Detroit.

Mrs. Gardner is survived by: her husband, A. Glynn Gardner; one daughter, Joyce MacFarlane of Windsor, Ontario.

Once upon a Christmas...

... When bustling downtowns welcomed shoppers with a gaslight's glow ... friends and families ushered in traditions that became our warmest holiday memories.

Those traditions live on in Saginaw County's Old Towns – Chesaning, Frankenmuth and Saginaw.

Twinkling lights and sparkling eyes reflect the joys of the season. The warm glow of shop windows brightens the spirits of young and old alike.

Holiday feasts and yuletide treats add spice to the season while old world charm brings to mind a simpler time.

Delight in memories of a Christmas past; rejoice in Christmas present. In Saginaw County's vibrant Old Towns,

BUSINESS

Spirit of giving lasts all year at Charlevoix's Rainbow Shoppe

While most people think of Christmas as the time for giving, the Rainbow Shoppe in Charlevoix believes in giving the year around.

This resale store operated by Charlevoix churches is given used and new articles, which it in turn gives to needy persons, or sells at give-away prices to others, and finally gives about one-fourth of its income to local charitable and civic organizations, who give it back to the community.

It's a circle of giving which grows even larger at Christmas time.

The shelves and racks of the Rainbow Shoppe are now full of Christmas items to brighten the lives of young and old.

There are Christmas tree ornaments, table decorations, candles, ribbons, and tree stands. There are stuffed animals, games, books, and other toys for the little ones. There are nice pieces of glassware, flower vases, dinnerware, and eating utensils. There is a wide variety of kitchen utensils and gadgets. There are hobby materials and sports equipment, baseball cards, books by the hundreds, photographic equipment, radios, and records.

But most of all, there are clothes, clothes on three floors for men, women, and children; winter clothes, summer clothes, coats, hats, boots, shoes, mittens, and scarves. Every item of clothing is in good, wearable condition, marked at a nominal price, and for those who can't afford the price, the spirit of giving takes over.

Those with limited funds can fulfill their Christmas lists for a fraction of what the gifts would ordinarily cost, and probably have enough money left over to buy something for themselves.

The Rainbow Shoppe was organized in 1983 by the local churches to meet some of the needs of the community that were coming to their attention, and keeping in mind the Christian spirit of giving. Since that time, the Rainbow Shoppe has given away over $52,000 in cash to charitable and civic organizations, mostly in the Charlevoix area.

"Our primary purpose is to serve the youth and senior citizens of the community," Rita Orlowski, past president of the Rainbow Shoppe board emphasized. "We have $10,000 in a bank certificate of deposit earmarked for a community youth center, and so far we have contributed $8,400 to the Charlevoix Senior Citizens Center."

In addition, thousands of more dollars in clothing and household articles have gone to persons referred by the Department of Social Services, the churches, other organizations, and private individuals.

Ready-packed boxes of family clothing are kept handy for quick service. Some things that need washing or mending are put in a dumpster at the back of the Rainbow Shoppe, and they, too, often find a useful life by way of a washing machine or needle and thread.

Clothing and props needed by the Performing Arts Program at the high school are also supplied at no cost.

"Some days we give away more than we sell," says Rainbow Shoppe manager Joe Spurgeon with a faint smile. Spurgeon is an integral part of the Rainbow Shoppe. He spent 23 years with the J. C. Penney Company before coming to Charlevoix in the early days of the Rainbow Shoppe. As one board member put it, "Joe understands the spirit of the Rainbow Shoppe and lives it and works it."

Also, there are now about 175 persons who do volunteer work at the Rainbow Shoppe. "All of us from different denominations work together to do the work the Lord wants us to do," explained Barbara Rogers, Rainbow Shoppe board president.

Spurgeon explained that Christmas items brought in throughout the year are saved for the holiday season. Right now, he is putting some out every day because there isn't room for all of them at the same time.

The shop could use more good toys, winter clothing, boots, mittens, and gloves, as well as newer housewares, books, jewelry, and other items that make good Christmas gifts. Clean bags for wrapping purchases are also needed.

A new service of the Rainbow Shoppe is the rental of inspirational and Christian video tapes not otherwise available in the community.

The Rainbow Shoppe is located in the former Hess Furniture Company building in the alley behind Trademark Clothiers. It is open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

WATCH scholarship contest begins

Water and Air Team for Charlevoix (WATCH) has announced the beginning of their 5th Annual WATCH Scholarship Program. The program is an essay competition open to all Charlevoix County area high school seniors.

Scholarship awards ranging from $500 to $1,000 will be given to the top three finishers. The scholarships may be used by students to continue their education at a college, university or vocational institution following high school graduation.

The topic for this year's competition is "Careers in the environmental field...Everything you've always wanted to know."

Essays must be typewritten, 1,000 words or less, and submitted no later than Feb. 2. Essays will be reviewed by a panel of judges.

Anyone desiring additional information may write to: Michelle Rick-Biddick, WATCH Executive Administrator, P.O. Box 615, Charlevoix MI 49720.

Oh Boix!

A compilation of praises won by Charlevoix people for good deeds, good work and hard work.

Airman Rebecca A. Parker has graduated from the U.S. Air Force course for aerospace control and warning systems operations at Keesler Air Force Base, Miss.

Graduates of the course learned to operate electronic consoles used in spacecraft tracking and control systems, and earned credits toward an associate degree in applied science through the Community College of the Air Force.

Parker is the daughter of Gail A. Parker of 04952 Loeb Road, Charlevoix.

The airman is a 1989 graduate of Charlevoix High School.

Sean Henne, son of Mr. and Mrs. William M. Henne, Charlevoix, received the Dr. Albert E. Peterson and John H. Vogel, Sr. Scholarships at Lawrence University in Appleton, Wisc.

Barbara Haggard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Haggard of Charlevoix, has received a Presidential Leadership Scholarship for the 1989-90 academic hear as part of the Spectrum Scholarship Program at Aquinas College. A graduate of Charlevoix High School, Haggard is a freshman at Aquinas.

Veterans gather for holiday potluck

The annual Christmas party for veterans and families will be held at the American Legion Hall for this year at 1 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 17.

The pot luck dinner party will be a combination party for the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post No. 1153 and the American Legion Unit No. 226 and their Ladies Auxiliaries. All members of both organizations, their families, and friends are invited. Meat and beverage will be furnished. Please bring a dish to pass and your own table service. Those bringing children, please bring a gift for each child with the child's name on it. Santa will be present to pass out the gifts, plus candy to each child. An adult gift exchange for those wishing to participate will also be held. Please bring man's or woman's gift approximately $3 for exchanges. Call A. Borths for more information at 547-6670 or 547-2636. All veterans and families welcome.

... community wants city to continue as Coast Guard port beyond repair.

The Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce and City Council have both indicated a desire for Charlevoix to continue to be a port for either the Mesquite or a similar ship.

At the chamber's annual meeting Dec. 7, chamber members were urged to write to congressmen and senators and let them know of this desire.

City officials will be drafting a letter this week and considering a resolution next week requesting that the U.S. Coast Guard continue to base a ship in Charlevoix.

Congressman Bob Davis, R-Gaylord, flew over the ship Monday in a helicopter. He said that there will continue to be a Coast Guard ship stationed in Charlevoix. Davis is the senior Republican on the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee.

City manager Mike Wiesner said the Coast Guard ship is a 50-person industry as well as a tourist attraction.

Part of the crew of the Mesquite has returned to Charlevoix. Other crew members have been sent back to Houghton to assist in the salvage effort.

New councilmembers left out of appointment process

By moving up the city's appointment process by three months, mayor Gary Probert has removed some incumbent commission members and appointed other people in their place.

Why?

Several people asked that question at Monday evening's council meeting and insinuated that Probert is making the appointments in December, rather than in January or March as has been past practice, because the appointments require council consent and two new councilmembers will assume office in January.

Councilmen Norm Probert and Earl Muma were attending their last council meeting Monday night. They will be replaced by Cheri Hoffman and Pat Gaskin, who bested the incumbents by wide margins in the November election.

Chamber of Commerce president Dan Barron accused mayor Probert of "circumventing the new council." He said the action was a "real slap in the face" to voters who elected Hoffman and Gaskin.

Former councilman Mike Greeley pressed the mayor to explain why he was so intent on making the appointments Monday night instead of waiting at least until January.

"When have appointments been made in previous years?" Greeley asked.

Probert said that last year he was late on all of his appointments and this year he's trying to make them all in advance.

Greeley noted that the Downtown Development Authority (DDA) has existed for about eight years and again asked when appointments have been made in past years. He suggested clerk Arlene Staley might be able to provide an answer.

Staley said DDA and Planning Commission appointments expire in April. For the past several years appointments have been made in March.

Greeley then asked Probert if, since new council members will be the ones working with the appointees, shouldn't new council members have input on the appointments?

Probert then turned to Gaskin, who was in the audience. Although several appointments were discussed during the debate, at that point the appointment on the floor was for Jeff Stevens to replace Robert Lieberman on the DDA.

In addressing Gaskin, Probert extolled Stevens' virtues and asked her if she would support the appointment.

Gaskin said she felt it would be appropriate for new councilmembers to have time to review recommended appointments. She said it would be more appropriate to wait.

Greeley, Barron and several others who contested making the appointments before new councilmembers take office said they didn't object to the people Probert recommended, but they objected to the process he was using to get them appointed.

At one point, Greeley asked Probert why appointments expiring in April had to be made Monday night and couldn't wait two weeks.

"Because I'm proud to put these people in," Probert answered.

"Then you should be just as proud two weeks from now," Greeley remarked.

Former councilman and current DDA vice president Dr. Jeff Porter, former councilman Bob Timms, former mayor Ken Staley, former planning commission member and current county commissioner Walt Hufford also questioned Probert's expedited appointment process.

Probert chose not to reappoint Lieberman, Porter and DDA chairman Gene Steele to the DDA. Instead, with the consent of the current council, he appointed Stevens, Rich Kelly and Dale Troppman.

Probert said Lieberman has had health problems which have hindered his contributions to the DDA. Probert said he wants to get young people, such as Stevens, involved in city politics. He noted that Stevens works for the Department of Natural Resources, is an EMT with the ambulance crew and a member of the city fire department.

Porter said Lieberman has problems communicating at public meetings since suffering a stroke he but he still has maintained an interest in the DDA and has contributed more than some people Probert has appointed to the DDA in recent months. Porter said using a medical problem as a reason to take someone off of a city commission is unprecedented in the city and unfortunate.

Probert said he was not throwing Lieberman off of the DDA. Later, he referred to a letter from Lieberman's wife about Lieberman not seeking a reappointment.

City clerk Staley, clarified that the letter referred to Lieberman's seat on the compensation commission, not to the DDA seat.

Probert interrupted Staley, telling her not to speak unless she was called upon.

The appointment of Kelly was also questioned. He is the school business manager. The city, DDA and school have agreements concerning the distribution of DDA funds. The school also will receive money if the DDA chooses not to spend it.

Merchants Association president Bob Hoffman asked if Kelly's position with the school leaves him with a conflict of interest.

Probert said his brother in-law is employed in a similar position in another school district, yet serves on that community's DDA board.

City attorney Jim Young said

Things you needle to know

Christmas trees? Every year people bring part of the forest indoors. Stand it up in a corner. Put lights on it. Wait until it dies. Haul it out. Vacuum needles.

Why do people do that? More importantly, is there money in it? Kind of needles a person's curiousity.

An English missionary named Winifrid, (wimpy name) he later was known as Boniface, (minor improvement) was walking throug a forest in northern Germany about 1,200 years ago. This, the legend according to Worldbook Encyclopedia at the Charlevoix Public Library. Public Library.

Winifrid came upon a group of Druids at an oak tree. They were preparing to sacrifice young prince Asulf to the Druid god Thor (much to the dismay of young prince Asulf).

So Winifrid cut down the oak tree (apparently he was carrying an axe or a particularly stout sword).

A young fir tree immediately appeared where the oak had been. Winifrid told the Druids that the fir tree was to be their new holy tree. He said it was a tree of peace and a tree of Christ. (It was also a difficult tree to tie someone to for a sacrifice.)

So that's the legend of the Christmas tree. Other tidbits of historical Christmas tree info: Germans began decorating trees in the 1400s or 1500s with apples and small white wafers. Scandanavians originally trimmed trees with fish nets and little flags. In Poland, bright paper ornaments and candles served as tree decor. Early American ornaments included homemade paper ornaments, candy canes and strings of cranberries and popcorn.

That's all well and good, but it still doesn't say who started the practice of bringing trees indoors. Some things are destined to remain a mystery.

So much for Christmas tree history, now let's talk numbers and bucks.

This year, Michigan Christmas tree growers will harvest approximately 6.5 million trees. The average wholesale price is $13. Retail prices vary quite a bit.

A mathematic calculation. Drumroll please. Figure the Michigan Christmas tree business industry is worth about $84.5 million this year, wholesale. That's a lot of green.

About five million Michigan Christmas trees will be shipped out of state this year.

Locally, Bruce Bartlett Jr. is into the Christmas tree growing and selling business. He and a friend started dabbling with a Christmas tree plantation about a dozen years ago. Now Christmas tree farming isn't a hobby, it's a growing business.

"It's kind of a nice outdoor thing to do," Bartlett noted. "It's also a lot of work throughout the year."

They're growing mostly scotch pine, blue spruce and Douglas fir at the Bartlett tree plantation, but they're also experimenting with some other varieties. Certain types of trees grow better in certain locations and types of soil.

Bartlett says Douglas firs are considered to be "the Cadillac" of Christmas trees due to their fragrance and ability to hold their needles. Firs are particularly popular in southern states, but up here in the north country a lot of people lean toward blue spruce.

Bartlett said many growers begin cutting trees in September and October. He and his partner refuse to start chopping until November. They want the needles to stay on their trees. The disadvantage to waiting is that then a large number of trees have to be cut in a short time and an early season snowstorm can really make life challenging.

Even after the trees are all cut, a Christmas tree farmer still isn't out of the woods. Christmas trees are like few other items of merchandise in terms of sales. To begin with, the sales season lasts only a few weeks each year. Along with that, retail prices hinge on several variables including tree variety, size and condition.

Retail price of a Christmas tree can vary from about $12 to $60 in these parts and in states where they don't grow trees can be twice as much.

Artificial trees are considered a threat to the Christmas tree industry. Bartlett said that a few years ago artificial trees were gaining in popularity, but that in recent years that trend has reversed.

Doubtless, old Winifrid would be happy to hear that.

It's tough being a polar bear

Being a polar bear has its drawbacks.

I watched a National Geographic Explorer show on TV the other night and there was a segment on polar bears. These scientists from some group called the Norweigan Polar Bear Institute were up in the Arctic chasing polar bears around.

The scientists rode around on snowmobiles looking for polar bears. According to the show, finding polar bears sometimes takes a while because these days polar bears are hard to come by.

No doubt. I've lived in Northern Michigan through many a harsh winter and it's been years since I last saw a polar bear. And oldtimers tell me there used to be a lot of polar bear in these parts. But that was a long time ago and the polar bears were killed off by sheep and cattle.

Although there's been no official word and everything's being kept hush, hush, it's rumored that the DNR might plant some polar bears on the ice flows off of Fisherman's Island State Park. If they get a good polar bear heard started, maybe they'll have special hunts like they do for elk over by Gaylord. If they do, I'm hiring out as a polar bear guide.

But back to the Norweigan scientists on snowmobiles. They'd ride around the Arctic until they spotted a polar bear. Then they'd load a rifle with a high-caliber tranquilizer dart. They'd race their snowmobile up to the polar bear and shoot in with the dart. After a few minutes the bear would fall down.

Although the show didn't say so, I bet that every morning before going out polar bear chasing, those Norweigan scientists carefully checked over their snowmobiles to make sure they had enough gas and good spark plugs.

Just think of it. If your snowmobile stalled at an inopportune moment and you came gliding to a halt next to a polar bear which had been darted but was not yet completely tranquilized, you'd be one depressed Norweigan polar bear stalker. So I'm sure they took precautions.

The real scientific work began once the polar bear fell unconscious; out cold in the Arctic. The first thing the scientists did was determine what sex polar bear they'd darted. Wisely, they didn't get close enough to determine this until after the polar bear lost consciousness.

Female polar bears drew the most interest from the scientists. Scientists attached collars with radio transmitters to the necks of female polar bears.

These transmitters help scientists determine where polar bears go to breed and give birth. If scientists can figure this out, perhaps they can persuade more polar bears to go to these places and thus increase the polar bear population. It's all quite technical.

Male polar bears didn't get collars and transmitters. Apparently male polar bears have narrow heads and they're able to slip collars off. So instead of putting collars on the male polar bears, the scientists spray painted big numbers on their butts...on the polar bears' butts that is.

Granted the scientists mission is noble and the program will benefit polar bears in the long run, but I still couldn't help wondering how the polar bears feel about it.

Put yourself in the polar bear's shoes; yes, paws for an instant. Picture this:

A lady is walking down the sidewalk on Bridge Street. She's a nice lady, casually going about her shopping, pausing occasionally to look at items in the shop windows. Suddenly, a moped whizzes up beside her and she's shot with a tranquilizer. She staggers, then falls unconscious to the sidewalk. Half an hour later, she wakes to find she's wearing a collar and a radio transmitter.

The lady sees a man coming down the sidewalk and she flags him down. Frantically, she explains to him what's happened and says she wants report the incident to the authorities.

"Follow me, I'll take you to the police station," the man says.

As he turns and begins walking, the woman wonders to herself, "Why does he have that big number spray painted on his butt?"

Oh, just try telling these two people they've become involved with something that's in the best interest of their species.

No sir. Being a polar bear is not easy.

Mayor's new process is wrong

If a game isn't going just the way you want it to, change the rules.

Mayor Gary Probert, with the compliance of the present city council, did exactly that Monday evening as they booted several people off of various commissions and appointed others to replace them.

Through their actions Probert and the council scorned the will of voters in wards one and three, insulted two new councilmembers who will take office in January and degraded the city's political process.

Cheri Hoffman and Pat Gaskin won council seats from incumbents Norm Probert and Earl Muma in November. They won by wide margins and will assume office in January.

Mayor Probert had several commission appointments to make; appointments requiring council consent. In the past, Probert and his mayoral predecessors made appointments in January or March, after new councilmembers assumed office.

This year Probert moved the appointment process up to December. Obviously he feared Gaskin and Hoffman might rebel and refuse to kick out the commission appointees Probert wanted out and confirm those he wanted in. Having no such fears with his father, Norm, and Muma voting, the mayor reshaped the appointment process.

Appointing people who agree with one's own political philosophy is part of the political game and is to be expected. Reshaping a process in order to circumvent other elected officials and the people who voted for them is another matter. It's not a healthy way to conduct a community's business, not in a democracy.

Even more disturbing than mayor Probert's action in moving up the appointment process were his responses and behavior when the action was questioned.

Several times Monday evening the mayor was asked why he was unwilling to wait until January, as has been done in the past, to make commission appointments.

Instead of giving a direct answer, he extolled the virtues of the people he was recommending be appointed. In his answers, Probert was not forthright. He chose to skirt the central question of why he was changing the appointment process.

The low point of the meeting occurred when Probert, for all intents and purposes, instructed clerk Arlene Staley to keep her mouth shut unless she had something to say which supported his position.

During debate over one of the appointments, Probert indicated that the wife of a man Probert did not want reappointed had written a letter indicating the man was not seeking reappointment.

Staley pointed out that the letter concerned another commission the man served on and did not refer to the commission appointment in question.

At that point, Probert told Staley not to talk unless she was called upon.

Staley was merely clarifying information for the council. That's certainly a reasonable thing for a city clerk to do. Probert's attempt to stifle input from the clerk was discourteous, high-handed and dictatorial.

Probert's bringing up the letter, then attempting to keep pertinent information about its intent from coming out certainly offered the appearance of someone using a half-truth to support a position. That's no way for an elected official to engender public trust and confidence.

Days grow long on an ugly building

Monday morning's 15-inch snowfall took just about everybody in Charlevoix by surprise.

The storm put me in mind of the "good old days" when such calamities always arrived unexpectedly.

Nowadays, weather forecasting has become a fine art and predictions are surprisingly accurate.

But Monday's heavy snowfall came out of the blue.

Of course, it was "lake effect" snow and was not part of a big general storm.

But lake effect snow, like any other snow, has to be shoved in avalanches from car roofs and lifted painstakingly from sidewalks and driveways.

Even U.S. Weather Service personnel in Sault Ste. Marie were surprised to learn that Charlevoix was up to its eyebrows in snow.

"That's hard to believe," a meteorologist at the Soo told a Petoskey News-Review reporter when informed of Charlevoix's heavy overnight accumulation.

The snowfall was spotty, as is usually the case with lake effect snow. Petoskey received only an inch or so overnight. But Larks Lake southeast of Cross Village received about the same amount as Charlevoix.

THE MAJOR weather news, of course, will happen Thursday, Dec. 21. That's the winter solstice, the day our lucky old sun halts its southern trek and starts moving back north. This means the days will start growing longer and the change will be apparent fairly soon.

Even primitive societies recognized the solstice and held elaborate festivals as soon as the days were noticeably longer — about Dec. 25. Some scholars say it is no coincidence that our Christmas celebration comes about the same time of year.

With longer days, the winter blahs should soon dissipate even though frigid weather lingers through January and February. Psychologists claim that bright sunlight has a salubrious effect on the psyche.

OK, I'VE GIVEN it my best shot. I've tried to find something attractive about that towering monolith rising from the cherry orchards northeast of Acme.

But I finally have come to the conclusion that the Grand Traverse Resort is terminally ugly.

Not the condominiums around it, mind you. They are quite attractive and blend well with their surroundings. The golf course is beautiful. But the huge rectangle with the slanty roofline that is the focal point of the development is a blight on the horizon.

It looks out of place in Grand Traverse County and, I'm sorry to say, it would still be ugly in a metropolitan setting where so many new buildings look exactly like it, witness the Amway Hotel in Grand Rapids.

This occurred to me the other day as I watched HRH Charles, heir to the throne of Great Britain, host a one-hour discussion about architecture on Public Service Television. Charles believes that modern architecture is defiling the skyline of many cities in England, including his beloved London.

Charles did a superb job of stating his objections to the ungainly and ungracious structures that have risen in his homeland since the war. He is using his considerable influence not only to reverse the trend but actually have some of the more offensive buildings torn down.

It was refreshing to listen to someone in the royal family who actually had something of importance to say to all of us.

Unfortunately, Northern Michigan has no Prince Charles to come to its rescue. And we cannot guarantee that other buildings as unattractive as the Grand Traverse Resort will not be erected someday in Charlevoix, Petoskey, Boyne City or Harbor Springs.

The old Romans had a saying: There is no disputing taste.

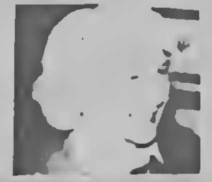
But isn't it a pity that the products of poor taste sometimes last for centuries.

WHY DIDN'T I think of that?

Daughter Katie has a new wrinkle for keeping Christmas trees fresh and green without the risk of slopping water on the carpet or floor while filling the little tree reservoir.

Instead of using water, use ice cubes. They are far easier to handle, and when they melt they'll give your tree all the moisture it needs.

EDITH



EDITH GILBERT

It's always nice to reflect on the past at the end of the year. I had the chance to do just that with two old time Charlevoixans recently.

The first person to reminisce with me was Lola Hahn who now lives in Bonita Springs, Florida. Her dad was the highly respected, former druggist, Mr. Floyd Fessenden, who owned what we now know as Dockside Pharmacy. Lola spent many hours at the soda fountain consuming the famous "Jeffs", we still enjoy there. She informed me, in case you've wondered, that this shake, made with real bittersweet chocolate, was named after Jeff Weikel, a local policeman. So now that mystery is solved!

But the "how times have changed" story she shared with me goes as follows. One of Mr. Fessenden's good summer customers walked into his "Pills and Things" drugstore wearing short shorts. The lady was much too fat to do the shorts justice, and Mr. Fessenden, who was often referred to by his family as the autocrat of the breakfast table, said "those shorts are very unbecoming to a lady like you!"

"You're absolutely right," she sweetly replied and went home and changed her outfit.

The second old-timer to reminisce with me was a former summer visitor, Arthur (Buddy) Reinhold, now of Highland Park, Illinois. He recalls that his father built the house at 215 Park Avenue as a summer place in the 20's. The whole family and friends used to come up during the winter holidays and hunt pheasant north of town. They came up from Chicago by train to Petoskey. One year there was a major snowstorm and they were driven from Petoskey to Charlevoix on the old Petoskey road that winds throughout the woods by a horse drawn sled. Can you imagine that?

This Christmas, my nephew Peter Smith, who spent his first Charlevoix summer with me at the age of six weeks, will visit me again with his lovely wife, Nancy MacArthur Smith, and their adorable baby girl. Nancy, a professional singer, affectionately referred to by me as "the voice", will be singing a solo at the Congregational Church on Christmas Eve. We can be sure that this new little family will be building future Charlevoix memories to pass on to others in the next century!

Happy Holidays.

Letters to the Editor:

Editor,

I am a 4th generation summer resident of Charlevoix and have enjoyed many summers there. One of my fondest longstanding childhood memories was visiting the fish ponds in the park where fish glided safely among the grass islands. Imagine my surprise when last summer I took a visiting friend and her children to see this unique aspect of Charlevoix, and it was gone. We were elated to see the second pond still there but disappointed that when we reached its rim, it was empty. It's bad enough that Bridge Street is taking on the atmosphere of Disneyland with nothing but souvenir clothing, gift shops, and edibles for ambulatory tourists along the street and a "Star of Charlevoix" which looks like the Delta Queen. Please restore the old-fashioned fascination of the fish ponds.

When I was a child both Lake Michigan and Round Lake could be glimpsed along Route 31 going to and from town. Now there are so many condominiums and other buildings that East Park is about the only place where a passerby can see a Lake. The natural beauty of the Lakes is what makes a summer in Charlevoix special and worthwhile. Let's not totally obscure our view of these precious resources!

Sincerely yours,
Anna D. Platt

Davis issues Mesquite statement

Congressman Bob Davis issued the following statement Dec. 14.

"It is with great regret that I announce that my office has just spoken with Admiral Paul Yost, Commandant of the United States Coast Guard and he has confirmed to us that they have determined that the Coast Guard Cutter Mesquite is damaged beyond repair and will not be returning to service."

"For the winter months, the Coast Guard will be taking steps to minimize any danger which the ship might pose, but a decision on whether or not to remove the vessel and its final disposition will have to wait until spring."

"Obviously the next question which must be answered is what steps will be taken to replace the Mesquite. Admiral Yost noted that, at this time, no decisions have been made. However, within the coming month, he will assess the Coast Guard resources in the Great Lakes in order to determine where they should be located in light of the loss of the Mesquite.

"While I understand that Admiral Yost must be careful with his comments until his analyses are completed, I am confident that he will recognize the importance of the Charlevoix location not only to the local area and its economy, but to the members and missions of the Coast Guard. Needless to say, I will continue to do all that I can to ensure that Charlevoix will receive a replacement for the Mesquite."

Season's Greetings

The holidays herald good tidings. We hope you realize the true blessings of the Christmas season: the joy of giving, love and the spirit of peace & thanksgiving. May this spirit of Christmas continue in your home throughout the new year.

K mart complex progresses

Charlevoix summer residents will find something big and new in the area when they arrive next summer.

Charlevoix Commons, a shopping mall on Highway M-66 next to Kit Carson Lumber Company, is scheduled to open about mid-year. It will feature an 86,000 square foot Kmart Department Store, a 32,000 square foot grocery super market, a 5,000 square foot pharmacy, and a local branch bank.

"We have only 10,000 square feet of our 140,000 left to put under contract," said David Campbell, local spokesperson for the development.

The State Highway Commission, in anticipation of the added traffic in the area, is looking into the possibility of installing a stop light at the intersection of Highway M-66 and Highway US-31.

Joyce Cohn

Charlevoix summer resident Joyce Cohn, 55, died Dec. 12 1989, at her West Bloomfield Township home.

Funeral was 2:30 p.m. Wednesday at the Ira Kaufman Chapel, Southfield. Burial was in Clover Hill Park Cemetery, Birmingham.

Mrs. Cohn, the wife of U.S. District Judge Avern Cohn, was a longtime Charlevoix summer resident.

In 1981, Detroit Mayor Coleman Young named Mrs. Cohn to the Detroit Zoo Commission, an appointment she held until her death. She was active in Democratic politics and attended the 1976 Democratic National convention in New York.

She was a member of the Michigan Opera Theatre board and a member of the board of directors of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra Hall. She collected folk art and antiques and was a loyal Detroit Pistons fan. She was also a loving grandmother and enjoyed gardening.

In addition to her husband, Mrs. Cohn is survived by two sons, Sheldon Cohn and Thomas Cohn; a daughter, Leslie Magy; her mother, Sara Hochman and three grandchildren.

The family suggests memorials to Cottage Hospice, 159 Kerchevel St., Grosse Pointe Farms, Mich. 48236.

Frank A. Smith

Frank A. Smith, 86, of Charlevoix, died Dec. 14, 1989, at Bortz Health Care of Petoskey.

Funeral was 2 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 17 at the Community Reformed Church in Charlevoix. The Rev. Larry Grooters officiated and interment will be in Barnard Cemetery.

Mr. Smith was born Oct. 28, 1903, in Charlevoix, the son of John and Mary (Bennet) Smith. He grew up in the Barnard area and attended Barnard School.

As a young man, he moved to the Detroit area where he worked in construction.

On June 7, 1930, he married the former Mary E. VerMeulen in Detroit. In 1931, he moved to the Barnard area, where he operated a dairy farm until 1950. He then worked for Penn Dixie Cement Co., retiring in 1965.

Mr. Smith was a member of the Community reformed Church in Charlevoix and the Barnard Grange.

Survivors include: his wife; one son, Harold W. Smith of Charlevoix; one daughter, Mrs. Paul (Thelma) Bennett of Dewitt; seven grandchildren; four great-grandchildren.

BEACONS OF BLESSINGS

by Rev. Bruce E. Hamilton

One of my favorite lines from the traditional King James Version of the Christmas story is from Luke 2:19. "But Mary kept all these things, and pondered them in her heart." If you think your holiday season has been hectic, consider the kind of start that first Christmas had.

Would you care to be nine months pregnant and on the back of a donkey for an extended journey? Every rock, every hole in the road had to be a painful experience for Mary. The swaying motion of the animal alone would make more than a few people sick.

How would you like to get to your destination and find all the motels full? Joseph was a good man, a loving husband if there ever was one. It had to be hard on him to go door to door and be told repeatedly that there was not room in the inn.

Yet at the very moment you would think they might give up, a kindly innkeeper pointed them to his stable. Yes, you did read that right. I said kindly. Would you want to have a baby in a crowded place, filled with noisy and probably half drunken people? The stable was warm, peaceful, and clean.

When the baby was born, shepherds came calling and telling of an angelic chorus. Wisemen shared about a star that had unerringly guided them for several years. Mary had a lot to ponder, new memories that would be a source of great reassurance in the days that lay ahead for her little child.

Don't you have more than a few blessings to ponder this Christmas season? How long has your wife or husband stood by you? I suspect they have seen you through more than a few rough moments. How about your children? They do grow and change so quickly. Have you given them your best to help them stand on their own?

At the bottom of it all, I hope you have recognized that God has been at work in your life. The more Mary pondered things, the more she knew none of what had happened to her was just coincidence. It was the favor and love that God had promised her she would experience all along. That same promise is open to every life that is faithful.

May this Christmas find you pondering the blessings of God in your life and giving thanks for them all.

Nuel L. Johnson

Former Charlevoix resident Nuel LeRoy Johnson, 57, of Griffen Rd., Fountain, died Dec. 16, 1989, at West Shore Hospital, Manistee.

Memorial service was held 2 p.m. Monday at Bachelor Evangelical Covenant Church. The Rev. Norman Letsinger officiated.

Mr. Johnson was born Sept.17, 1932, in Charlevoix. He grew up in Charlevoix and graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1951.

On Jan. 26, 1974, he married the former Ruth Bogart in Charlevoix.

Mr. Johnson worked as a mechanic and welder, retiring from McCormick's Sawmill, Fountain, in 1989.

He attended Bachelor Evangelical Covenant Church and served with the U.S. Army from 1952-54.

Mr. Johnson is survived by: his wife, Ruth; two sons, Anthony Johnson and his wife Marcie of Twin Lake, Richard Johnson, also of Twin Lake; two daughters, Mrs. Corky (Marianne) Randle of Fountain and Mrs. Ron (Terri) Hilton of Charlevoix; three brothers, Oliver and his wife Doris Johnson of Charlevoix, Paul and his wife Gladys Johnson of East Jordan and Martin Johnson of Royal Oak; one sister Mrs. Les (Phyllis) Anderson of Fountain; five grandchildren; several nieces and nephews.

The traditional church Christmas program

The traditional church Christmas program has provided countless memories for families.

Every year parents tell small children, "Now you learn your lines so you can say them right and make mommy and daddy proud of you at the Christmas program."

The truth be known, when those little tykes get up on that stage, mommy and daddy just beam with pride no matter how much prompting their child needs to get the lines spoken.

The photos on this page were provided by the Community Church of God, United Methodist, Congregational and Community Reformed Churches.

Solid waste plan moves methodically toward resolution

by PEG OHLE

The thickest file of clippings in the Courier office is labeled "Solid Waste."

The more recent section of the file dates back to January, 1987, when a committee of 14 men and women was formed to update the County's Solid Waste Management Plan, a chore which, by law, must be undertaken every five years.

Now, almost three years and 20-some meetings later, it seems the updated plan is about to receive the blessing of the State Department of Natural Resources (DNR).

The early part of this past year was devoted to review of the plan and comment by local agencies of government, the County Planning Commission, and the County Board of Commissioners. Following their approval, the plan was sent, June 8, to DNR headquarters in Lansing. Early this fall, the DNR advised the County Planning Department it had four minor concerns about the plan. These concerns are now being answered, and County Planner Larry Sullivan says the answers will be forwarded to Lansing early next month, clearing the way for "the stamp of approval by the DNR at the end of January, 1990."

As in the past, the Charlevoix County Solid Waste Plan relies on the landfill (now called "Cedar Ridge) in Eveline Township as the major disposal site for county waste. Although this landfill now has a life expectancy of only four to seven years, the management expects to ask the county for permission to expand it by 20 acres, which would bring its life expectancy up to 20 years.

The plan also considers other means of waste disposal, including the recycling of paper, metals, glass, plastic, and oil. There are several newspaper collection projects in the county which transfer newspapers to recycling points. One of the most successful has been the Kiwanis project in Charlevoix. Northwest Recycling, which opened in Charlevoix a few months ago, handles many types of materials. One local merchant, Mike Greeley of Wharfside Market, says he will cut his waste pickup almost in half by taking his cardboard boxes and paper to Northwest.

Waste Management, which now operates Cedar Ridge, is planning a drop-off recycling center which will accept glass, plastic, newspapers, and computer paper. This facility should be in operation within the next few months.

Cedar Ridge is one of only three licensed landfills in Northern Michigan and is used by haulers from a large geographic area. In fact, it is estimated that only about one-third of the waste deposited there comes from Charlevoix County.

The updated Charlevoix County Solid Waste Management Plan requires that any county whose haulers want to use Cedar Ridge must enter into a reciprocal agreement with the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners before those haulers are permitted to use Cedar Ridge. Emmet County has already made a preliminary request for such an agreement, and it is expected others will follow.

Cedar Ridge is located slightly more than a mile from the shore of Lake Charlevoix, a situation which has disturbed many county residents who fear land, water, and air pollution from over-use of the landfill.

School board revises policy governing fundraising

At its regular meeting Monday night, the Charlevoix Board of Education covered several topics, including approval of a new fund-raising policy; the advertising board at the high school; and the K-5 drug education program.

As it's first item of business, the board approved a new policy covering school-related fund-raising activities.

According to board members Doris Pearl and Janet Rathke, the policy was revised to address issues left uncovered by the former policy, which according to Pearl, was very general.

The changes include a section in which the board encourages sponsors of fund-raising activities to consider nutritional value when deciding upon an item to well. "What we meant by that," Pearl said, is that we hope people would stop selling candy bars." Pearl told the board that several parents had expressed concern over the "double message" the children receive when they participate in these fund-raisers.

"They get a message in nutrition class telling that candy's not good for them," Pearl explained. "But then they're told that it's okay to sell the candy to their neighbors."

Pearl said also that some parents had objected to the idea of elementary school children selling candy door-to-door, feeling it was unsafe.

Dennis VanGuilder, middle school principal, pointed out that candy has a high profit margin, and in most cases, it is that consideration that is uppermost in the sponsor's mind. "After all," he said, "the idea is to make money."

Pearl explained that it was for that reason that the section was worded the way it was. "We didn't feel we as a board should say 'No, you can't sell candy;' but at least we're asking them to consider alternatives," she said.

Pearl added that the policy committee members wanted to encourage fund-raising groups to explore methods of fund-raising that involved community service. "We would like to have the kids see that they've accomplished something, and to earn the money doing something that would benefit the community."

The other primary change from the old policy involved the issue of accountability, Pearl said. The new policy provides a means of making sure the money is spent as it was extended.

According to Pearl and Rathke, the policy committee has been working on these revisions for over a year.

In other business, the board discussed the options available concerning the advertising board which currently resides in the hall near the gym at the high school. The year trial period that the board decided on when the advertising board was installed is nearing on end, and Dave Smith, high school principal asked the board to review the situation and decide whether to keep the board.

According to Smith, the board displays information of interest to the students and a calendar of sporting and school-related events, as well as commercial advertising.

Board members Scott Beatty and Ken Boss expressed concern over the cost of the board, and asked Smith to check into cheaper manufacturers. Rathke asked Smith to conduct a survey to determine how many students use the advertising board. The board voted to table the issue until more information could be gathered. The question will be raised again at the next board meeting.

Finally, at the request of School Superintendent Gordon VanWieren, Gayle Gennett, elementary school counselor, gave a brief presentation to the board about the K-5 Drug Education and Prevention Program. Gennett's presentation focused on the aspect of the program which the 5th grade students participate in. Entitled "Deciding about Drugs." The program uses films and videos to encourage students to talk about problems they may be experiencing dealing with drugs or alcohol; whether family-related, or caused by peer pressure to use alcohol and drugs.

According to a hand-out Gennett gave board members, the 5th grade program runs for four months, and in that time, students are given information to help them recognize addiction, and to cope in an alcoholic and-or drug-abusing household. They learn also the effects of alcohol and drugs on the human body, and are offered methods of coping with peer pressure.

As part of the presentation, board members watched one of the films used in the program.

Debate team fares well in final league competition

Charlevoix debaters, all members of the high school Performing Arts Team, wound up their season of "League Debating" with multiple honors. They advance to state-wide tournament debate finals after the holidays.

The team is debating a nationally selected topic focussed on prison overcrowding. A two-person affirmative team is responsible for proposing and defending a case to solve the problem of prison overcrowding. A second two-person negative team argues against another school's affirmative case.

In the "Swing" debate division, a two-person team must debate the affirmative side one round and the negative side in the next round. Charlevoix's varsity finished with an "Honorable Mention." Novice debaters Tami Felton and Nancy Dammann took first place in their division of "Swing" and Meagan Bickersteth and Anne Schairbaum took third place in the same division.

In four-person debate competition, where each two-person team only debates one side, affirmative or negative, Varsity debater Stacey LeCureux received an Honorable Mention as "Speaker."

Speaker awards are based on total points accumulated throughout the debate season. The Novice four-person team of Meagan Bickersteth, Anne Schairbaum, Tami Felton and Nancy Dammann took second place overall, in the Novice division. Felton and Dammann won First Conference speaker awards, and Schairbaum, and Bickersteth received Second conference Speaker Awards. The Novice team of Jennifer Barnadyn, Dorsey Sherman, Megan Friedly, Kim Solomon and John Parish received an Honorable Mention as a team, with Friedly receiving First Conference Speaker Awards and Sherman and Barnadyn receiving School Conference Awards.

Also debating at the Varsity level this year were Troy Bonar, Jeff Warner, Marcie Beaudion, and Chrissy Dillon.

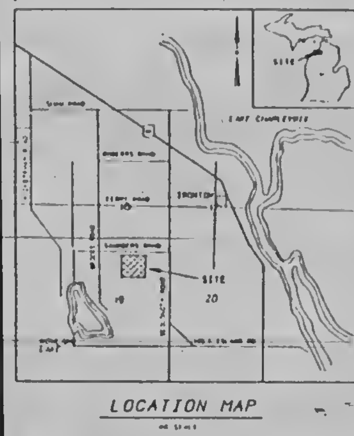
NOTICE OF APPLICATION AND PUBLIC HEARING FOR A CONSTRUCTION PERMIT FOR A NEW SOLID WASTE DISPOSAL AREA (SANITARY LANDFILL) CEDAR RIDGE LANDFILL (FORMERLY CHARLEVOIX COUNTY LANDFILL, INC.)

The Department of Natural Resources, Waste Management Division has received a construction permit application and request for a public hearing for the above proposed disposal area (sanitary landfill) from Michigan Waste Systems, Inc., a subsidiary of Waste Management of North America, Inc. on December 7, 1989.

Section 11 (2) (b) and (c) of Act 641, Public Acts of 1978, as amended, better known as the Solid Waste Management Act, provides for a notice of a construction permit application and public hearing for a solid waste disposal area (Type II Sanitary Landfill).

The public hearing is scheduled to be held on January 25, 1990 at the Charlevoix County Building Courtroom located on State Street in the City of Charlevoix at 7 p m



LOCATION MAP

The applicant proposes to vertically expand beyond the current approved limits of the Charlevoix County Landfill (now known as Cedar Ridge Landfill), which is designed and operated to receive and dispose of solid wastes from industrial, commercial, and residential sources. The applicant also will provide a composite liner system consisting of a five-foot compacted clay liner and a 60 mil synthetic liner, with a leachate collection system.

The proposed Type II sanitary landfill is shown on the map below and will be located on Saunders Road, one-half mile west of Sequonata Road. The site is further described as part of the NW¼ of the NE ¼ of Section 19, Evoline Township, T33N, R7W, Charlevoix County.

The complete application package may be reviewed at the office of the Waste Management Division, District 5 Headquarters, Department of Natural Resources, 1732 M-32 West, Gaylord, Michigan 49735, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday, except holidays; and at the Charlevoix Office of the District Health Department #3, located at 203 Antrim Street, Charlevoix, Michigan, from 8:30 a.m. to 12 noon, and 1 p.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday, except holidays.

Copies of the complete application package may be ordered from the Waste Management Division, Gaylord District Office, P.O. Box 667, Gaylord, Michigan 49735, for the cost of reproduction upon request.

Hoffman raised a legitimate question, one which requires research before it can be answered.

Probert then asked councilman to confirm Kelly pending an opinion from the city attorney.

Jim Potter was the only councilman to question the appointment proceeding: He said the appointments came as a surprise to him.

"It seems like last year when we did it, we talked about it one week and voted the next," he said. Referring to the audience comments, Potter said, "I guess I wish I would have heard about it before too."

Potter abstained from some of the straw votes taken when the council was going through the individual appointments. But later, when a blanket motion was made covering several appointments, Potter, like the other four councilmen, voted in favor.

Councilman Bill Haggard was not present at Monday's meeting.

After the council consented to mayoral appointments, they turned to council appointments.

Those also resulted in an incumbent not being reappointed. Robert Kern was not reappointed to the Zoning Board of Appeals. The council appointed Norm Probert, an incumbent councilman leaving office, to take Kern's place.

Castle Farms files suit against sheriff

Arthur Reibel and Castle Farms Management Corporation have filed a civil rights suit in U.S. District Court against Charlevoix County Sheriff George Lasater. The suit, which has been assigned to Judge Douglas Hillman, seeks $400,000 in compensatory and punitive damages.

Lasater has deemed the suit "legal harassment."

John Dise, a Detroit based attorney defending Lasater, said of the suit, "Essentially, there's no basis to the claims."

In the suit, Reibel claims, "...the said defendant sheriff has continously, over an extended period of years, and continues as of this date, to practice a pattern of unconstitutional and discriminatory conduct and activities, designed to interfere and obstruct the lawful operation of plaintiff's businesses."

The suit refers to a 1982 Circuit Court case involving Lasater, Castle Farms and Marion Township as well as citations made by the liquor control commission this past summer and the county mass gathering ordinance.

In 1982, Marion township requested a permanent injunction against Castle concerts, claiming Castle Farms was not complying with a provision of a township gathering ordinance. The provision, one of several in the ordinance, required the sheriff's approval of the concerts.

Lasater has deemed the suit "legal harassment."

Lasater has consistantly maintained that before he will approve of the concerts, he wants concert crowds limited to 7,000 or 8,000, concert parking lots fenced and a head tax charged in conjunction with tickets to defray costs incurred by the sheriff's department and other agencies due to the concerts.

Castle Farms refused to meet those conditions and the Circuit Court judge ruled Castle Farms and Reibel did not have to meet the conditions. The judge ruled that the township ordinance effectively delegated veto power to the sheriff. The judge further ruled that the use of this veto power interfered with the Castle's constitutional rights and therefore Castle Farms Music Theater was not required to meet all requirements of the township licensing law.

The concerts have continued since 1982 without the sheriff's approval.

The suit also refers to a recent conflict involving the sheriff's department, Castle Farms Management Corporation and the Michigan Liquor Control Commission.

The suit alleges that at July 7 and Aug. 23 concerts this summer, Lasater and others trespassed upon Castle properties without warrants and made unlawful arrests and removal of persons from Castle properties. The suit claims that during the Aug. 23 incident the officers involved, "...did also threaten and intimidate the Plaintiff, Arthur Reibel."

In an interview with the Courier last week, Ken Swanthood, district supervisor for the Michigan Liquor control Commission, said liquor control officers accompanied by sheriff's deputies worked July 7 and Aug. 23 concerts and issued citations to the liquor license holder on charges of selling alcohol to minors, allowing minors to consume alcohol and failure to cooperate with officers.

Swanthood said his office has received numerous complaints of the Castle selling alcohol to minors. At a spring concert, two undercover officers were sent in to observe. Based on those observations, Swanthood recommended to the Lansing liquor control office that officers be sent in at the July and August concerts. He said his office asked the sheriff's department for assistance because liquor control officers are unarmed and don't have arrest power.

Following the two concerts,

Mayor Gary Probert (right) displays Charlevoix's new city flag. In the background, councilman Earl Muma displays the former city flag. Replicas of the new flag are for sale through city hall. The new flag design, done by Linda Boss, was selected in a design competition. Muma, who was instrumental in the process, said the flag will be displayed along with flags from other communities at Municipal League conferences and other events.

City will take bids from local dealers to provide new police car

Local car dealers will have an opportunity to bid on providing a new police car to the city.

City manager Mike Wiesner and police chief Dennis Halverson recommended purchasing the patrol car through state purchasing program, but following protests from local dealers at the Dec. 18 city council meeting, the council decided to allow local dealers to bid rather than, or at least prior to, purchasing a patrol car through the state program.

As the state program pertains to patrol cars, the Michigan State Police test various U.S. manufactured cars and receive bids from car dealers to provide the cars tested. The nationally recognized testing program allows the state to incorporate performance along with price into the bid process.

The dealer providing the selected bid is asked to extend that price not only to the State Police, but also to local law enforcement departments which want to purchase the same type of patrol car.

Berger Chevrolet of Grand Rapids is the dealership providing patrol cars through the state program this year. They are providing 1990 Chevrolet Caprice's, outfitted for police work, at a current State purchase price of $13,728.58.

In a memo included in the council's information packet, Halverson wrote, "We have made the last two vehicle purchases through the State and it has proven to be more than satisfactory. (Boyne City Police, East Jordan Police, the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department along with the Michigan State Police, purchase their cars in this manner and they have been very happy with the results.)"

Local car dealers, Pat McKeown and Kirby Dipert, speaking at the council meeting, argued that local dealers should be given a chance to bid.

McKeown said he wasn't sure he could be low bidder, but he at least wanted a chance to make a bid. He noted that moments before the police car discussion, the council passed a resolution seeking to have Charlevoix continue to be a port for a U.S. Coast Guard cutter. McKeown pointed out that local economics were a factor in that resolution. He noted that the local Ford and Chrysler dealerships employ a total of 44 people and local economics should also be considered in the purchase of the patrol car.

Dipert also said local dealers would like an opportunity for the business and did not want to be skirted in the bid process.

The Charlevoix Rotary Club recently received a plaque from the city in honor of its work to establish Rotary Park. The park, located next to the softball fields on West Carpenter, contains a playground area and softball court which are used extensively during the summer. Shown from left are: Mayor Gary Probert, recreation director Ike Boss and Rotary officers Kirby Dipert and Joe Trojanek.

... local dealers to bid on car

Halverson said it's difficult to get a car which meets all patrol car specifications through a local dealer. He said a patrol car is an extremely important piece of police equipment as it essentially serves as the policeman's office.

Wiesner indicated the recommendation to purchase the car through the state program was based on getting the most for the tax dollar. He noted that in city purchases when all things are equal the purchase should made through local vendors. But, he added that the city also has a duty to the public to spend tax dollars as wisely as possible.

Wiesner said that in the past the state has indicated that if the city solicits bids, they are then ineligible to purchase through the state program.

The state official in charge of that particular aspect of purchasing is on vacation and could not be reached for comment by the Courier following the meeting.

Councilmen said they favored allowing the local dealers to make bids. Following receipt of those bids the council will decide whether to purchase locally or pursue acquisition of a car through the state program.

... Castle files suit

violation reports were forwarded to the liquor control office in Lansing. A hearing scheduled for Nov. 14 was postponed at the request of Castle Farms Management Corporation.

When contacted last week, the Lansing liquor control office said the hearing will probably take place in January or March, but definitely before the Castle reopens in the spring.

If Castle Farms Management Corporation is found guilty, they could be fined up to $300 per charge of allowing minors to consume, up to $1,000 per charge of allowing minors to purchase and their liquor license could be suspended or revoked according to the decision of the hearing commission.

The lawsuit also alleges Lasater has refused to apply and enforce the county's mass gathering ordinance and Michigan Liquor Control Commission laws against other businesses in the county.

In a brief written response to the suit, Lasater said, "It is a sad scenario in our society when an elected official, who is trying to fulfill his sworn duties and act in a responsible manner, has to deal with this type of legal harassment.

"I was elected by the citizens of Charlevoix County to uphold the laws and maintain order and I will not be intimidated by Castle Farms. If I'm sued for doing my sworn duties so be it."

Dise is a Detroit based attorney specializing in defending law enforcement personnel and municipalities. He is retained by a company Lasater is insured by.

"Just because they (Reibel and Castle Farms Management Corporation) filed a law suit doesn't mean a thing," Dise said.

He noted that someone can pay a court filing fee and file a suit making many claims, but that doesn't mean the claims have any validity.

Dise said the next step in the suit is to take a deposition from the plaintiff in January.

"We're gathering evidence so that we can go into court and show the judge there's no evidence to support the plaintiff's claim," Dise said.

Dise said that although people often read about suits which are filed and seek large amounts of money from municipalities or public officials, most of those suits end up being dismissed or settled for much smaller amounts.

"I think the sheriff is a well-respected person. I don't think we'll have any problem with this," Dise said.

OUR CRABAPPLE TREE, PLANTED SEVERAL YEARS AGO, PLANTED TO BE VIEWED FROM THE KITCHEN WINDOW, BACK DECK AND MY STUDIO, IS A SOURCE OF JOY IN EVERY SEASON. IN EARLY SPRING AN ARRAY OF BULBS DANCE AT ITS FEET. AS SUMMER APPROACHES IT IS FESTOONED IN A FROTH OF PINK BLOSSOMS. ALL THROUGH THE SUMMER IT HOUSES A VARIETY OF BIRDS AND BUTTERFLIES. AS FALL APPROACHES ITS LEAFLESS BRANCHES ARE DECORATED WITH SMALL APPLES, PROVIDING AN OPEN MARKET PLACE FOR HUNGRY SQUIRRELS AND JAYS. EVEN IN WINTER ITS BEAUTY IS APPARENT, FOR NOW IT SEEMS TO GROW WITH ONLY ONE PURPOSE — TO WEAR A CLOAK OF HEAVY SNOW.

REASONABLE TO ME

L. SCOTT SWANSON

Perils of Christmas Eve

With this latest incident, it makes at least twice that I've shed blood on Christmas Eve.

The first incident occurred several years ago. It was somewhere around 10 p.m. on Christmas Eve. My parents were out visiting someone, my grandparents I believe. My brothers and I were home, playing ping pong in the basement.

An errant shot rolled into a sideroom which houses the freezer, furnace and water heater. The ball bounced along the floor with me bent over pursuing it. A bouncing ping pong ball is not the easiest fugitive to nab. It made it's way clear to the far end of the room before I finally corralled it.

Once, I got the ping pong ball in custody, I stood up straight, turned around, took two steps and hit a low-hanging pipe with my forehead. Ka-Bong!

The rattling pipes and subsequent burst of profanity aroused my brothers' curiousity. As I staggered out into the lighted room, they inquired as to what had happened. They also pointed out that I had blood trickling down my face.

I went upstairs and surveyed the damage with the assistance of the bathroom mirror. Sure enough, a small trickle of blood was running down my forehead, into my right eyebrow and then down the side of my nose.

I wiped away the blood to get a better look at the pipe's point of impact. As far as I was concerned, it didn't appear to be a mortal wound.

After washing and drying the cut, I found a Band-Aid and cut it in half vertically and manufactured a little butterfly bandage. By the time I finished, the bleeding had stopped and everything was fine.

A little while later, I decided to call it a night and go to bed. I'd been in bed only a few minutes and was not yet asleep when I heard my parents come in.

"So, anything happen while we were gone? Any phone calls or anything?" my mother inquired.

"Well, no phone calls, but Scott hit his head on a pipe and was bleeding," one of my brothers volunteered.

Upon hearing him tell her that, I cringed far worse than I had when I'd hit the pipe.

Scant seconds later, I faced a mother demanding to see the injury.

"It's fine," I grumbled. "It's just a little cut. I put a Band-Aid on it. Just leave it alone."

"Well, I want to take a look at it," my mother persisted.

"No. Go away. I want to go to sleep."

But moments later she was back. And this time she was armed. She had a little bottle of red stuff.

"I'm going to put some of this on that cut so it doesn't get infected."

"Oh no you're not."

"Yes, I am. If that gets infected, it could be bad."

"Get away from me with that stuff. I washed out the cut. It's fine. Besides, if you take the Band-Aid off, it might start bleeding again."

She wasn't happy about it, but she could see the blow to the head hadn't knocked any sense into me so she gave up.

As she went into the kitchen, I heard my father ask her, "So what'd you find out?"

"That oldest son of yours," she fumed. "He's got a cut on his head and he won't let me do anything about it. That close to his brain, if it gets infected he could die."

Mothers always cast a worst-case scenario when one of their offspring is injured.

My father tried to be reassuring. "Don't worry," he told her. "The cut's on his head. His brain's clear at the other end."

But I survived that Christmas Eve. Contrary to my mother's predictions, the little cut healed and caused no further problem.

This Christmas, my wife got me a wood carving set which I opened Christmas Eve. Late that night, after my wife and the baby had turned in, I decided to try my hand at a little wood carving.

Try my hand is exactly what I did, my left thumb to be specific. There was blood, several drops of it.

I washed out the cut on my thumb and taped it up.

Memories of a past Christmas Eve kept me from mentioning this cut to either my wife or my mother until well after the incident was old news.

CLOCKWISE

BOB CLOCK

My, how things change

Can you remember another year that ended with such an explosion of exciting, world-shaking news?

I can't.

Who would have thought three months ago that the long-feared "Soviet Bloc," one of the most powerful military and political juggernauts the world has ever known, would fall apart piece by piece before the end of the year.

Or who would have thought that peace-loving Americans, led by timid George Bush, would have become the world's burly aggressor nation?

Monumental events — the stuff history books are made of — are happening so rapidly that I wish I could stop the world for a day or two to catch my breath.

Last week alone:

- President Bush ordered the invasion of Panama and put a $1 million pricetag on the head of strongman Gen. Manuel Noreiga.
- Communist President Nicolae Ceausescu of Romania was toppled by an aroused populace following two days of bloody riots. He is now dead, having been tried and found guilty of mayhem by a military tribunal.
- After 28 years, the Berlin Wall at the Brandenburg Gate was demolished, a symbolic gesture capping East Germany's march toward democracy.

In almost 40 years as a member of the Fourth Estate, I cannot recall a more exciting week to be in the newspaper business — even if you're thousands of miles from the action.

THE PANAMA invasion gives a pretty good idea of how fast things can happen.

The world learned the invasion in the predawn hours Wednesday when stories about mortar fire, helicopters, assault forces and bombing raids began to show up on video display terminals in newsrooms around the world.

By Wednesday morning, 48 hours later, we were being offered stories about GIs, wounded in Panama and patched up at an Air Force hospital in San Antonio, who were being sent home to spend Christmas with their families.

This means that in less than a week from the day President Bush decided to invade — Sunday, Dec. 17 — these guys had been shipped overseas, encountered enemy fire, earned their purple hearts, returned to the United States, received medical treatment and were sent home to recuperate.

The whole procedure would have taken months — or years — a generation ago.

AS MUCH AS most of us regret the invasion of Panama, it probably was necessary, given the president's low threshold of frustration.

After all, Gen. Noreiga had declared war on the United States the previous Friday. At least one American serviceman in Panama was murdered over the weekend and an American couple beaten and terrorized.

That was enough for Bush.

It is a pity that more than 20 American servicemen had to lay down their lives in order to remove Noriega from office and protect the civil liberties of Panamanian citizens. Their wasted lives are particularly distressing during the holiday season.

If I had been Bush, I would have followed another course.

Panamanians, as you know, are particularly eager to gain control of the U.S.-owned Panama Canal Zone which passes through their country. A few years ago, the United States entered into a treaty under which control of the canal will revert to the Panamanian government over the next decade.

I believe considerable bloodshed could have been averted if Bush had simply told Panama that the United States would abrogate the treaty if Noriega remained in power.

Then Noriega's ouster would have been up to the Panamanians themselves and I believe they would have acted with alacrity and dispatch to get rid of their brutish dictator by fair means or foul.

Unfortunately, Bush chose the invasion route and the United States once again has been cast in the role of a heavy in international affairs, roundly condemned by freedom-loving people everywhere — including the Russians.

Oh my! How the world has changed in one short week!

The Pool Steer Committee recently put up this window display in the lower level of the Market Mall. The display contains drawings depicting the proposed indoor community swimming pool.

Pool proponents discuss funding

A professional fundraising consultant retained by the Pool Steering Committee (PSC) has told the committee he feels there is support for an indoor community swimming pool. He made his report following interviews with approximately 40 people.

According to a PSC publicity release, Morris Evertt, Jr., whose survey work was financed through an anonymous grant to the committee, indicated that many people want a pool, but question how it will be paid for. He said people interviewed favor having the pool at the elementary school.

While pool proponents are laying groundwork for a fundraising campaign to begin in the coming year, they are also considering applying for a grant through the State Recreation Bond program.

An effort made earlier this year to apply for a state recreation grant fell through when the state moved the grant application deadline ahead and pool proponents could not find a municipal sponsor for the grant.

A group called "Mothers for the Pool" has been formed to report feasibility study results to service clubs, governmental units and other organizations. The group consists of approximately 20 women.

According to the release, 75 percent of those Everett interviewed indicated they would pledge amounts over a one to three-year period which would total approximately $300,000. The pool effort currently has $40,000 in an account managed by the Kiwanis Youth Foundation Friends of the Pool project.

During a pool discussion this summer at a city council meeting, pool proponents said they plan to fund pool construction and operation without money derived from a property tax levy.

Char-Em schedules child screening

There will be a three-year-old Developmental Screening clinic for all children who will be entering kindergarten in the fall of 1991. This clinic is sponsored by the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District. The purpose of this clinic is to provide parents information regarding normal child development, an opportunity to interact with parents of other three-year-old children, and to have your child informally screened to identify any potential learning difficulties which may arise during the school years. This is a free service with appointments made on a first come, first served basis.

The Charlevoix School District clinics are scheduled for January 10 and February 14 at the Charlevoix-Emmet I.S.D. on Mercer Rd.

If you are interested in attending the above clinic, or reside in a district other than the one listed above, please contact Pat Gauthier, 547-9947, at the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District for an appointment or for further information.

Sneathen 50th

Lee and Helen Sneathen

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Sneathen, Jr. will be guests of honor at an open house on Saturday, December 30, celebrating their 50th wedding anniversary.

Lee Sneathen and the former Helen Bare were married October 22, 1939 in Petoskey.

The Sneathen's three sons and their wives are Carl and Nancy Sneathen of Atlanta, Georgia, James and Maurine Sneathen of Grand Rapids, and Robert and Sandy Sneathen of Charlevoix. There are also four grandsons.

Friends and neighbors are invited to attend the anniversary open house in the Hayes Township Hall, Burgess Road and Old U.S. 31, from 2:30 to 5 p.m.

Consumers employees host dance to benefit the Salvation Army

A Christmas benefit dance hosted earlier this month by employees of Consumers Power Company's Big Rock Point nuclear plant resulted in a donation of $1,200 and a large number of toys to the Salvation Army.

Benefit organizers Patrick M. Donnelly and William J. Trubilowicz presented a check to Major Dorothy Lenon, commanding officer of the Petoskey Salvation Army during the event which took place at the Knights of Columbus Hall in Petoskey, Friday, December 8. Major Lenon and Lieutenant Patricia Thompson, assistant officer, were also presented with dozens of toys for the Salvation Army to distribute during the holidays to needy families.

The benefit was the second annual affair staged by Big Rock Point employees. "We enjoyed it so much last year and were able to provide so much help to the Salvation Army that we thought we should try it again this year," said Trubilowicz, plant operatons supervisor.

The $1,200 donation will help the Salvation Army come closer to achieving the $42,000 goal set for its "Tree of Lights" fundraisin program going on right now.

Helping to make the benefit a success were caterer Dave Phillips of Charlevoix and Larry Wojcik's 16-member Big Band. Members of Wojcik's band came from as far away as Grand Rapids and Mt. Pleasant to participate in the program.

Lighting contest winners named

A panel of four judges named the Jim Urich residence at 219 Antrim Street the overall winner in the fourth annual Keep Charlevoix Beautiful (KCB) residential Christmas lighting contest.

Along with the overall winner, judges also recognized homes in different areas of the community. Homes recognized by area division were:

Northside homes: Dianne and Bill Dreyer, 312 Nettleton; Tom and Judy Jervis, 314 Meech.

Downtown homes west of Bridge Street: Jim Urich, 219 Antrim; Bill and Barb Vogel, 224 Antrim.

Downtown homes east of Bridge Street: Roger and Annette Nesburg, 1006 St. James; Robert and Patricia Bailey, 102 Eaton Court.

Outside of the city: Art Falting, Marion Center Road; Ivan Witthoeft, Old Orchard Road.

Venetian queen to compete in Heart of Michigan pageant

Marci Lynn Wynkoop, Charlevoix's reigning Venetian Queen, is readying herself for the Miss Heart of Michigan Scholarship Pageant, which will be held February 10 in Kalkaska.

According to Marci, this contest is considered a preliminary to the Miss Michigan contest, with the winner of Miss Heart of Michigan automatically advancing to the Miss Michigan contest next June.

Marci was crowned Miss Charlevoix at the Venetian Festival last July. She is a 1989 graduate of Charlevoix High School, where she spent four years with the Performing Arts group and participated in productions of "Oklahoma", "Westside Story", and "Pirates of Penzance." She also was a member of the Band, where she played trumpet, flute, and euphonium.

Now, Marci is a student at Grand Rapids Baptist College, where she is playing in the Band and singing with the Chorale. On Thanksgiving Day, she was in the big parade in Detroit greeting onlookers as Miss Charlevoix from the city's Petunia float. Earlier, she represented the city in a parade in Kalamazoo.

Participating in a pageant is an expensive proposition, so Marci and the Chamber of Commerce have been lining up sponsors to help pay for clothes and other necessities involved with the Miss Heart of Michigan Scholarship Pageant.

The Chamber contributed $40 for the dance outfit Marci will wear in the opening number, and about 30 local business people and others have contributed to the sponsors fund. Marci says she appreciates all the help the people of Charlevoix have given her. If, by chance, she does not win the Miss Heart of Michigan Pageant, she will enter the Cherry Festival Queen Pageant in Traverse City next summer, so her wardrobe will be well used.

Contestants in the Miss Heart of Michigan Scholarship Pageant model a formal gown and a swim suit, compete in a talent contest, and are formally interviewed. Each of these activities requires a separate outfit.

Marci is the daughter of Cecil and Jeanne Wynkoop of Norwood Township. She has a sister, DeAnne, who is two years older than she, and two halfbrothers and one halfsister, who are also older.

Charles M. Weisler

Charles M. Weisler, 82, of Charlevoix, died Dec. 25, 1989, at Bortz Health Care of Petoskey.

Memorial service will be 11 a.m. Thursday, Dec. 28, at the Winchester Funeral Home, Charlevoix. Pastor Bruce E. Hamilton of the Charlevoix Community Church of God will officiate. Interment will be in Brookside Cemetery, Charlevoix.

Mr. Weisler was born Aug. 2, 1907, in Cedar, the son of Charles R. and Kate (Brzezinski) Weisler. The family moved to East Jordan when Mr. Weisler was a young boy and then to lumber camps in the Upper Peninsula from 1927-32. He then moved back to Northern Michigan where he married the former Henrietta Russell on July 11, 1936, in East Jordan. The couple farmed near Torch Lake village for seven years and then farmed in Norwood Township for 23 years. Mr. Weisler also worked for the East Jordan Iron Works as a molder from 1955-69.

He was a member of the Norwood United Methodist Church. He loved gardening and the outdoors, especially hunting, snowmobiling, snowshoeing and traveling in his motor home.

Mr. Weisler is survived by: his wife; two sons, Martin C. Weisler Sr. of East Jordan and Raymond A. Weisler of Charlevoix; two daughters, Mrs. Otis (Rosalie) Elliot of Weidman and Shirley Magsig of Gaylord; 11 grandchildren; 18 great-grandchildren; three sisters, Mary Stanek of East Jordan, Ann McKenney of Bellaire and Elizabeth Seaton of Central Lake.

There will be no visitation at the funeral home.

The family suggests memorials to the Norwood United Methodist Church or the Charlevoix County Hospice.

Health Dept. urges good health habits

Brian L. Youngs, M.D., Medical Director for the District Health Department, is stressing the importance of practicing good health habits, especially during this time of year. During the winter-spring months, viral diseases such as influenza, influenza like illnesses, measles, and chicken pox; and bacterial diseases such as streptococcal sore throat and meningitis increase in frequency. Many of the diseases are spread by direct and intimate contact with nose and throat secretions and discharges from infected individuals or healthy carriers of disease.

Good health habits are an important factor in staying healty. They help by preventing the spread of disease, and are especially important during the school year. The bringing together of large numbers of children into the classroom promotes transmission of disease between individuals. Transmission is also increased in many other community settings to include work sites, restaurants, stores, theaters, arcades, and churches. However, the amount of illness can be reduced by practicing good health habits.

Staying healthy is more than just keeping yourself clean. Staying healthy requires you to use good health habits, and to avoid unhealthy habits which lead to disease. Most good health habits are those common sense things taught to us as children by our parents, and include: washing your hands before you eat; washing your hands after you use the bathroom; not sharing common personal items such as eating utensils, glasses, combs, towels, and food; keeping your fingernails clean and trimmed; not biting your fingernails; covering your mouth when you cough or sneeze; staying home when you are sick; avoiding others who are ill; and keeping small children from putting objects in their mouths.

Parents should not send ill children to school, to day care or to a nursery. This is very important because many respiratory and intestinal diseases are contacted in the day care-nursery setting.

There are other measures involved in preventing disease such as receiving childhood immunizations and following your family physician's advice. Yet, a simple measure like washing your hands or keeping an ill child home will help prevent the spread of illness from one person to another.

BEACONS OF BLESSINGS

by Rev. Floyd R. Henderson
East Upright Church of God

"And I, if I be lifted up will draw all men unto me" (John 12:32).

From Bethlehem you can see the Cross. The manger is the low point at which the Son of God entered the world. Few would have seen it; probably no one would have recorded to except for Calvary.

From, Calvary you can see heaven and eternity. Of this moment Jesus had said, "For this cause come I unto this hour" (John 12:27). To the dying thief he promised eternity and Paradise: "Today shalt thou be with me in Paradise" (Luke 23:43). Of Himself He cried, "Father, into thy hands I commend my spirit" (Luke 23:46).

From Calvary you can see the world as the world can see Calvary. "Jesus of Nazareth the King of the Jews" was written in Hebrew, Greek and Latin upon the Cross (John 19:19,20). His prayer "Father forgive them; for they know not what they do"(Luke 23:24); reaches from the throne of God and the altar of God to the dying thief, to the Roman centurion, to the repentant Peter - to all ages, races, social levels and to every degree of sin.

From Calvary you can see Bethlehem. The life of Christ unfolds before the Cross; His birth, His teaching and preaching, His miracles, His rebuke of disciples, His comfort of disciples, His comfort of disciples, His baptism, His transfiguration, His triumphal entry into Jerusalem and Gethsemane.

From Calvary you can see the empty tomb and the Mount of Olives; from which He ascended and which he will return.

As Bethlehem is the low point at which Christ enters the world, Calvary is the high point from which He leaves the world to come again.

Project encounters zoning questions in Hayes Township

by PEG OHLE

If they keep their present Agricultural zoning, they will be able to operate their golf course and build houses on 10-acre lots of property. If they are rezoned to Rural Residential I, they will be able to build houses on five-acre lots, but the golf course will not be permitted.

That is the dilemma faced by Scots Ventures of Stuart, Florida, owners of 726 acres of Agricultural land in Hayes Township. Scots Ventures have constructed and seeded the 18-hole golf course, called "Dunmaglis" and set an opening date of spring, 1991.

Scots Ventures also want to build a subdivision on their property, but they do not want to bide by the 10 acre lot size required in an Agricultural zone. That is why they asked the Hayes Township Planning Commission to rezone the property to Rural Residential I, making it possible for them to build housing units on five-acre lots.

The Hayes Township Planning Commission refused their request because the golf course, already in place, would not be permitted in the Residential zone. The County Planning Commission, acting in an advisory capacity, upheld the Township's decision but suggested that Township officials and developers sit down and work out the problem.

The developers foresee using about 250 acres of the property for the golf course and subdivision, leaving some 500 acres in their natural state.

Both Township and County Planning officials have indicated they think the project is a good one and should be pursued. Some members of the County Planning Commission have suggested that the Township revise its zoning ordinance so that golf courses would be permitted in the Residential Zone.

Another possible solution, according to County Planner Larry Sullivan, would be to set up a Planned Unit Development, which is permitted as a nonconforming use in the Township's zoning ordinance. This would permit a more flexible use of the land, including the golf course and cluster housing.

If Scots Ventures decides to ask for a Planned Unit Development, the use decision would be made by the Township Planning Commission without the concurrence of the Township Board. A rezoning would have to be approved by both the Township Planning Commission and the Township Board.

David Campbell of Charlevoix, who is one of the attorneys for Scots Ventures, says he is "cautiously optimistic" about the project and hopes to work out the problems with the Township.

Bald eagle survey begins

Michigan's 1990 mid-winter bald eagle survey will be conducted Jan. 4-18, according to the Department of Natural Resources (DNR). Residents are urged to become directly involved with this annual count by reporting all sightings of bald eagles seen during the two-week period.

"Sighting information gathered is vital to identifying wintering areas of Michigan's bald eagles," DNR Director David Hales said. "This project is part of a continuing effort to refine management techniques for this magnificent bird."

Anyone sighting a bald eagle during Jan. 4-18 should send a postcard containing the date, time, specific location, and number of eagles observed to: Winter Eagles, DNR Natural Heritage Program, Box 30028, Lansing, 48909.

During the 1989 winter count, 217 eagles were observed in 47 of Michigan's 83 counties.

A high proportion of the 165 eagle pairs, which nest in the state, are believed to spend the winter here.

Senior citizens continue work on Charlevoix senior center

If there's one organization in Charlevoix that can look back on 1989 with appreciation, it's the City of Charlevoix Senior Citizens Center.

This was the year the Senior Center found a way to own a home of its own by remodeling the old Charlevoix Township Hall given to them by the people of the township. As reported by Center Director Sherry Black, "The senior citizens have raised almost $18,000 from generous benefactors, raffles, and other fund raisers."

Also, the state has granted another $8,000 for an addition to the building and $8,900 for the heating unit. The latest contribution received by the Senior Center was $2,000 from the Charlevoix Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi sorority.

"We are still short of money to finish it (remodeling the building), but we can see a move-in date looming ahead and we are pleased and happy," Black added.

The Charlevoix Senior Center has been housed in the Veterans of Foreign Wars Building on U.S. 31 North, rent free, for more than three years. However, the seniors have felt the need for more space and greater freedom.

This need is further emphasized in a statement by Rita Orlowski, one of Charlevoix's most active volunteers:

"There are many projects going on in Charlevoix to which we are asked to contribute, but I personally feel the Senior Citizens building fund is very worthwhile and should be priority number one. Sometimes we lose sight of these seniors who at one time were the big taxpayers of the community and contributed much toward the improvement of Charlevoix. The larger building will enable the seniors to remain more active both physically and mentally. Think of it as an investment when you make a donation. We can all use this building in the future. Let's get it completed and paid for".

Burns Clinic initiates memory improvement course

Would you like to learn more about how memory works, factors that can affect changes in memory and techniques for improvements?

The Burns Clinic Foundation will pilot a Memory Enhancement Program in conjunction with the Emmet County Friendship Center.

The first program will be located in Petoskey at the United Methodist Church, Tuesdays, January 9, 16, 23, and 30 at 10:30 a.m. Future locations will include Harbor Springs, Cheboygan, Levering, Charlevoix, Gaylord and other communities in the area.

The program was developed by staff at Turner Geriatric Services, an outpatient clinic for individuals 60 years and older at the University of Michigan Medical Center.

Peer counselors, ages 60 and over, team teach the programs at the Turner Clinic. The Foundation is piloting the project and would like to involve peer counselors to offer the program in many locations including churches, women's groups, nursing homes, and retirement communities.

Memory problems are one of the highest ranked concerns of seniors. Because of the Foundation's interest in health education we are offering this new program in Northern Michigan.

The objectives of the program are to:

-educate people about memory and aging.

-increase the understanding of how to improve memory skills.

-decrease stress concerning minor memory loss.

There is no charge for the program but preregistration is required.

For more information or to register for the Memory Group, call Therese Green at 348-2134.

MESC seeks delinquent payments

The Michigan Emploment Security Commission (MESC) Tuesday begins mailing to all employers an application for the agency's new CAROT Program, a special one-time chance to pay their delinquent state unemployment insurance (UI) taxes and have their penalty and interest payments cancelled.

The MESC estimates that the Cancel Add-ons (interest and penalties) Remit Only Taxes (CAROT) Program, may attract as many as 30,000 employers and collect $40 million in delinquent employer taxes. Employers generally fall into three categories:

1) Employers who have received assessments from MESC for overdue taxes.

2) Employers who show a balance owing on line 16 of their unemployment tax report, MESC Form 1020, but have not yet received an assessment from MESC.

3) Employers who may not have filed or for whom MESC has no record of whether they filed all of their quarterly tax reports.

State Labor Director Elizabeth P. Howe urges employers who owe UI taxes, think they may owe taxes, or even wonder whether all their forms have been properly filed in the past, fill out the application for the CAROT Program. The application must be returned to MESC or postmarked by January 25, 1990, for an imployer to be accepted into the program. Application forms also will be available at all MESC offices on January 2.

Howe emphasized that any employer who owes back unemployment taxes may apply, and applying for the program is easy. Employers must sign the CAROT application and give basic information such as their business name, address and MESC identification number.

Employers can return the application to the agency with their tax report (MESC Form 1020) or separately as long as it is received or postmarked by the January 25 deadline.

Delinquent employers must agree to pay any outstanding taxes owed by no later than July 31, 1990. By April 30, 1990, MESC will notify those applying for the cancellation if they are accepted and what they owe.

For every dollar waived in penalty and interest, the agency will gain $4 in overdue taxes, which will go into the UI Trust Fund to pay unemployment benefits.

Hospital survey to determine elderly health care needs

Two committees have been formed to study senior citizen services under a federal grant to Charlevoix Area Hospital.

The grant was awarded in September and provides for citizen input through area-wide surveys and a Community Health Services Advisory Committee. The committee is made up of health care and senior resource providers from the area. Members are: Ann Smith and Carol Paxton, of District Health Department No. 3; Art Saworski, Commission on Aging; Preston Green, Chip Counseling Center; Ron Geer, Office of Veterans Affairs; Richard Tillen, Department of Social Services; Gena Schafer, Grandvue Medical Care; Lisa Kruzel, Northwest Michigan Human Services; Margaret Lasater, Hospice of Charlevoix County; Gayle Gennett, United Way; Rev. Phillip Schairbaum; Richard Krueger, hospital administrator; and Nancy Ellison and Camille Greene, hospital staff.

According to the terms of the grant, this committee will focus on: what services are now available; developing coordination and better use of resources where there is currently a duplication of services; and recommending new services for the Medicare population.

A Planning Task Force consisting of hospital board members, members of the medical staff, the hospital management team, and key community health providers will also provide input as to current services, as well as receiving the results of surveys and recommendations from the Community Health Services Advisory Committee and, finally developing action plans and the strategic plan with on-going monitoring. Serving on this committee from the hospital board are: Al Ranger, Walt Hufford, Ray Wood, Dr. M. Plagge, Dr. J. Gels, Tom Carey. Hospital staff include Richard Krueger, Camille Greene, Kathryn Boss, and Nancy Ellison. Neil Colburn, administrator of the East Jordan Health Clinic, and Jerry Chase, director of the Health Department, are community health care provider representatives.

Charlevoix Area Hospital was one of only four hospitals in the state to receive the Health Care Financing Administration's grant. In the first year $43,400 will be provided for the Charlevoix Area Hospital Senior Resources Project. The emphasis of the project will be on outpatient services for the Medicare population of the area. By gathering information from a variety of sources, the hospital hopes to have a valid needs assessment upon which to plan for new or expanded services for the Medicare population of the area. By gathering information from a variety of sources, the hospital hopes to have a valid needs assessment upon which to plan for new or expanded services over the next 5 years. Richard Krueger, hospital administrator and project coordinator, says, "We expect to improve travel distance and timeliness for health care services in our area. Our role is to provide key diagnostic and treatment services close to home for the Medicare population and that will be the emphasis of our project."

A telephone survey of area residents will begin in January. This is one of several surveys to be conducted in the next year. The committees will also begin their work in January.

Oh Boix!

A compilation of praises won by Charlevoix people for good deeds, good work and hard work.

Debra Seelye, of Charlevoix has been named recipient of the Howard H. Baker and Yeo and Yeo Accounting Scholarships at Northwood Institute for the 1989-90 academic year.

Seelye is a senior working toward a bachelor of business administration degree in accounting with minors in math and social sciences. She is the daughter of Carol and Don Seelye.

Linda A. Behringer, Mary A. Donnelly, Cheryl Ann Hartnett, Melinda Sue Morgan and Geoffrey D. Reynolds of Charlevoix were among the winter graduates at Central Michigan University. Behringer received a Bachelor of Science degree in psychology. Donnelly received a Bachelor of Science degree in education with a major in language arts. Hartnett graduated Cum Laude, receiving a Bachelor of Arts degree. Morgan graduated Magna Cum Laude, receiving a Bachelor of Applied Arts degree with a major in journalism. Reynolds received a Bachelor of Science degree with a major in history.

Matthew H. Dixon and Richard L. Wurst of Charlevoix were named to the fall quarter Dean's List at Michigan Technological University. Dixon, a junior majoring in Mechanical Engineering had a straight 4 point. Wurst, since graduated, was a senior majoring in Electrical Engineering. To be named to the Dean's List, a student must have a grade point average of 3.5 or better.

William C. Jackson, Financial Services Manager, of Charlevoix Area Hospital has been admitted to nominee status in the American College of Healthcare Executives.

Jackson is a graduate of Michigan State University with a bachelor's degree in art and business and a major in accounting. He had been on the staff at Charlevoix Area Hospital since 1979.

The Chicago-based international professional society represents over 21,000 healthcare executives. Nomineeship is the first level of professional achievement in the College and comes after demonstration of commitment to the healthcare field through an extensive application process. Full membership is achieved after passing written and oral examinations. Fellowship – the highest level of professional achievement may be obtained after a specified number of years of service, continuing professional development, demonstration of leadership and completion of an original detailed project by the candidate.

Signatures sought to save ship

Local business people are collecting names on a petition urging the U.S. Coast Guard to continue to have a ship stationed in Charlevoix.

The petition is available in local shops. Some of the shops have a sign in their front windows which reads, "Sign petition here to support Mesquite." The Mesquite was the latest Coast Guard cutter stationed in Charlevoix. It ran aground earlier this month in Lake Superior and was damaged beyond repair.

Since the time of the accident, local business people have been concerned about the economic impact the loss of the ship would have on the community. The city council sent a letter to federal officials on behalf of the city and passed a resolution asking that the city continue to be a Coast Guard port.

Chamber of Commerce executive director Jacquline Merta said signatures will continue to be gathered this week. Completed petitions will be sent to Coast Guard officials and political representatives. Business people hope to collect in excess of 1,000 signatures.

County budget exceeds $4 million

by PEG OHLE

The County Board of Commissioners has presented the 1990 budget in the amount of $4,246,900, the first county budget to go over the $4 million mark.

While the mention of $4 million doesn't raise eyebrows the way it once did, the size of the budget draws attention when one looks back at other budget figures.

Just seven years ago, in 1983, the county budget was $2,653,389, and the next year, 1984, was the first year the budget exceeded $3 million ($3,480,491). So, in just seven years, the budget has increased from less than $3 million to more than $4 million. This works out to an increase of 60 percent in the cost of operating the business of Charlevoix County since 1983.

Blame inflation? The federal government reports that the Consumer's Price Index increased about 26 percent from 1983 to the end of 1989. Since salaries account for about half of the county budget and salary increases each year are based mostly on the increased cost of living, inflation is only part of the answer.

There are other items the county has only limited if any control over. The increase in cost of Social Security payments for employees has been substantial: from $84,000 in 1983 to $138,000 in 1990. The same is true of insurance and bonds: from $162,725 in 1983 to $529,800 in 1990.

County Clerk Jane Brannon noted that the county budget allowed for a 15 percent increase in Blue Cross insurance in 1989. The increase turned out to be 23 percent, leaving that line item in the red. Next year's budget allows for a 23 percent increase in Blue Cross, which it is hoped will cover last year's deficit and next year's costs.

A comparion of the cost of operating the four major county departments shows that the increases are county-wide:

Category	1983	1990
Legislative	61,200	73,350
Judicial	342,889	666,415
Gen. Govt.	788,275	1,004,172
PubSafety	472,250	885,147
